Reapportioned General Assembly Chalked Up A Good Record

By MAX JOHNSON
AFRO Political Analyst

Any analytic review of the accomplishments of the just adjourned first session of Maryland's new reapportioned General Assembly must conclude it has been one of the most productive, generally, since at least World War Two.

New advances were chalked up in the area of civil rights, needed legislation was realized to benefit all citizens, and at the same time passage of harmful bills for the citizenry were either blocked or kept at a bare minimum.

Among the legislation killed were:

1. Two bills which would have lifted restrictions on the relocation of alcoholic beverage outlets, allowing them in many instances to overcome protests and settle in residential areas.

2. A bill which would have lifted the requirement that employees of Baltimore's Municipal Court be residents of the city.

3. Bills to prohibit the Assembly from enacting open housing legislation.

Quite surprisingly to veteran State House observers, this heavily predominantly Democratic Assembly ended up fulfilling most of new Republican (Gov. Spiro T. Agnew's legislative program.

They substantially agreed with him on open housing, public accommodations, tax reform, new election laws, bay bridges and a harbor crossing, his billion-dollar state budget and a Constitutional Convention, to name major items.

* * *

ABOUT THE only key items on which the Assembly failed to see eye to eye with Gov. Agnew was some proposed, meaningful traffic safety legislation.

The governor, fully cognizant of what he had gotten, was not too unhappy about these losses, for they can come at next year's session.

Maryland still has a year to meet standards required under the Federal Highway Safety Act of 1966, and thus benefit with federal funds.

"All in all," Gov. Agnew concluded in his message of thanks to the Assembly Tuesday night, "I think we have made an excellent start on our four-year term together.

"I thank you for your cooperation personally and also on behalf of all the citizens of Maryland."

THIS NEWLY reapportioned Assembly started off in a historic vein, with a record high of 11 colored members — two senators and nine House members.

Senators Verda F. Welcome and Clarence M. Mitchell 3rd (both D. 4th Balto.) are the first two of their race to serve together in that chamber.

Delegates Victorine Q. Adams, Lena K. Lee, Troy Brailey, Calvin A. Douglass, Isaiah Dixon Jr. (all D. 4th Balto.); Floyd B. Adams, Joseph A. Chester (both D. 2nd Balto.); Arthur A. King (D. Prince Georges) and Anis T. Allen (R. Anne Arundel) form the race's record delegation in the House.

Here in a nutshell are some of the major reforms they helped this General Assembly to accomplish in the 70-day session.

* * *

MISCEGENATION — Having died in committee at previous sessions, a bill to repeal Maryland's 305 - year old ban on mixed marriages passed both chambers of the Assembly with a substantial majority vote long before adjournement.

It has been signed into law by Gov. Agnew.

* * *

OPEN HOUSING — This bill was one of the most controversial to face both chambers this session, but was passed at the last minute in a watered down form.

The enacted bill now affects all new housing built after June 1, except housing with less than 12 apartments, developments of six or less housing units under one ownership and all larger housing units for which building permits are obtained by June 1 and completed by June 1, 1968.

The last provision was a House amendment tacked on by Del. W. Dale Hess (D. Harford), who wanted exempted an apartment house near Aberdeen now under construction but will not be completed until October.

The Senate-approved bill, originally, would have covered the Hess apartments.

Gov. Agnew and many proponents see this housing bill as a big step forward, in that it gives the law teeth at broadening amendments at next year's Assembly session.

Previously, all housing bills have died in committee.

* * *

PUBLIC ACCOMMODATIONS — The waning hours of this session saw passage of a bill to bring Maryland's accommodations law in line with the Federal Act.

The bill, when signed by Gov. Agnew and after June 1, will cover such things as bowling alleys, motels, theatres and about every public place except corner taverns.

* * *

MINIMUM WAGE — This bill sponsored by freshman Del. Troy Brailey (D. 4th Balto.) was one of the most significant pieces of legislation to come out of this Assembly.

It provides that an estimated 50,000 workers in Maryland, not now covered by the Federal law, will receive after June 1 a minimum wage of $1.15 an hour and 1.30 an hour after June 1, 1968.

The last provision was made this reference to Mr. D'Alesandro: "Tom, it's been a real privilege to be part of your show. Now, I don't know what you're up to, but be sure you go out and get the job done."

SENATORS MEET 'TOM' — Indiana's Sen. Birch E. Bayh (left) and Maryland's Sen. Joseph D. Tydings chat with City Council President Thomas J. D'Alesandro 3rd, at whose banquet Senator Bayh was guest speaker. The speaker apparently had difficulty remembering Mr. D'Alesandro's name or the purpose of the banquet. During his speech in which he had high praises for Senator Tydings, Mr. Bayh

A successful U.S.-funded project that gets job done, saves dollars

The Baltimore Urban League's successful on-the-job training program was recently cited as one of the few federally-funded projects in the nation that ended its contract period with a substantial dollar surplus.

