—172 abortions

two policewomen in her office investigate each case to determine if an actual abortion has taken place.

Victims of abortion fall into four classifications:

1. Housewives with one or more children to whom the birth of another child would represent additional financial burden.

2. Married women who want and either or won't take a year of absence from their jobs.

3. Unwed women afraid of the stigma attached to illegitimate birth.

4. Engaged couples who don't want the wedding date to be rushed by an unwanted pregnancy.

WHILE SUSPECTED abortion cases last year numbered 172, figures show 138 of them involved colored women.

This seemingly one-side figure does not suggest that there is a higher incidence of abortion among colored people of Baltimore.

White females, and women from economically stable environments can often afford to pay the high fees for medically trained criminal abortionists while those without adquate financial resources resort to the services of quack, semi-knowledgable criminals.

A recent case involved the arrest of a kitchen worker at a local hospital who was performing abortions in her home.

"Amateur abortionists," Sgt. LaPlant said," comprise the largest number of persons arrested as abortionists".

TRAINED MEDICAL MEN, who charge fees ranging from $200 to $600, are often equipped to operate under conditions that prevent complications like infection.

The amateur, who operates in the bedroom of a private home is not able to provide sterile conditions or to follow-up with medical assistance in the event of complications.

Their "fees" range from $10 to $100 and some have been known to warn women not to "go to a doctor or a hospital if complications arise."

A teenage girl, the victim of a criminal abortion, died shortly after her admission to a hospital because she was afraid to tell the doctors that she had undergone a criminal abortion.

SGT. LaPLANT has been a member of the Baltimore Police Department for 19 years and has been in charge of the abortion squad since 1964.

A veteran of the United States Marine Corps, Sgt. LaPlante is a licensed airplane pilot and very much dedicated to police work.

Six women died in 1966, the medical examiner reported, as the result of criminal abortions.

"But many more," Sgt. La Plante explained, "are admitted to Baltimore area hospitals in critical or serious condition and most are reluctant to discuss their experiences with police officials."

THE AVERAGE criminal abortion takes less than ten minutes to perform.

In most cases the "patient" is able to go home immediately with no outward signs of having experienced an abortion.

Complications can take place in three hours or in some cases, even three weeks after the operation.

The woman is often afraid to seek competent medical help when she realizes that she is having complications and when she finally decides to go to a doctor her condition is often serious.

The majority of the cases investigated last year were reported by hospital officials who treated women for complication arising from the after effects.

In one case the sister of a potential victim called the abortion squad and told her the time and the place that her sister was to meet a "contact person" who would take her to an abortionist.

Members of the abortion squad followed the woman and were able to rush in and stop the abortion before it took place.

The potential victim was five months pregnant and even the would-be abortionist confessed that the operation would not have been successful.

POLICE WERE not able to make an arrest in this case because no abortion had taken place, but Sgt. LaPlante said the victim was fortunate that the plot was discovered before it was carried out.

All victims are not as lucky as the one in the above case.

Last year 3,200 women died in the United States at the hands of abortionists. These women will never testify in a court of law and those that do survive, Sgt. LaPlante points out, often feel a strange sense of loyalty to the abortionist.

For this reason it is difficult to get convictions in criminal cases. Ten arrests were made last year and six of these cases were brought to trial.

Though there is no maximum sentence in abortion cases, defendents are subject to a three - year prison term and a fine ranging from $500 to $1,000.

But the threat of criminal prosecution seldom acts as a deterrant to offenders.

One abortionist is known to have bragged, "I've been performing abortions for 12 years and only been arrested once."

MOST ABORTIONISTS are known to police and at one time or another have had a run-in with the law.

"I can listen to a victim explain the procedure used, Sgt LaPlante said, "and just about tell you the name of the abortionists involved."

Though all women of child-bearing ages are potential victims of a criminal abortionist, Baltimore police records indicate that the largest single group is comprised of women between the ages of 16 and 20.

In most cases the victim has never seen the abortionist. She is usually referred by a friend who "knows someone" that can "help out" for a fee.

ABORTIONISTS ARE not hard to find. Many of them work in some capacity in or around hospitals or have had around hospit avaholr sedah some exposure to medical techniques. And a friend who refers someone to an abortionist.

over half the city's 8,000 teachers for the strike.

One demand Mr. Crosby said he felt sure the union would hold firm on was salary raises.

"We have nothing against policemen and firemen," he said, but added that teachers' salaries should be "as much or more."

The Board of Estimates has approved a starting salary of $6,700 for police and Fire Departments and of $6,000 for teachers.

The teachers union repeatedly has called for a $7,500 starting salary.

ANOTHER UNION demand calls for an election to select a collective bargaining agent for Baltimore teachers.

(The American Federation of Teachers affiliate in Washington, though outnumbered, won such an election last week.)

Other demands include an adequate school budget, retroactive pay, limitation of class size and a number designed to relieve elementary teachers of non-teaching duties.

