FOOTBALL OR BASKETBALL?

Bubba Smith to Baltimore 'one way or other,' he says

EAST LANSING, Mich. — "I guess I'll be playing in Baltimore one way or the other," Michigan State football star Bubba Smith said Thursday. But will it be pro football, pro basketball or both?

Smith, who was the No. 1 draft choice of the Baltimore Colts of the National Football League, Wednesday was the last pick of the Baltimore Bullets in the National Basketball Association draft.

"I can't believe that. I guess that's all right, though," laughed Smith when he was told of the basketball draft.

"SURE I'D play basketball in Baltimore if they give me the right money," Smith declared. But he said he hasn't played since high school.

Smith, who won football fame as a Spartan defensive mainstay at end, last played competitive basketball four years ago as an all stater on the Charlton Pollard High School team in Beaumont, Texas.

"I wouldn't mind playing basketball and football. The matter of fact, I'd love it," he said.

HOWEVER, THE 6-foot-8-inch, 285-pound former prep center and defensive end said he is nearing signing a contract with the Colts. Negotiations have been delayed recently because of a dispute between two sports groups claiming the right to bargain for Smith.

"I'm hoping to be signed either this weekend or next week," Smith said.

A 27-POINT a game basketball player during his senior year in high school, Smith said he was unable to continue playing two sports in college.

"Playing two sports back-to-back puts a lot of pressure on you academically to stay eligible," he said.

BUBBA SMITH
Baltimore or bust?

"My best shot is a little jumper from the key. I also averaged 17 to 18 rebounds a game," reminisced Smith of his prep basketball days.

SMITH, JUST before leaving his campus dormitory room to watch the Spartans' spring football drills, said he still couldn't get over being picked to play pro basketball.

"Oh boy — that is a surprise . . . picking me to play basketball after all those years," he said.

Kenwood High's Joe Scott boasts all-round talent

By SAM LACY

Football players who win scholastic All - America recognition and baseball stars who record consecutive no-hit pitching victories are not alone in making names for themselves in Baltimore schoolboy athletics.

A good example is to be found at Kenwood High School, where for a number of years, fine varsity teams have been produced along with a well-rounded academic program.

JOE SCOTT

And youngsters of all-round talents — such as Joseph Brian Scott Jr. — make their presence felt in numerous activities.

YOUNG SCOTT, for instance, has stood out for the last three years as a member of the varsity gymnastics team. He also performed on the junior varsity and varsity indoor and outdoor track squads.

While competing in track, he was runner - up in the county championships at 380 yards and was a winner in the 60-yard dash.

His value to the cinder contingent, however, was curtailed by an ankle injury and Joe was compelled to turn his interests in another direction.

KENWOOD coach John Patterson calls the affable young senior "a fine example of American boyhood."

As evidence of his popularity, Joe was elected president of his sophomore class, the first colored student so honored in the history of the school.

Additionally, he served two terms on the Student Council and two years as a member of the Kenwood High student steering committee.

ALL OF young Scott's time is not occupied with sports and civic duties. He also attends modern dance classes at the school and recently turned thespian.

Joe's success as a dancer is reflected in his choice to do the solo dance in Henry Mancini's "Mr. Lucky," to be presented by the Modern Dance Group on May 19.

IN HIS QUEST for dramatic attention, young Scott tried out for, and won, a part in the recent Kenwood production of Charles Dickens' classic play, "Oliver."

With so many interests to crowd into his life as a senior in high school, it may be difficult for the multi-talented youngster to decide what course to follow in his upcoming college career.

Eddie Arcaro pays tribute to Murphy

LEXINGTON, Ky.— (UPI) — The remains of the first jockey to win three Kentucky Derby races were transferred Thursday to a new resting place alongside the mighty thoroughbred, Man O' War.

Jockey Isaac Murphy, who mounted Buchanan in 1884, Riley in 1890, and Kingman in 1891, to become the first person to have three Derby winners and established a record that stood for more than a quarter century, received special praise in the ceremonies.

ANDREW HATCHER, press aide to the late President John F. Kennedy, called the reburial "an act of progress."

"Some would say Murphy should have shared the hallowed ground before, but in this day or unrest when a Southern state, a Southern company and a community of sportsmen combine their efforts so as to recognize a great American who also happened to be colored, it is definitely progress," Hatcher said.

