—Rent subsidy voting

dinance, assuring its passage on the second reading, proponents of the bill from civic groups, burst into cheers and applause.

THE ORDINANCE, which the program would move allows for the use of $225,420 in Federal Funds by the Department of Public Welfare to improve family living for approximately 300 families, still must go through a third reading (and vote) before it becomes final.

The project would allow the payment of up to $115 a month rent by large families for better housing and for increased services.

The year-long project is designed to break the cycle of poverty by bringing up youngsters in something other than a poverty environment.

"Punctuated with personal challenges and the calling of "bigot," the roll call consideration of the bill lasted an hour and a half.

Several councilmen also alluded to the fact that the "eyes of Washington are upon us," regarding the Federal poverty funds that require no city matching outlay.

Before the vote, it appeared the conservative bloc had enough power to give the measure an unfavorable report.

COUNCILMAN J. Joseph Curran (D., 3rd) reported on the bill, bringing it out of his Budget and Finance Committee.

John A. Pica (D., 3rd) then moved to substitute an unfavorable report for Mr. Curran's motion for approval.

The committee chairman, in a lengthy introduction, said that when it was first presented he "had some misgivings and might have been counted among the opposition."

He said he "wondered what would happen after one year," if the funds were not continued, but believed that if the program succeeds, "funds for succeeding years will be found."

He admitted that part of his misgivings at first were based on the false belief that among the heads and cooperation of the supervisors and directors and continued efficiency and loyalty of the employees.

"May there be painstaking carefulness in handling dangerous machinery. May there be protection for those men and women who tramp the streets; ride the buses, trains, planes and boats gathering news.

"Protect this building against fire, flood, burglary and vandalism. May there be thanksgiving in our hearts for a vision — verified by a venture which culminates in a glorious achievement.

"Look kindly upon the remaining sons, Mr. John and Mr. Arnett (Dr. Murphy's brothers). Like pillars of wisdom, may they remain in a long evening of light.

"For thy continued comfort of Dr. Murphy's widow and children, be as Thou hast promised, a husband to the widow and a father to the fatherless throughout their remaining years . . . Amen."

* * *

HEADING THE list of employees cited was Willie Thompson, 64-year-old pressman, who has been a fixture in the pressroom for 35 years.

Mr. Thompson, a native Baltimorean who lives with his brother, Melvin at 2541 W. Lanvale St., is a bachelor.

"No, I haven't been too busy. I just haven't taken time to think about getting married," he said smilingly while explaining his obvious enjoyable bachelorhood.

"I feel fine and have no plans to retire," said the pressman who came to the AFRO when he was 29.

FOUR EMPLOYEES were cited for 30 years of service. They are:

Mrs. Pauline Blackwell, Circulation Department; Daniel Julius, mailing; Siamon Merritt, press room; Mahlon Oswell, assistant business manager.

Twenty-year service watches were presented to these workers from departments as indicated:

* * *

MRS. ODESSA DYSON, executive secretary, executive; Leon Brown, stereotype; William Freeman, business; George Lottier, business; and I. Henry Phillips Sr., photography.

Mrs. Bertha L. Jordan, proofreader and Otho Mackay of the cold type; received 15 year pins.

His dreams.

You know you'll have to give up some things to save enough money for your son's college. But, if you don't, he may have to give up something else.

His dreams.

Prudential understands that it'll be up to your son to realize his ambitions. But it'll be up to you to give him the chance.

But giving him that chance can take quite a chunk of money. Even if you drop out all frills, college expenses can easily run as high as $200 a month.

If you're like most fathers, you'll find it difficult to take that kind of money out of your pay and still have enough left over to live on. Which only means that you've got to do some advance saving. Otherwise, when college time comes, you'll be long on worries and short on cash.

HAVE THE MONEY READY WHEN HE IS.

One of the most painless ways to save the cash for college is through Prudential's college insurance-and-savings program.

Under this program you build up a cash reserve little by little over the years. So by enrollment time you'll have a nice little kitty to dip into—if you need a little help in footing the bills.

As you save, you also help insure your son's college future. If you don't live to see it through, the money will be there—for tuition, books, board, and even a few extras.

YOU CAN'T START TOO SOON.

The sooner you start, the less of a bite your college insurance-and-savings program will take out of your paycheck. So get with your Prudential man now and let him figure out how to match your son's future to your present income.

When it comes to helping a boy (or girl) through those costly college years, there's no question about it: Prudential understands.

In Memoriams

BROOKS — In memory of our loved one, BENTON, who passed away March 28, 1961:
God saw the road was getting rough,
The hills were hard to climb;
He gently closed his loving eyes,
And whispered "Peace be thine."
His weary hours, his days of pain
His weary nights are past;
His every-patient, worn-out frame
Has found sweet rest at last.
God made lots of beautiful things;
Sunset and roses, and trees,
Birds, and starlight and loyal friends.
And, after He made all these,
He gave to the earth a gift more dear
Most loving and more true.
Of all God gave us, the most rare
A mother as dear as you.
Children, ANNIE, CHARLES and SAMUEL.

WOODLAND — In loving memory of our beloved son, and husband, Pvt. DR. CHARLES T., who passed away eight years ago March 31, 1959:
Time may pass and bring its changes
Fresh with every coming year.
But his memory will be cherished
In the hearts that hold him dear.