In developments this week, the union charged that teachers were being threatened and intimidated by administrative personnel to keep them from participating in the strike.

A STATEMENT from Keith Nason, national staff representative to the union, said, "principals are conducting polls designed to detect those teachers who plan to picket and others who will not cross the picket lines."

"It is known that principals are holding faculty meetings to cajole teachers into crossing picket lines," Mr. Nason said.

The union said "reports of threats and intimidation" have been received from teachers in at least 11 schools.

Mr. Crosby said the union had a nearly two-hour meeting Tuesday with representatives of the School Board, President Eli Frank Jr. and members John J. Sweeney Jr. and Sidney H. Tisley Jr. and Associate Superintendent M. Thomas Goedeke.

Another meeting is scheduled for 3:30 p.m. (today) Friday.

The union is hopeful of gaining their demands before the May 10 strike, Mr. Crosby said, but he noted a task force of nine national staff representatives is on hand in Baltimore, if it comes to a fight.

THE SCHOOL Board, at its meeting Thursday, approved a plan to keep all schools operating in the event of a strike.

The plan, outlined by Associate Superintendent M. Thomas Goedeke, in its main provision calls for non-teaching educational employees to be assigned to classrooms.

It requests school administrators to plan to handle large groups in auditoriums, cafeteria areas and libraries.

Provisions are included to stem any harrassment of teachers who cross picket lines, and to make salary deductions from teachers who strike.

Dr. Goedeke defended principals' asking teachers which ones would strike as what parents "would expect administrators to do" to keep the schools open.

In the event the schools could not stay open, the Department of Education said the school year would have to be extended to meet the minimum requirement of a 180-day session.

for? Don't just stand there. Start clipping those AFRO vote ballots and rush them to the AFRO office, 628 N. Eutaw St.

First place winner will take home $500 in cash, a nifty sum to start the summer with or put in the bank and save for a college education.

Second place winner will receive $300. Third place winner will get $200 and forth place winner will be awarded $100.

Fifth and sixth place winners will get $50 each and 7-18 place winners will each receive $25.

Preliminary hearing for Walker was postponed to May 18. Municipal Court Judge A. Jerome Diener set bail of $15,000 on each of the three charges.

Police expect to have at least one other suspect in custody by the date set Thursday.

They were cordial and offered their assistance, but we told them we had all the help we needed," the spokesman said.

Parkie Scott of Oregonia, Ohio, who led the klansmen, identified himself as a national organizer of the Klan.

He said, "thousands of klansmen" will be at the Derby, "but not necessarily in robes." He said James Venable of Atlanta, Ga., head of the invisible Empire, KKK, may attend the race.

Breathitt said he would issue the "traditional order" which provides troops annually at the Downs. But a spokesman said more than the usual 400-500 guardsmen would be on hand, along with more than 500 additional guardsmen undergoing weekend drills at the nearby state fairgrounds.

Gov. Robert McNair, the first in history to serve on a South Carolina draft board.

Draft board personnel is selected on the recommendation of the Governor to the Prrsident.

"THUS YOU HAVE A situation where governors in the south who have campaigned on segregationist tickets are choosing people to serve on draft boards," McDonald said.

He said it would be unlikely for the courts to enjoin the governor from discriminating in his selection of draft board personnel "but if the order said a board that systematically excludes colored people can't induct, it would have an impact."

practitioners "with an evil eye and an unequal hand."

In addition, the physician states, it creates unjust discrimination between persons similar circumstances and thus violates equal justice provisions of the 14th Amendment.

Finally, Dr.Rhetta says he believes that the indictments against him are legally insufficient and do not set forth essential elements of a crime.

The law itself, vague and indefinite, fails to give fair notice of what acts will be punished in the course of medical practice by a licensed physician, he challenges.

THROUGH HIS attorney, Mr. Kaufman, Dr. Rhetta requests a separate hearing on his motion to dismiss prior to trial.

If the hearing judge denies the motion on its merits, there will be no need for a trial, the defendant claims.

In anotion motion for discovery and inspection, Dr. Rhetta asks the State's Attorney's Office to produce names and addresses of all witnesses it intends to call to prove its side of the case.

Additional motions on file also request disclosure of testimony before the Grand Jury that brought indictments against him.

According to Raymond Faby, the assistant states attorney assigned to the motion trials, the State will file answers to the motions later this month.

No date has been set for a hearing on motions nor a trial, he stated.

EDITOR'S NOTE — California's laws against abortions were overturned last year.

Dr. Rhetta's motion placed before the Baltimore court came a few days after he was confined to prison April 19 by Federal Judge Orman Levels for contempt of court in an unrelated case.

The physician failed to appear to testify as a government witness in a white slavery case.

The principals were convicted and await sentence. Dr. Rhetta is scheduled to be released from the Loudoun County Jail, Leesburg, Va., May 17.

THE FIRST night, Wednesday, began with unusual enthusiasm as the capacity crowd visited booths and enjoyed free samples of food and drinks in the carnival-like atmosphere.

