Poet ace performs spectacular feat

Lenny Scott, ace of the Dunbar High School pitching staff, came within one inning of tossing three consecutive no-hit, no-run games in Maryland Scholastic Association baseball Tuesday afternoon.

The diminutive righthander — he stands only 5-11 and weighs 155 pounds — blanked the Douglass, 1-0, to give the Poets their third victory in MSA "B" Conference play, all by Scott.

Lenny hurled a 10-0 no-hitter against Carver on April 14, came back with a 4-0 whitewash of McDonogh, again not allowing a hit, on April 21, and on Tuesday turned back Douglass for six innings before being nicked for a single by the Ducks' Don Walker leading off the seventh.

* * *

IT MARKED the most spectacular performance by a local schoolboy pitcher in the history of a conference that has developed the likes of Tom Phoebus and Dave Boswell.

Phoebus, formerly of Mt. St. Joe, is now with the Orioles and Boswell, a one-time Calvert Hall star, is one of the mainstays of the Minnesota Twins' staff.

LENNY SCOTT

* * *

DESPITE the fact he has achieved an enviable record in American Legion and sandlot play around Baltimore the past several summers, Scott was a late bloomer at Dunbar.

Last year, he was rarely used by the Poets until late in the campaign. In the closing weeks, he tossed a 3-hitter to beat runner-up Calvert Hall, 3-1, striking out 15 batsmen.

During the 1966 summer season, Lenny pitched the only no-hitter in American Legion competition, turning back the Colonial Ramblers for Woodlawn, 1-0.

* * *

HIS BRILLIANT work, already sufficient to attract several big league scouts, will probably make him the most wanted following his fine year at Dunbar.

Twenty innings of stifling MSA hitters may not be considered of earth-shaking importance in some quarters, but it is safe to say no major league scout entrusted with covering this area is likely to risk bypassing the Poet fireballer. . . .LACY.

20-man Douglass squad sole MSA entry at Penn

PHILADELPHIA — A 20-man contingent from Douglass High School is the lone entry from the Maryland Scholastic Association competing in the 73rd annual Penn Relay Carnival here at Franklin Field this weekend.

The Dunbar, winners of two second-place trophies here last year, may be hard put to do as well in this renewal of the Eastern Seaboard's most elaborate cinder spectacle.

Robert Dubes, ace of the 1966 Douglass aggregation, was lost to graduation. Whether or not the Ducks can make up for his absence remains to be seen.

* * *

ROY AUSTIN, who is the MSA hurdles champion, is the main play on both the 440 and mile relay foursomes.

In the quarter-mile event, Austin will team with Roderick Tate, Samuel Reed and Louis Myers. He will form the mile tandem with Tate, Asbury Hopewell and Mike James.

Hopewell and James also are expected to perform with a Douglass aggregation in the 2-mile relay race.

Herbie Lee given DiVeronica rematch

Sweet Herbie Lee, popular young Washington, D.C., fighter now boxing out of this city, is scheduled for another shot at classy Dick DiVeronica of Canastota, N.Y., at Civic Center, May 25.

Lee was victim of an upset knockout at the hands of DiVeronica on April 3, when the hard-punching New Yorker got over a vicious right in the sixth round of an action-packed encounter.

'Made mistake' says Ellis of ABA jump

"I made a mistake."

It was a simple explanation but a miscalculation himself from the legal entanglements that figure to follow, may not be so simple for Leroy Ellis, former St. John's University All-American basketball player.

Ellis declared he made a mistake when he signed a contract with the New York entry of the new American Basketball Association a little over a week ago. He said he wants to play in Baltimore where on Wednesday, he signed a contract to play with the Bullets of the National Basketball Association.

* * *

THE 6-10 center, who wound up his first year with the Bullets last month, appeared at a hastily-called press conference Wednesday morning along with the team's general manager, Buddy Jeannette.

