'Smart Affairs' at Lyric April 2

"Larry Steele's Smart Affairs of 1967," an internationally famous, fast - moving, high - kicking revue is coming to Baltimore.

This marks the first time the glittering revue of gorgeous chorus girls, exciting music, and rib-splitting has been to Baltimore.

The revue, sponsored by the city's leading disc jockey and astute promoter, Maurice (Hot Rod) Hulbert, will stage two shows at the Lyric on Sunday, April 2.

"SMART AFFAIRS," a fixture on the Steele Pier in Atlantic City at the height of the tourist season, is guided by a veteran showman, Larry Steele, described in the trade as "Mr. Versatility."

A lawyer - student-turned entertainer, the show revolves around Steele, a dancer, pianist, vocalist and producer.

To give the revue a touch of freshness he introduces beautiful chorus girls from the best college campus, homes and dancing schools each year.

IN ADDITION to a complete new cast of talented dancers; the '67 version of the revue will also feature upon his modern day debut here a variety of acts.

They include a startling family acrobatic act, a show stopping quartet, "The Constellations; folk singers, "The Strong Brothers"; vocalist Marian Taylor, and Roy Hamilton, the brilliant "big voice."

It's all at the Lyric, April 2, beginning at 8 p.m.

hopeful that the Baltimore program will at least be able to "hold the line" on most of its poverty programs.

Mitchell feels that one of the biggest Jobs his agency must do is to meaningfully couple services with those people most in need of them.

But Baltimore's CAA has been much more than a program of give-a-ways, as some politicians have recently described the national war on poverty.

Conversely, it has helped shape and pass effective legislation aimed at helping people.

ACUTELY AWARE that the problem of slumns is basically the problem of people and their problems, CAA often has been behind action that hits hardest and helps most where help is needed.

"The passage of the self-help bill," Mitchell said recently, "was a blessing, but it is by no means the total answer to the problems of the slum. It is a significant inroad to the problems of the poor, but it is not by any stretch of the imagination the final answer."

CURRENTLY ON the drawing board is a pilot project to spruce up residential areas in West Baltimore.

The Urban Beautification Plan will be carried out through the concerted effort of a number of inner city groups in an attempt to get area residents to do something for themselves.

Though the program is still in the planning stage Mitchell feels that once it is put into practice it will be another important blow against the slum problem.

But here again, Mitchell warns this is not the total answer.

ADEQUATE EDUCATION — enough at least to enable one to get a steady, regular job, decent housing, where there's no constant battle with the rats, the roaches and the cold, a brighter outlook on tomorrow. These are the needs of the poor.

Not only is this true in Baltimore, but it is true on Seventh Avenue in New York City; State and 35th in Chicago and in the slums of Gary, Indiana, and the "hollors" of the Appalachia region.

The problems of poor people are pretty much the same all over the United States.

And nearly everywhere it is more than just a problem of poor housing, or weakly enforced housing codes.

The poor are forced out of the mainstream of American life.

It often has been said that the chief differences between the poor and the non-poor in the United States is that the poor have fewer opinions.

That they have fewer opinions is less likely to reflect their own culture than it is being shut off from the opinion and the rewards of the larger culture — they are shut off for a wider range of reasons than the culture of poverty can possibly comprehend.

Whether popgun shotgun or cannon in character — some kind of approach which directly touches the lives of poor people is needed—and if it is intended to be a cannon, let's be sure it's pointed in the right direction.

a pre-nuptial agreement dated May 23, 1961, in which Dr. Murphy explained that both had waived all claim or interest in real or personal property owned by the other party.

This was done, said he, in order that both could keep the pledges each had made regarding the division of respectives estates to their children, grandchildren and other heirs.

MRS. MOSS was named to succeed her father as voting trustee of a Voting Trust under which are certain shares of stock in the AFRO-AMERICAN Co.

In this office she joins D. Arnett Murphy, John H. Murphy Jr. and John J. Oliver.

Dr. Murphy's stock in the AFRO-AMERICAN, will be placed in trust with Mrs. Moss, Mrs. HHenderson and Mrs. Jones.

Upon the death of the last of these three trustees, Mrs. Vashti M. Matthews, Mrs. Ida M. Smith and the Maryland National Bank would become trustees.

THE TRUSTEES of Morgan State College where Dr. Murphy was chairman of the Board, will receive the Carl Murphy family Bible, the John H. Murphy family Bible with records back to 1770, volumes of Shakespeare's poems autographed by Commodore Oliver H. Perry and other first edition volumes and volumes out of print.

Mrs. Ida M. Smith was bequeathed her father's wearing apparel and automobiles.

To Mrs. Moss will go the household furnishings of the Morgan Park residence, the furniture, pictures, books, and other household effects.

They are left to Mrs. Moss for life, and then to his living children in equal shares.

The residue of the estate will be divided equally among the five daughters.

George Winters, that resulted in Gov. Agnew withdrawing his nomination, said he would join Sen. Welcome in her bid.