Approved by the Department of Labor on Feb. 15, 1965, the 12-month program was funded with a $155,494 grant.

Of this amount, $25,494 was budgeted for administrative costs, including salaries for a project director, field representative, trainee advisor and secretary.

The remaining $130,000 was reserved for sub-contracting funds to re - imburse employers for training costs.

* * *

ACCORDING to Earl C. Pyle, project director, at the end of one year a surplus of $60,000 remained.

The minimum of 200 placements, under terms of the Urban League's contract with the Labor Department, was reached in less than a year.

The contract was amended to extend to Feb. 15, 1967.

Last week Labor Secretary W. Willard Wirtz announced extension of the project to Feb. 15, 1968 at no additional cost to the government.

Dr. Furman Templeton, executive director of the League, said that a total of 374 applicants were placed as of March 1.

* * *

"WE EXPECT to open up a minimum of 200 additional training opportunities with Baltimore area employers as a result of the extension of the project," Dr. Templeton said.

Explanation for the unusual situation of having money left over came from Mr. Pyle.

"Most of the major employers have been reluctant to become involved with the government in a subcontractual relationship.

"They have preferred to accept OJT referrals and place them in their own in-house training programs."

Because of this attitude on the part of employers the major portion of money allowed for reimbursing subcontractors was not needed, Pyle said.

* * *

SINCE inception of the program, some 2,300 people have registered as applicants.

Of the 374 placed in training, 36 were on welfare and have since become self-supporting due to their training.

No. 10 have completed their training. Divided almost equally between males and females, the trainees have averaged slightly less than a 12th grade education.

Among the job classifications into which trainees have been placed are welders, clerk typists, general clerks, bank tellers and cashiers, receptionists, production workers, assemblers, electronics technicians, machine operators and nurse's aides.

"Salaries now earned by our trainees will pour more than $1,000,000 annually into the community," the project director said.

He pointed out the cost to the government in supporting this program should be recovered through taxes paid by former unemployed and under-employed and through savings of welfare funds.

* * *

A SERIOUS problem of a severe shortage of opportunities for relatively unskilled women in the over-25 age bracket was noted by Mr. Pyle.

"Many of these are re-entering the labor market after having taken time out to raise a family.

"The project has had only limited success in developing jobs for older women, and jobs so developed have been, in the main, largely temporary ..."

Careful counseling in grooming, deportment, employer-employee relationships, motivation and education is offered all applicants to the program.

Such counseling has greatly improved the applicants' employability, according to Mr. Pyle.

Youth apply at center for summer jobs

A large number of Baltimore youth were applying for summer work Wednesday at the Baltimore Youth Opportunity Center, 1727 N. Charles St., an affiliate of the Department of Employment Security.

At its peak there were as many as 200 at one time filing applications.

The young people were taking advantage of Easter vacation week from school to find summer employment.

The Baltimore Youth Opportunity Center, which opened in April, 1965, provides public employment assistance to young people from 16 to 21 years of age.

This program includes employment interviewing, job referrals, counseling, referrals to the Neighborhood Youth Corps, and also Job Corps programs.

RECENTLY, the Youth Opportunity Center staff representatives, the total income earned by individuals placed in employment during the first year of its operation, totaled over $5 million dollars.

Shooting victim gets final rites

Funeral services for 19-year-old John S. Clowney, son of Mr. and Mrs. John H. Clowney were held Thursday at New Pilgrim Baptist Church. Burial in the Mt. Calvary Cemetery.

Mr. Clowney died March 26, in Johns Hopkins Hospital as a result of a fatal bullet wound sustained March 5 in a bowling alley in the 2000 block of Monument St.

Mr. Clowney native of Baltimore, attended Lombard Junior High School. At the time of his death, he was employed by the city.

He was a member of the New Pilgrim Baptist Church where he sang on the Youth Choir.

Chase Tires moving to new location

The U. S. Rubber Tire Co., Division of UniRoyal, Inc., announced this week the appointment of the Chase Tire Company as direct factory distributors of UniRoyal Tires for the State of Maryland.

The Chase Tire Company headed by Julius Reichman, president, and Bernard Reichman, vice-president, operate a chain of tire stores and service centers in the Baltimore-Washington area and are currently expanding their number of outlets in anticipation of the additonal volume of business the UniRoyal Tires will generate.

Last year Chase Tire sales were over $2,000,000 and the company reports a substantial gain during the first two months of this year.

IN LINE with their expansion program the Chase Tire Company is currently preparing to move their outlet at 5601 Reisterstown Rd. to a greatly enlarged location at 5325-31 Reisterstown Rd.

This new facility has in addition to the 5,000 sq ft. that will be used for the office and service center, a 16,000 sq. ft. parking area.

Construction work will begin shortly and it is anticipated that the newest Chase Tire-UniRoyal Center will be open for business early this spring.