EX-JOCKEY Eddie Arcaro, who broke Murphy's record when he rode his fourth Derby winner, Citation, in 1948, also spoke at the ceremonies.

"Murphy will always hold another more remarkable record because of the change in the sport," Arcaro said. "He brought home 628 mounts to victory in 1,412 races."

Murphy died in 1896 at the age of 36. His grave lay undiscovered here until recently.

Stuart Block of Wheeling, W. Va., a tobacco company executive proposed the remains be transferred to the historic Man O' War Park here so to put the two racing greats together.

Peace walkers stop over at 'Crack of Doom'

Peace walkers on their way from Boston to Washington stopped over in Baltimore Thursday — at the Crack of Doom coffee shop.

The marchers, who will have walked the 450 miles in 45 days, have a hard core numbering about 10 and hope to have about 40 others join them when they reach Washington Monday.

Throughout the march, urging the end of American involvement in Vietnam, the walkers have received accommodations in church basements and schools.

Martin Gersom, 21, a spokesman for the group, said the march will culminate in Washington with civil disobedience at the Pentagon.

Several of the marchers will attempt to enter the offices of the Chiefs of Staff and remain as nonviolent witness, while others keep a vigil outside.

CHARLES KIMBALL JR. 34, a teacher, said he gave up his job to join the march sponsored by the Committee for Nonviolent Action.

Along the way, in Philadelphia, he sent a postcard to Mr. and Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson asking them to join the group in Washington and "sit and talk."

During the march the walkers — sometimes met with eggs and stones — have been trying to persuade onlookers to their position with leaflets and conversation.

Mrs. Donna Bowden, 21, said she gave up a job with an advertising agency in New York to begin with the march in Boston.

Signs accompanying the group proclaim: "Refuse to Pay Income Tax for War," "End Racial Discrimination," "Return Good For Evil" and "Refuse to Kill."

resented by John Hargrove and Edward Coleman; Gladden by Joseph Rosenthal and Long by James McAllister.

Jury foreman was Lewis H. Tate, retired, 3502 Fairview Ave., whose wife is Mrs. Lillian L. Tate, beauty inspector for the state of Maryland.

Mr. Tate is first of his race and sex to serve as foreman of a Criminal Court jury. Five of the nine women jurists were colored.

THE LENGTHY trial began a week ago Wednesday, extended through last Friday and was concluded after a fourth day of testimony on Tuesday.

The three accused men did not take the stand during the entire trial.

Two items of important testimony against them were (1) the voluntary statement Sewell made to Lt. James A. Cadden of Homicide Squad and (2) the story of Miss Sara DeAngela Neal, 700 block N. Spring St., who sat beside Sewell in the get-away car while the murder and robbery were committed.

Entered into the record, the statement Sewell made to Lt. Cadden revealed "Sara" was in the car but had nothing to do with the crime; "Porkey" (long) shot the dentist although he was only supposed to get the money.

Miss Neal testified she knew of the plan to rob the dentist, the plot to be carried out by Sewell, Long and Gladden.

She told the court after the shooting Long said, "I had to struggle with him (Dr. Walker). He grabbed the gun."

Also testifying was Rufus Owens, a patient in the dentist's office just before the shooting.

Mr. Owens said he chatted with two men who, he thought, were patients waiting for Dr. Walker.

Minutes after Owens left the office he heard shots, and turning, saw Gladden and Long run out the office.

ASST. STATES Atty. Howard reviewed the events that led to the murder to say that Long, Sewell and Gladden designed the plan to rob the dentist shortly before noon and took along a gun to intimidate him and several pairs of silk stockings to tie him up.

Wearing sun glasses, they went to pick up Miss Neal, and then parked at Caroline St. and Ashland Ave.

When Gladden and Long went to Dr. Walker's office, Sewell was left in the car "ready to move it at a moment's notice."

When the dentist started out to the waiting room from treating a patient, Gladden and long went into the inner office, displayed a gun, demanded money and drugs then rifled cabinets looking for drugs.

When the dentist resisted there was a struggle. Of four shots fired one went into the floor, one to the ceiling.

Dr. Johnson, shot in the hand and chest and mortally wounded by the latter bullet, struggled to the street where he later told police his assailants were "junkies" known in the neighborhood.

Also as evidence of the robbery, Mr. Howard pointed out the office was left in shambles, paper money and coins were literally strewn all over the floor.

A witness, Albert Kinsey, testified he saw the dentist stagger out the building and hard him say, "They got $40 from me."

