Peanut butter battlefield aid

By CONRAD CLARK

VIETNAM — A few days ago I read a brief story on the peanut. The writer, Mrs. Willie L. Cheeks, 264 North Converse St., Spartanburg, S.C., wrote "I think that George Washington Carver should be caissified as one of the most important persons in the world because he helped make our world what it is today.

"George Washington Carver studied the peanut from which he made lotion, peanut butter, and peanut oil. Mr. Carver helped the farmers by devising a formula for crop rotation and forming a method of irrigation". The letter was in a recent issue of the AFRO.

What Mrs. Cheeks could have added about Mr. Carver's discovery is what it means to the combat soldier here fighting in the jungles of Vietnam.

* * *

AS THERE are no kitchens, stoves, or other such luxuries that are found in the home, here in the jungles, the soldier must be provided with a substitute — C-rations. There is no butter for one to use on his crackers, but instead he has a can of peanut butter.

While many great men become known by having statues and monuments built in their honor to proclaim their fame, the name and memory of George Washington Carver is daily remembered here the combat field of Vietnam.

Every time a soldier opens his box of C-rations and takes out a can of peanut butter to spread on his crackers, the name and memory of Mr. Carver is relived.

Blue lights warn drivers to slow down

Those flashing blue lights on Maryland State Patrol cars are warnings to drivers to wake up and get back to the job of driving.

The experiment, which is being used along the 42.2 miles of the JFK Beltway, is credited by patrol officers with cutting down highway accidents and may soon be extended to other area of the state.

"Most of the accidents we investigate," said Lt. J. L. Peach, "involve situations in which the driver is day dreaming or is just not paying attention to the job of driving.

"We have installed the blue lights to make people aware that a police officer is in the area. This has a tendency to make people drive with care and cut down accidents."

THE MARYLAND State Patrol feels the experiment has been successful and for that reason has ordered the blue lights as standard equipment for all of its 1967 cars.

"The JFK Beltway," Major John Corbin said, "is one of the safest toll roads in the nation.

"We used the blue lights on a temporary basis but I think we will try to use them in other areas."

CORBIN said that in the majority of accidents "driver error" is listed as the cause.

In 12 deaths last week driver error was listed as the cause in nine accidents.

New teaching ways to be presented

The third in a series of four programs that is attempting to apply the latest educational techniques in religion, as outlined by the Second Vatican Council recently, will be presented on "The Good News" on this Sunday, (at 10 a.m.) on WBAL-TV 11.

Sister Mary Annicia, who is a first grade teacher at the Cathedral School of Mary Our Queen, will discuss the wonders of nature and certain basic relicious beliefs with a group of twelve children.

During the program, Neil Blount from St. Mary's Seminary in Roland Park, will teach the students a special song entitled "Tell Me Children", designed to personally involve the youngsters in thinking and practicing their religion.
