the No. 2 finisher will claim $50 for the same purpose.

Since the early balloting suggests a mighty tight race, the editor is urging young workers and supporters to start the big push NOW, so their favorite teacher will have a healthy chance in taking down top prize.

A FEB. 18 deadline has been put on final ballots and winners will be announced in the Feb. 24 edition of the AFRO.

Although the coveted top prizes are the targets of students working for their Favorite Teacher, ranking finishers will also be treated kindly. For instance:

Third place winner will receive $100.

Fourth place winner will pick up $50.

The next 10 finalists will be awarded $10.

The coupon, worth 100 votes each, have been running in each edition of the AFRO since Feb. 14 along with the rules of the game.

"It's later than you think," the Contest Editor warn the army of teacher backers this week. He added:

"Make sure your Favorite Teacher have a fair chance at the exciting vacation by collecting, borrowing, buying, and even begging for all the votes you can put your hands on."

Boys and girls are also urged not to "hoard" their vote in order that their favorite may make a "big showing." This may backfire, the editor said.

"We must have time to count the votes so that a running account of the progress of the race can be printed in each edition of the AFRO. Make sure yours are in the office in time to be counted and the amount printed."

and low paying jobs.

Single family homes were vacated by their owners who moved out to more prosperous areas in the suburbs. These single family dwellings were often broken up into multi-unit dwellings housing as many as 3 or 4 families.

Men out of work, with little money were forced to take their families to these areas.

The lack of enforced zoning codes caused land designed for resilential use to be used as commercial property.

The city itself did little to stop this commercial encroachment. Those who could afford to move, did so. Those who could not, remained.

Pockets of blight began to appear—slums had become a reality in Baltimore. This was the part of a problem that would plague the development of this historical port own for decades to come.

Absentee owners, interested only in making the greatest amount of profit from the smallest investment, did little to keep up the physical condition of their properties.

Plumbing, furnaces, kitchens and electrical fittings were old and outmoded.

Inadequate sewage disposal and poor sanitation facilities only served to multiply the number of blighted areas.

These were some of the problems—some of the conditions —that contributed to one of the great challenges Baltimore would face in the Twentieth Century.

Town Hall session studies Constitutional Convention

The first in a series of Town Hall meetings was held Tuesday night at the Fourth District Democratic Organization headquarters, 1524 W. North Ave.

A preview of the Constitutional Convention was conducted by members of the Constitutional Convention Commission.

Members of the panel were Dr. Harry Bard, president of Baltimore Junior College, moderator; Supreme Bench Judge George L. Russell; John R. Hargrove, former judge of Peoples Court; and John C. Brooks, executive director of the Commission.

DURING THE discussion, Dr. Bard made a plea to the community for the careful selection of delegates to the Convention, scheduled to begin in September.

We should involve goo citizens business people, knowledgeable people, in the forming of our new State Constitution," he urged.

He warned against the selection of candidates based on political partisanship.

Under present plans, delegates will be elected by districts, with each district being allowed the same number as there are members in the House of Delegates.

The Fourth District is entitled to seven delegates.

A special election is scheduled to be held June 6. Candidates meeting the minimum citizenship, age (21), and residence requirements will pay a twenty-five dollars filing fee.

Names listed on the ballots will have no political party designations.

Delegates elected will be paid fifty dollars per day for a maximum amount of $4,500.

The convention is expected to be completed in three months.

DR. BARD told officials of the Fourth District Organization, "I am happy to see you taking the lead in bringing this important Convention to the public.

"I hope other groups will follow your example."

Panel members explained many of the proposals offered by the Con Con Commission.

During the question period, several among the audience took issue with some of the admittedly controversial recommendations of the Commission.

The moderator pointed out that the recommendations would not necessarily be followed by the body to be elected.

The Town Meetings are sponsored under the chairmanship of Cleveland Chandler.

Sen. Verda F. Welcome told the AFRO: "I am extremely gratified at the public response to this, our first such meeting. We are a part of this community and feel it is our duty to help cope with important issues that affect us.

"I hope the public will continue to join in our program. We invite everyone."

The second meet in the series is scheduled for March.

Labor Party leads in Jamaica election

KINGSTON, Jamaica (UPI) — The incumbent Jamaica Labor Party headed for almost certain victory Wednesday in the nation's first general election since independence five years ago.

Unofficial returns indicated the laborites would take 33 of the 55 parliamentary seats, with the rest going to the Peoples National Party (PNP).

Both parties are socialist oriented and union backed. The margin of victory came as a surprise to most Jamaicans, since there were indications the race would be extremely close. Early returns in fact, gave the PNP a small margin.