He went through the motions of signing a pact calling for an estimated $7,000 raise over his 1967 salary and announced that he was sorry about the earlier mistake and happy to be back with the Bullets.

* * *

THE DOUBLE signing, putting the former St. John's star in both the NBA and the fledging ABA, undoubtedly will spur court action and possibly hasten an expected "bonus war" similar to the one that rocked pro football before the historic merger last June.

Ellis' action was similar to several twin-signings by football players as the American Football League rose to challenge the National Football League.

* * *

A NUMBER of the game's biggest names have been linked to possible league-jumping — including Wilt Chamberlain, Oscar Robertson, John Havlicek, Luke Jackson, Willis Reed and Bailey Howell.

The ABA, which opens league play next fall, boasts of its pension plan, the main bone of contention that led to a threatened NBA strike before where on Wednesday, he signed a contract to play with the Bullets of the National Basketball Association.

* * *

THE 6-10 center, who wound up his first year with the Bullets last month, appeared at a hastily-called press conference Wednesday morning along with the team's general manager, Buddy Jeannette.

He went through the motions of signing a pact calling for an estimated $7,000 raise over his 1967 salary and announced that he was sorry about the earlier mistake and happy to be back with the Bullets.

THE DOUBLE signing, putting the former St. John's star in both the NBA and the fledging ABA, undoubtedly will spur court action and possibly hasten an expected "bonus war" similar to the one that rocked pro football before the historic merger last June.

Ellis' action was similar to several twin-signings by football players as the American Football League rose to challenge the National Football League.

A NUMBER of the game's biggest names have been linked to possible league-jumping — including Wilt Chamberlain, Oscar Robertson, John Havlicek, Luke Jackson, Willis Reed and Bailey Howell.

Kirkland seems headed back to Nats' outfield

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — While Kirkland seriously considered retiring from baseball after being sent to the minors by the Washington Senators, but at the rate he's going now, the Hawaii outfielder may be back in a big league uniform before too long.

The 33-year-old Kirkland, who spent nine seasons in the majors, grabbed most of the Pacific Coast League's hitting honors after the first full week of play.

HE LED in home runs with six, total bases, 39, and runs batted in, 14, and shared the lead for triples with Jim McKnight of Phoenix, and Tom Murray of Oklahoma City.

In addition, Kirkland's .455 batting average was good enough for third.

Bill Voss of Indianapolis was the leading sticker with a hefty .463 average followed by Julio Gotay of Oklahoma City with a .475 mark.

Lee Elder wins like 'real pro'

WASHINGTON

With a 4-under par 68 in last Sunday's United Professional Golfers Association (UPGA) Tournament at Langston, Lee Elder was doing what is expected of a pro: play like a real artist.

He finished five strokes ahead of his nearest competitor.

Of course, winning golf tournaments is nothing new for Elder, who devotes every minute he can to the links. This was his third straight UPGA triumph.

IN THE recent Old Dominion Open Tournament, in Newport News, Va., Elder was third to none other than Pete Brown and Cliff Brown.

In February, he walked away with the Miami North-South title, for the fourth consecutive trip. This year, he has also won Jimmy Taylor's Open, in Tampa, Fla.; placed second in the Southern California Open, and finished third in the Grand Bahamas Open.

In last Sunday's round, he finished five strokes ahead of Lewis Lipscomb, who had a 3. Joe Flowers, of Baltimore; and James Mason, of Washington, tied for third with 75 each.

BALTIMORE'S RONALD TERRY, a product of the UPGA junior development program, and the 1965 junior champion, topped the men's amateurs with a 73. A card-matching contest put him ahead of Arthur Green, who had the same total.

Terry's father, Vernon, was a third with 75. Mrs. Frances Mays, a top local woman golfer, won her division. She was followed by Mrs. Gertrude Suber and Mrs. Amela Lucas, respectively.

The tourney got under way a day after the UPGA met to plan future activities. In June, the group plans a Cliff Harrington Memorial Tournament in Baltimore.