Noteworthy is the fact that the stove prize won by 11-year old Carolyn Knight this year, was won last year by 13-year-old daughter of William Haile, vice-president of the Longshoremen's Union (ILA) and head of the Port of Baltimore.

Mr. Boone, donor of the refrigerator and stove prizes and owner of Boone's Appliance Co. congratulated the small, pretty youngster. He and his wife also greeted cooking school guests from their booth.

Mr. Boone is responsible each year for the complete kitchen on stage from which Mrs. Mimi Roberts demonstrates various dishes and recipes.

Arthur Eley, 1312 N. Kenwood Ave., was a prize winner. Last year, members of his family won prizes so frequently the crowd remembered and this year said when his name was called, "Oh, no! Not again."

Humorous incident came when Mrs. Beulah Butts' name was called. Rising to her feet and shouting she told the crowd, "I had just said to myself I come here all the time and never win anything. And then my name was called."

Excitement rose to its highest point near the end of the show when Mrs. Elizabeth Everett won the AFRO's cash prize of $200 unexpectedly. It happened this way.

Mrs. Everett's name was called as a food basket winner.

When Mrs. Jean Williams, AFRO advertising head serving as announcer discovered all the evening's 75 baskets had been given out she said, "Well, how about some money? Would that be all right?"

Mrs. Everett replied, "Yes."

"Well come on up here darlin' and get your $200," said Mrs. Williams.

The crowd roared and cheered.

• • •

MRS. MUDIS BELLAMY, 418 N. Edgewood St., was awarded the first prize of the evening, a gold and silver phone and address book from the C and P Telephone Co.

Roland Henson, C and P manager presented the prize drawn from special slips deposited in the box at the booth before the show.

The attractive booth showed in photographs the many varied positions colored employees hold at C and P and how over the years employees have advanced to higher posts.

Roland Wheatley, Hauswald Bread supervisor and chairman of the Cooking School longtime booth holders presented members of CORE to the audience.

Each year Hauswalds gives money collected from the sale of bread of the Cooking School to support CORE in local civil rights campaigns.

A member of Walter Brooks, the director's staff, announced CORE will "be there" at Bethlehem Steel. Employees there are campaigning for fair work opportunities and other rights.

MRS. JEANETTE LEATHE, AFRO Clean Block Lady announced the opening of the 33rd Annual Clean Block Campaign to come late this month.

Dave Johnson, National Beer salesman and his attractive wife, fondly known as "Connie" were in the National Bob booth to show off the new Triple Crown pack of quarts.

Dave was among the representatives of brewing companies, soft drink firms, various food and dairy merchants who spoke during all shows.

All merchants gave generous samples to fill the food baskets eagerly looked forward to each year by regular cooking school folks, some having attended over a quarter of a century.

Wednesday night AFRO cash winners were Mrs. Everett, $200; Mrs. Hilda Robinson, $50; and $25 winners, Mesdames Marjorie W. Pressey, Yvonne Hill, Catherine White, Ora Elliott and Mr. Louis Wilson.

Youngsters whose names were called by Carlins and National Brewing firms received food baskets and sets of glasses instead of the beverages that cannot be won by anyone under the age of 21.

girl is suspected, found five separate fires of incendiary origin.

Sgt. Rawlings said the five fires, discovered shortly before 5 p.m. on Tuesday, were set in various locations throughout the three-story brick building including on a stairwell, against a wall and under a stairway.

The fires were composed of books and papers, he said.

Police were notified of the fires by Principal Mrs. Lillian Dantley, after they were discovered by a teacher.

The next day, the 11-year-old student was questioned and she will be petitioned to Juvenile Court, Sgt. Rawlings stated.

THE ARSON SQUAD also was called in on a fire last Friday at the Houston Junior High, Calhoun and Baker Sts.

Also found shortly after the end of school, the fire was discovered in a metal locker on the second floor by a janitress at the school.

The fire was confined to the locker and did only minor damage.

After questioning students, information led to the questioning of the 15-year-old five days latter, Sgt. Rawlings said.

Still being investigated is a storage room fire which occurred on Wednesday in School 452, at Biddle and McCulloh Sts.

It has not yet been determined whether the minor fire in the rear first floor room was of incendiary origin, according to the Arson Squad.

A janitor first detected the fire and police were notified.

IT'S WHAT'S HAPPENING BABY! GET WITH SMIRNOFF
It's smart to drink Smirnoff in more ways than one. Try a Smirnoff Bloody Mary, Martini or Screwdriver. Make your Screwdriver this way. Pour Smirnoff Vodka over ice. Fill glass with orange juice and stir. Delicious!
Always ask for Smirnoff VODKA It leaves you breathless®
80 & 100 PROOF. DISTILLED FROM GRAIN. STE PIERRE SMIRNOFF FLS. (DIV. OF HEUBLEIN), HARTFORD, CONN.