Also cooborating the robbery was the statement of Miss Neal, "They went there to rob him."

SEWELL'S ATTORNEY, Mr. Hargrove, attacked Miss Neal's reliability as a witness and cited her as a narcotics user, a person in the category of notorious liars and cheats."

He disavowed Lt. Cadden's testimony saying the police office and members of his department had applied "the worst pressure I have ever seen" to exact a statement from Sewell.

In defense of Gladden, Mr. Rosenthal said the"so-called murder trial" was the weakest he had ever seen.

He pointed out no gun was ever produced and real facts were absent.

Terming Miss Neal as a "hysterical, sick girl", he stated her testimony was from "a person with an expensive drug habit, an unsavory, unreliable informer who would squeal for any reason."

Mr. McAllister, defending Long, said the only testimony the state relied upon, that of Miss Neal, "came from a poor sick girl in a narcotic daze," and termed the entire state evidence as "flimsy and weak."

-CAA asked

without the help of the CAA many of these businessmen would not have received financial assistance.

He said there are now 13 businesses in Baltimore that are "going concerns" because of help rendered through the projects.

THESE BUSINESSES include a floral ship, a grocery, a retail furniture outlet, barber supply concern and a credit investigation company.

Scarsboroigh said that if the program is discontinued the Small Business Administration would not be able to render the "special help" now being given by the SBDC.

Kenneth O. Wilson, a member of the commission said he felt the center should be continued because it has been helpful in opening businesses and in getting people" into the mainstream of the American dream."

Other members suggested that if the program is phased out on June 30 some program should be established to assure continuation of the kinds of service now being given by SBDC.

-Cherry Hill

furnishing live music and permitting dancing, along with the service of food and alcoholic beverages.

They were named as Levi Shields, Miss Laurena Shields and Mrs. Gloria Shields, represented by Mtnuel E. Lefko, attorney.

HOWEVER, THE protestants, through Charles P. Howard Jr., their attorney, held that there had been no change in the area or in the facts to warrant the board rendering a different opinion than that in the 1965 case.

They charged that licensing the establishement would be tantmount to permitting a night club there. One of the protestants told the board;

"We do not want a night club in Cherry Hill."

Actually, the establishment on Waterview Ave. is between Cherry Hill and Westport, and in close proximity to the community of Mt. Winans.

In refusing the license, the board agreed that there were no changes since the 1965 case to warrant its issuance.

Among the protesting organizations were:

The Cherry Hill Coordinating Council, the Roundview Road Improvement Association, the Civic Citizens Organization, the First Baptist Church and the Policy Community Relations Council, Southern District.

-New slate

selected without the participation of all district groups.

A COMMITTEE has been named to bring two other names before the body, he said. The other three approved Thursday night were all winners on the community-backed ticket, John Hargrove, John White and Mrs. Juanita Jackson Mitchell, the senator's mother.

In addition to these three names the community-backed ticket included Mrs. Miriam Winbourne, Mrs. Rubye Gill, Earl Koger and David T. Mason.

Nelson Jenkins named AFRO newsboy of week

NELSON JENKINS

An AFRO news route which he has been servicing for nine years may open the door to college for Nelson Jenkins who has been selected as this week's number one AFRO carrier.

Nelson, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Jenkins of Edmondson Village began his route with ten subscribers that were given to him by an older brother who was a former AFRO newsboy.

He is 16-years-old and a tenth grade student at Douglass High School.

NELSON SAYS that he has a bank account and is saving the money he earns from his AFRO route to pay his college expenses.

After graduating from high school, he would like to attend Maryland State College to study history.

He serves 200 AFRO subscribers in his area and is constantly thinking about new methods for expanding his route.

He likes all sports but has a special interest in football. He thinks the Baltimore Colts will have a "good year" next season.

He is a member of the Phi Epsilon Sigma fraternity, an organization dedicated to keeping young people out of trouble.

He said he thinks the idea of a curfew for teenagers as proposed by City Council President Thomas D'Alesandro is a "good idea" but then added, "I have to be in at 10 p.m. every night anyway."

Maury Wills TV guest of Koufax

PITTSBURGH — Maury Wills, the former Dodgers shortstop the Pittsburgh Pirates hope will spark them to the National League pennant, will be the guest of Sandy Koufax on "The Sandy Koufax Show" colorcast on the NBC Television Network tomorrow (Saturday) at 2 p.m.
