'Crazy Luke' foe of Bobo Saturday

He couldn't cop Sammartino's world wrestling crown here in two tries, so "Crazy Luke" Graham Bruno will attempt to wrestle Bobo Brazil's U.S. crown from the latter's durable skull tomorrow (Saturday) night at the Civic Center.

Brazil, who has been dividing his time freely between east and west for the past year, has staunchly retained his belt against large and small —fleet and slow —all manner of foe.

He returns to Baltimore to face Graham "head on" ... and loeal fans who faithfully follow the big man know the phrase applies, for Bobo's favorite weapon when in difficulty is his "coco-butt" ... his own hard noggin crashing down on the opponent's head from his full 6'8" height.

The sunroof works even when there isn't any sun.

When you slide back the sunroof on a Volkswagen Station Wagon, the sky's the limit.

That's because odd-shaped loads you'd have trouble fitting into an ordinary station wagon can stick up out of a VW. Like a tree. Or a refrigerator (In fact, you never know what might pop up.)

And even when the sunroof's closed, the Volkswagen still gives you almost twice as much space as other wagons.

And a 4' by 4' door that lets you get right at all the room inside. (You don't have to be an engineer to move big, bulky loads in and out.)

And whenever you don't want to put big things inside your VW, you can use it for big people instead. It seats 9 of them and holds 13 pieces of luggage. All at once.

Other wagons only hold about half as much as a VW. Even if you hit the ceiling.

But after the VW's all filled up, you can still go through the roof.

Pimlico given $500 for new dental clinic

The PTA of Public School No. 233, Pimlico Elementary School, has contributed $500 to the City Health Department to aid in establishing dental health service for the students of the school and the neighborhood.

The gift was made possible through the efforts of Mrs. Lee J. Shiffman, PTA president, Mrs. Emma G. Bright, principal; and parents and teachers of the Association.

Dr. H. Berton McCauley, director, Health Department's Bureau of Dental Care, announced that the new dental clinic will be complete in the fall.

THE CLINIC will screen all children in search of dental defects and will provide dental treatment for children whose families cannot afford a private dentist.

The new dental center will be the 29th such clinic in operation in schools and health centers of the city.

ciplinary action, consistent with due process, against any student or employee of the College whose actions are in violation of this policy."

THE AFRO learned that the resolution is designed to forestall disturbances similar to those which hit the Howard University campus when head of the Selective Service Board Gen. Lewis B. Hershey spoke at the Washington school.

Primarily a preventative measure, it was explained, the edict gives the administration machinery to deal with disorders.

PREVIOUSLY THE college had no official authority to discipline persons responsible for disturbances.

Faculty members and student representatives approved the resolution following minor amendments to the original proposed decree.

Campus disturbances have hit several major universities and colleges where "controversial speakers" appeared.

MRS. RUTH LANE of 3706 Fairview Ave. divorced Maurice L. Lane, Monday, after having testified that he moved from their home after they agreed to end the marriage.

The union had lasted the nine months from September 6, 1959 to June 6, 1960.

A DIVORCE went to Mrs. Barbara M. Dyer of 5640 Belle Ave. from Clodis R. Dyer of 1417 Bond St. on grounds of voluntary separation.

During the marriage, which lasted from July 5, 1958 to February 22, 1965, three children were born. Mrs. Dyer was given custody of the children and he is to provide $10 per week for their support.

RUDOLPH TALLIAFERRO of 1307 W. North Ave. and Mrs. Lillian D. Talliaferro of 1802 Moreland Ave. were also divorced on grounds of voluntary separation.

Their marriage, which took place on Sept. 14, 1967, ended on July, 1960 the husband said.

Good father

According to records before the court he had two prior convictions on lottery, June, 1963, and December, 1965.

TESTIFYING IN his behalf, a representative from the Department of Education Special Services Division said Mr. Crooms was a good father.

She told the court the son was left in custody of Mr. Crooms at the time his divorce from the mother and special plans had been developed for the youngster's future education.

The representative also said it would be better if the father were with the child "for the youngster's best interests."

However Judge Grady took a different view.

"ON PREVIOUS! occasions you were given every warning if you again engaged in lottery action you would have to serve time.

"Your concern for your child could not have been so over-riding or you would not have taken the risk this time, just a few months later."

Following Mr. Crooms' conviction Monday his bail was raised from $1,000 to $2,000 and he was released.

THE CASE in "Numbers Court" Monday was one of two with unusual circumstances.

A 36-year-old secretary told the court when police raided her home Aug. 17, 1966 she rushed from her job and said she was the guilty one to keep them from arresting her afflicted housekeeper.

The matron, Mrs. Margaret L. Harris, 36, 1500 block N. Smallwood St. was found guilty by Judge Grady, fined $750 and costs and given a suspended two-year term.

