Dental Auxiliary set for evening of elegance at Ball

With Lula Jones Garrett

Those meticulous members of the Dental Auxiliary have been so busy smoothing out details and up-grading elegance for their annual Ball on May 5th, that all at once they realized they had not contacted all of their usual patrons. But the latter are expected, and you will give the ladies a great lift if you will contact your here-to-fore hostess. Their ball, which benefits their projects, will be held in Blue Crest, North, this year.

On your calendar this weekend are both Delta Sigma Thetas' dance at Overlea Hall and the Colored Women's Democratic Committee of Maryland's dinner dance at North Point Gardens. And come May 7th, the Schaefer Show of Stars will come to the Baltimore Civic Center for the Benefit of Provident Hospital.

FOUR HUNDRED and twenty-one gals packed the banquet room of Holiday Inn, Saturday afternoon, for Alpha Kappa Alpha's presentation of the Hamilton Vogue-Esquire Models of Chicago at the sorors' "Fashionetta Luncheon." And while I cannot say that they saw the best fashion show possible, I'll bet they had the best time in many a moon. For just about everybody was there . . . Greeks and non-Greeks, in-towners and out-of-towners. And if they became bored with the fashion showing, they only had to look across the table or around the room and feast their eyes on some top guest-grown haute couture.

The redeeming feature of the show was the sections featuring the male models. The models had personality and in the main the clothes were great. The ladies simply lapped that part of the show up.

The girl models had a great deal of charm and the cutest figures in ten counties. . . and there were a few high spots in their presentations. But the truth of the matter is the producers should not have labeled their showing "Fashions Extraordinaire 1967" . . . maybe 1965 . . . or would you believe 1966?

It was a nice party, however, thanks to the expert and experienced hostessing of the AKA's. Their luncheon brought the North Atlantic regional director, Mrs. Esther Pollard, from Washington, Miss Charlye Williams from New York City, Mrs. Lillian Tyler, Mrs. Lula Hardesty and Mrs. Beulah Diggs from Annapolis, Mrs. Elsie Flournoy from Washington, and I heard, practically the whole Frederick, Md. contingent of sorors. I saw Marie Hicks of that town, in an elegant knit, step from her Cadillac and streak across the street.

On the Fashionetta committee were Sorors Idell Puch, chairman; Esther Bailey, Charlotte Harper, Margaret Jackson, Gertrude Urquhart, Marie Fraser, Doris Reese, Brenda Johnson, Audrey Pinkney, Stephanie Martin, Florence Bailey, Helen Thornton, Nellie Moore and Corinda Waters. Soror Elsie Sessoms in chapter basileus.

THE CREOLES did it again at a gala black and white Cabaret Party last Saturday night at the United Steelworkers Holding Hall in Dundalk. All agreed that the scintillating music of FUZZ KANE and his group was so versatile that all could dance (that's saying something these days), and the food was simply "fabulicious."

The black and white theme was carried out in the lovely cocktail dresses worn by the members and the guests, and in the table decorations. Each table was laden with food, drinkables, and black and white silhouette heads displaying the names of the members.

The Creoles are Mesdames Rosita Uncdent, president; Margaret Hawkins, vice president; Margaret Austin, recording secretary; Elizabeth Ford, financial secretary; Margaret Durham, treasurer; Willie Valentine, business manager; Romain Taylor, president ex-officio; Other members are Elizabeth Phillips, Regina Polston, Varnita Turner, and Catherine Young.

Lawyers' wives hold anniversary session

Mrs. William Buckner, a charter member of the Lawyers' Wives of Baltimore, and a long-time civic worker, was honored when the group held their 16th Anniversary Founders' Day luncheon, Saturday.

Mrs. Buckner was recipient of a plaque and a check from the group. Also honored at the luncheon were the "Who's Who Among Lawyers' Wives," women who have achieved outstanding recognition in various fields.

They included:

Mrs. William Murphy, recipient of the Sojourner Truth award in 1966; Mrs. Thomas Hicks, national vice-president of the Barristers' Wives; Mrs. Clarence Mitchell Jr., attorney, renowned for work in the NAACP; Mrs. James Bundy, a candidate for the House of Delegates in 1966; and Dr. Regina Goff, an assistant commissioner in the U.S. Office of Education.

A gift also went to Miss Deborah Staokley, "Miss Teen-Age-Arama of 1967." The presentation was made by Mrs. Paul Cockrell.

DR. GOFF, speaker for the occasion, reminded the 200 guests of their responsibilities in seeing that young people take advantage of educational opportunities offered by the Federal Government. She listed many of the programs now being offered by the Federal Government and discussed her role in the office of education.

Other participants on the program included Mrs. Archie Williams who gave the history of the Lawyers' Wives of Baltimore; and Mrs. James McAllister, president of the group, who, in her "Visions of the Future," reaffirmed the goals of the Lawyers' Wives to continue the fight for equality of job opportunities in the Court House and other areas of the community.

MRS. CHARLES P. HOWARD JR. was luncheon chairman. Members of her committee included Mrs. Frank DeCosta Jr., Mrs. James Bundy, Mrs. A. B. Koger and Mrs. Harry Colen who served as mistress of ceremonies.

The invocation was by the Rev. Marion Bascom, and Freedom-laden youth running scared, warns Mrs. Dedmond

In this new dawn of freedom, where sex communication is a free and uninhibited as social communication, young people are scared and insecure, Mrs. Flossie Dedmond told Theta

MRS. FLOSSIE DEDMOND

Nu Sigma sorors and their guests, here, Sunday morning.

Speaking at the Dawn Breakfast of Zeta chapter of the beauty culturists group, Mrs. Dedmond decried the lack of concern over social standards on college campuses.

"WITH ALL their seeming sophistication, youth is scared and insecure. The pills and contraceptives sometimes let them (college students) down, leaving them in disgrace and tears, wondering what to do with a soon-to-be-born baby whose father runs away from legal parenthood and troubled over their torn lives.

"This is the day of high grade college entrance tests, Federal bank loans to students, scholarships and various types of grants-indaid for the worthy and sometimes, not so worthy.

"This is also the day of excessive campus cheating, a day of strong peer unity, where one youngster dares not tell what he knows that is socially taboo about anotner youngster.

* * *

"A LARGE number, even on campuses where honor systems flourish, confess that 'what another person does is his business;' that they are not going to squeal; that each has enough to do to look after his own affairs; and that the code is to let the others get by if they can," Mrs. Dedmond said.

"This is the dawn of a day that bears witness to all too many youngsters confessing hatred for their parents and leaving comfortable homes to live in crowded apartments in an effort to be free of parental restrictions.

"And this is a day that advocates, even by some high church men, a liberal attitude toward abortions.

* * *

"MAYBE THIS is good," the speaker continued. "Maybe it is not good, but certainly, it is a challenge that faces single women and mothers, alike.

"In this new day it is the role of women as workers with youth to inspire them by examples of dedication to duty and respect for law and order, young people have

PALLITTA DAVIS, two-year-old daughter of Dr. Davis, was christened in Sunday, with the Rev. Fr. Sunay, with the Rev. Fr. Thomas J. Tawes officiating.

DR. REGINA GOFF (upper left) urged 200 guests who attended anniversary luncheon of the Lawyers' Wives of Baltimore to see that young people are acquainted with educational opportunities offered by the Federal Government.
