SATURDAY, FOR some, was a day of utter elegance and charm.

At mid-day, some 40 matrons were guests of Marione Croxton at the Roundtower of several hours of relaxation of cocktails, talk and luncheon . . . without even the stress of cards.

Marione was as elegant as they come in a white wool dressmaker suit with satin trim that she had made while she was in Japan. And her guests set a fast pace for fashion.

It was just the sort of party Marione puts together at times when she feels like being surrounded by friends. And the beautiful red draped, flower filled tables about which guests grouped was just the sort of setting to induce good fellowship.

OUT AT the Southern Avenue home of Dr. and Mrs. G. James Fleming, the Pierians were listening to poetry being read by that Master, the Rev. Howard L. Cornish.

Under the theme of "An Afternoon, With Our Precious Heritage", Mr. Cornish read from James Weldon Jonson, Leslie Pinkney Hill, Paul Laurence Dunbar and Langston Hughes. To say that he completely thrilled the group is a great understatement.

Incidentally, Mr. Cornish will do poetry at a benefit in the Murphy Auditorium, Morgan College, on the 27th. There will be music, too.

The Saturday meeting of the Pierians was hosted by Louise Lamb, Catherine Wilson and Hazel Fleming.

Ashby to head GOP campaign

Horace H. Ashby Jr., 4500 Fairfax Rd., has been named by the Republican State Central Committee to head the party's voter registration drive in the city.

The campaign, which will be coordinated with others throughout the state, will get under way soon.

Mr. Ashby, a veteran party worker, drew considerable attention during the past election campaign when he ran unsuccessfully for clerk of Circuit Court.

He was one of three of his race to make bids for elective clerkship posts at the city's Courthouse.

FSC to honor war hero Joel

FAYETTEVILLE, N.C. (UPI) — Lawrence Joel, medal-of-honor winner from Winston-Salem, will be honored yet again — this time by Fayetteville State College at Fayetteville, where Joel now lives.

The college will pay homage to Joel at its 90th Annual Founder's Day program next Sunday.

President Lyndon B. Johnson presented Joel with the medal on March 9. On March 28, Governor Dan K. Moore presented him with the state's "Distinguished Citizens Award" at a joint session of the General Assembly, and members of both Houses gave Joel a standing ovation.

LAST SATURDAY more than 30,000 Winston-Salem citizens turned out to watch Joel lead a parade in his honor, and city fathers and other prominent citizens treated him to two banquets.

The Army medic is credited with saving the lives of 13 wounded soldiers while himself wounded and under heavy enemy fire in Vietnam.

Bimini fish took election day off

BIMINI, The Bahamas (UPI) — Adam Clayton Powell had a miserable day of fishing Tuesday while his constituents in Harlem 1,100 miles away re-elected him to Congress.

His boat, Adam's Fancy, slipped its moorings at 11 a.m. and returned, its "Keep The Faith" pennant flying, at 3:45 p.m. EST.

He came off the boat wearing white pants and a blue shirt, with a red bandana sticking from a pocket.

Gordon Dean, skipper of the Adam's Fancy, said Powell raised five Marlin but did not try to hook them, because he was set on taking Wahoo, another game fish. The party caught nothing, Dean said.