According to testimony, at the beginning of the raid her small son ran to her office a few blocks away to get her saying the police were in the house.

She said she arrived to find three detectives ready to arrest the housekeeper.

Taking the stand in her own defense, Mrs. Harris revealed she was shown lottery slips and told if she said they were hers, the maid would not have to go to jail.

She said, "Rather than have her go to jail, I took the rap."

Judge Grady responded, "You took the rap and it's too late to change your mind now."

Morgan women athletes receive varsity awards

Thirty-three women athletes and cheerleaders were honored along with award-winning male stars at the annual Morgan State College all-sports banquet Wednesday night.

Two of the 33, qualifying as among the more versatile of the lot, were given special recognition.

TROPHIES were presented to Mary Hughes for participation in hockey, softball, basketball and volleyball, and to Carrie Stewart.

Miss Stewart captained the hockey team and competed in basketball, softball and swimming.

LARGE EMBLEMS were awarded to:

the first time that the brothers, now 5 and 27, will have been free since July 1961.

But they, and a third man in the case, Joseph Johnson, also convicted but in another trial, still must face the possibility of another rape conviction.

There has been some speculation that Linthicum would not seek a new trial because of a number of difficulties he now is encountering. For example, Linthicum's office has been unable to locate the girl who had been the chief complaining witness in the 1961 case. She is now married.

IN THE original trial, the subject of the girl's chastity was never brought up.

Forer who was not representing the Giles brothers then, indicated that the girl's alleged sexual promiscuity would figure in any new trial.

One rule of procedure, however, could thwart presentation of such evidence. In Maryland courts, the introduction of evidence concerning prior acts of unchastity is prohibited.

teaching).

He used as an example the interest over teaching children to read at the age of two. "What's the point?" he asked. "In adulthood they may be poor readers."

The evidence will not be available for 20 years, he observed.

DR. ZIGLER spoke on "Developing the Child vs Training the Intellect." He concluded by reminding his audience that the child is more than simply "a little cognitive program" — and should not be treated like a computer.

What is needed in the early years, he said, the experiences like those given in Head Start, experiences like being able to "look at a flower," rather than teaching.

"Learning is the natural condition of the child" at this age, he says. "He learns for the same reason that birds fly."

Though, he pointed out, the environment for experience learning like this is not present in deprived homes and would have to come from the school.

DR. ZIGLER, a member of the National Steering Committee for Head Start, said that this program (with its small classes and other advantages) would have to be extended through the third grade in order to have its maximum effect on the children.

Already plans are being made for extending it at least through first grade. The young Yale professor is also on the national committee to plan for this extension of Head Start.

He said studies have shown that Head Start children retain their levels of success when they enter first grade in good schools — that not all enter bad schools and lose what they have gained.

WHAT THE children have gained are: 1. a widening of their world through experiences and 2. a development of trust and concepts of mastery.

In some school systems, the children have lost when they entered first grades which were not up to the level in Head Start. Unfortunately, Head Start "can't immunize the child against the ravages of bad treatment," the educator said.

Even in these cases, the children retain some of the motivation and some of the mastery, he said.

Dr. Zigler's major interests center around mental retardation, cultural deprivation and the effects of success and failure in the early years.

Dr. Zigler withholds his praise from the many technological devices which have gained vogue in the teaching of preschoolers in recent years.

The latest is "placing a mobile over the crib," Dr. Zigler smiled. "A few years ago it was talking typewriters."

The question amounts to how much pressure should be exerted in the learning process of young children.

The new "environmental mystic" relies erroneously on a "concept of the total plasticity of the intellect," he said.

The "evidence" for these technological devices "is not convincing," he said.

A PORTION of his criticism was handed out to I.Q. tests, which he termed simply "a performance measure."

What they do test, he observed, is 1. intelligence ("somewhat"), 2. achievement and 3. motivation.

Among deprived children, "failure is the name of the game. You find children willing to settle for levels of success beneath the levels they are capable of."

What this means, among other things, is that children are not motivated to strive for success on tests.

Dr. Zigler pointed out that after just two weeks of nursery school, a child's results on an I.Q. test can be raised 10 points by a sympathetic instructor who gives him an "optimizing test," a test encouraging him toward success rather than failure.

Thus lack of intelligence is not the mark of a deprived child, but lack of motivation and experiences is.

IN SCHOOL, the "negative reaction" — a wariness of adults and lack of independence — sets in, and the behavior seems "irrational" to the teacher.

Presently the thinking seems to be to get the child who "looks irrational" out of the classroom, he said.

But what is needed is "therapeutic teaching" by a "new breed" of teachers, instead of the present fault of "not expending enough training on these teachers," Dr. Zigler noted.

What this sort of teaching would call for is "new models, in-service teaching, preservice teaching" and psychological educators, he said.