THE THREE-WEEK election campaign was marked by almost nightly violence in the teeming slums of Kingston and other urban centers.

Much of the violence was blamed on hoodlums with no political ties. Although there had been shootings and bombings before the election, polling day was relatively quiet.

The uglies incident reported was in turbulent West Kingston, where PNP candidate Dudley Thompson was cut on the head by a flying bottle.

Both parties had concentrated their electioneering in rural areas. The early PNP lead was attributable to its dominant position in Kingston and other towns. The laborites started forging ahead, however, when the rural returns came in.

FINANCE MINISTER Donald Sangster, who has acted as prime minister for the past three years after Prime Minister Sir Alexander Bustamente suffered a stroke, was expected to head the new government.

The election campaign was marked by violence, but the voting itself was relatively quiet. The pre-election violence had centered in the Kingston slum areas, where one man was shot to death and 11 others wounded last Saturday night.

All members of the Jamaican cabinet were re-elected Tuesday. The winners included Norman Manley, leader of the PNP and a cousin of Bustamente.

THE ONLY serious election day violence occurred in the turbulent West Kingston District, where Dudley Thompson, a PNP candidate, was hit on the head by a bottle thrown at him.

Both parties made similar appeals to the electorate. Sangster asked voters to permit his party to continue policies designed to attract foreign investment.

Authorities reported that about 70 percent of the 500,000 eligible voters cast ballots. The island has a population of about 1.8 million.

Women protest as girl is hired

WEST BROMWICH, England (UPI) —Some 300 women employees of a metal factory who walked off their jobs Tuesday in protest against the hiring of a 15-year-old colored girl were being asked to return today.

The women said Tuesday night they would not come back until the girl was dismissed.

The women asked several men to join them but the mes refused. Union officials said the women feared the hiring of Sheila Nelson, a Jamaican, would lead to the employment of more non-whites.

Death penalty ruled for youth

CHATMAN, Va (UPI) — A jury Tuesday found an 18-year-old youth guilty of the slaying of a white man and sentenced him to die in the electric chair.

The all-male jury in Pittsylvania Circuit Court deliberated for one hour before finding Harry Williams of Ringold guilty in the death of James Melvin Sarver, 40, of Pittsylvania County.

Sarver was shot to death Nov. 9 at his rural home and three members of his family were wounded by an assailant, who forced his way into the Sarver home.

Howard Murphy proud grandpa of new twins

Howard H. Murphy AFRO comptroller, received announcement Thursday morning of the 8:30 a.m. birth of twin grandsons.

The newcomers causing Mr. Murphy's chest to swell are sons of his daughter, Mrs. Catherine Murphy Dade and her husband, Charles Dade. Arriving in a Philadelphia, Pa. hospital they join a 3-year old brother, Charles Jr., to make the family complete.

Fondly known as "Mr. Howard" and "Pat," Mr. Murphy also points on the has other two grandsons, the youngsters of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd (Patricia Murphy) Robinson of New Rochelle, N.Y.

Judge Moylan testimonial set for Tuesday

The Juvenile Court staff will hold a testimonial dinner Tuesday, Feb. 28 at Emerald Gardens for Judge Charles Moylan Sr.

Head of the Juvenile Court and member of the Supreme Bench, Judge Moylan retires officially March 9 at the age limit of 70 years.

Judge Moylan has been Juvenile Court chief since he was named to the Supreme Bench in 1943.

He was twice elected to the post and is now assisted by masters Bernard M. McDermott and John F. Grady.

The director of the Juvenile Probation Department, Charles L. Dohme, is chairman of the staff dinner committee.

Judge Moylan has two sons: Charles E. Moylan Jr., the Stater Attorney and Daniel W. Moylan, Hagerstown, Md. lawyer.

ANOTHER FIRST — Del. Arthur A. King (D. Prince George's) made history in Annapolis Wednesday, when he became the first of his race to deliver officially a historical observance address before Maryland's General Assembly. He addressed the House on George Washington, the nation's first president. (See Political Notebook page 4)

Labor Party holds 13-seat majority

KINGSTON, Jamaica — (UPI) —Governor General Sir Clifford Campbell has asked the leader of the Jamaica Labor Party, Donald Sangster, to form a new government for this island in the Caribbean.

The Labor Party swept to victory Tuesday over the opposition Peoples National Party in Jamaica's first election since it became independent of Britain in 1962.

Sangster said he would continue the policies laid down by Sir Alexander Bustamente, the now retired prime minister who led Jamaica to independence.

Final results of the election gave Labor a 13-seat majority in the 53-member Parliament.