SEN. WELCOME'S ire was raised a few days ago when she was rebuffed by Mr. Johns, in her request for a copy of the board's examination papers.

Mr. Johns asked the attorney general's office for a ruling on whether he should comply, and termed her request "unusual and unethical quest "unusual and unethical."

Francis B. Burch ordered Mr. Johns to comply with Sen. Welcome's request for a copy of the examination papers, and replied in part:

"Sen. Welcome's request may or may not be unusual, but I find no basis for your characterization of that request as unethical.

"We believe it obvious that a committee of the General Assembly, or of the Legislative Council, in their consideration of matters pending before them, are fully entitled to receive information of this nature from your agency."

The order to Mr. Johns was also signed by Robert F. Sweeney, deputy attorney general.

the evening told police he came upon a group of eight or nine youths who were beating the victim as he lay on the ground in the 1700 block of Barclay St.

Joseph Johnson, 40, of the 1700 block Barclay St. said one of the assailants was wielding a four-foot-long board, about an inch thick.

He was striking at the man lying on the ground as the others beat his friend, Mr. Johnson said.

The observer said he went in his house and summoned his brother-in-law, and returning, the two of them saw the gang run east in alley alongside Barclay St.

He stated the victim got up, ran a short distance and collapsed on the steps of a house in the 300 block of E. Lafayette St.

Two minutes later police and an ambulance arrived to find the man semi-conscious.

The victim's blood-covered leather jacket was found at the scene, police said.

MR. JOHNSON stated he had been with his friend earlier in a tavern at Barclay and Pitman Pl., and that Mr. Mattox had left about five minutes before him at 12:30 head.

Three of the youths were arrested Saturday morning as Sgt. John Schmitt and Officer Herman Kolukowski searched the vicinity of the beating about 8 a.m.

Charged Monday were:

Gregory Edwards, 16, of the 1600 block W. Baltimore St.

Garfield Miller, 17, of the 800 block N. Calvert St.

And a 14-year-old boy charged as a juvenile.

Monday morning a fourth youth, Charles Henson, 17, of the 800 block George St., was arrested. He was charged Thursday afternoon.

Police are checking samples taken from the clothing of the teenagers.

One of the youths was treated at Mercy Hospital for a knife wound of the arm.

POLICE HAVE been unable to determine if the victim was robbed, as he remained unconscious.

Dets. William Schneeman and James Benton investigated the case for he Homicide Squad.

According to a witness in the earlier beating death, Mr. Johnson yelled, "No, Don't do this to me," before one of the boys picked up a brick and came down on the top of his come in the form of metro reorganization —the changing of and creation of new political subdivisions.

"As central cities are dominated by black people," Dr. Cloward said, "and suburban areas are dominated by white people, politicians become aware of the need to create coalitions.

"The Democratic administration is worried about this problem.

"As politicians they know that their strength has always been dominant in the cities but now they are faced with a dilemma as whites move out of the cities and black people become discontented with the Democratic party.

"But the federal government, working through federal bureaucracies and agencies like housing and urban development has a number plan to force political conformity on cities.

"They attempt to offer urban areas huge federal resources for the redevelopment of cities but to be approved for federal funding the plans of the cities must conform with the wishes of the federal government.

"Through these plans political reorganization will be brought about."

DR. CLOWARD said that the masses of black people rities in the inner cities will who form numerical majorities in the inner cities will be political minorities under the reorganization.

"Black people," Dr. Cloward said, "must resist consolidation; But there appears to be no resistance to accepting federal grants at any costs."

Dr. G. James Fleming, a discussant on the program, agreed with Dr. Cloward's thesis.

"Colored people can't get gungho and think that they are about to take over Baltimore or other cities," Dr. Fleming said.

"They will be blocked by regional coalitions and entire changes in political boundaries.

"There are many kinds of power — women organize, Catholics organize, but when colored people organize, they are met with coalitions which attempt to dilute their power."

OTHERS ON the Thursday morning session were Harold C. Edleston, executive director, Health and Welfare Council of Baltimore, and Willie T. Howard, director of special projects at Morgan, who presided.

It was one of seven forums scheduled in connection with the program which began with the keynote activity marking Morgan College's celebration of its 100th year.

FOUR COLLEGE presidents and an executive from Howard University were participants Thursday afternoon at a Morgan College panel discussion on the role of education and the urban crisis.

Participants included Dr. Mason W. Gross, president of Rutgers University; Dr. Donald R. McNeil, Chancellor University Extension, University of Wisconsin; Dr. W. Stuart Nelson, vice president for special projects, Howard University; Dr. John S. Toll, president of the State University of New York at Stony Brook, and Dr. A. M. Woodruff, chancellor-elect, University of Hartford.

Morgan College president, Dr. Martin D. Jenkins presided at the session which is one of seven to be held during a three-day conferenceon the problems of urbanization.

All of the participants agreed that it will be increasingly necessary in the future for college to gear their formats to meet the needs of modern cities attendent problems.
