33rd Clean Block Campaign set; registration opens

The 33rd Annual Kickoff of Clean Block Campaign is tentatively set for June 23.

Applications and registrations are being accepted now at the AFRO Clean Block office at 628 N. Eutaw St., Mrs. Jeanette B. Leath announced.

This is the question many people have asked. This year will mark the 33rd year for the Clean Block Campaign, sponsored by the AFRO-AMERICAN.

Donations from the city, business firms, churches, clubs and civic-minded citizens help build the prize fund, which is used to give token awards to winning blocks.

The campaign is open to all interested boys and girls who are able to get their blocks enrolled.

• • •

THIS YEAR the AFRO is celebrating its 75th anniversary. As an added attraction, interested citizens and city officials will be invited to tour the blocks registered in this year's campaign.

Contest for "Miss Clean Block" and "Mr. Clean Block," scrapbook and essay will also be a part of this year's drive.

"Take Pride in Your Community and Be a Good Neighbor," is the official 1967 Clean Block Slogan.

• • •

THE CLEAN BLOCK flower is Petunia, because there is always a soft delicate blossom, summer long, in many beautiful shades, and easy to care and add beauty to any box or garden.

Aims of the annual Clean Block include:

1. To develope ideals of beauty and cleanliness.
2. To have people realize how little effort it takes by everyone to keep better surroundings.
3. To develope better relationship between landlords, tenants and homeowners.
4. To see how box flowers or plants with an array of color enhance the beauty of the block.
5. To give youth something constructive to do during the summer vacation.
6. To show how youth and adults can work together in the community.
7. To make neighborhoods safer and healthier for all.
8. To develop high ideals of citizenship and patriotism.
9. To develope a wholesome respect for the rights and priveleges of others, and respect for honest labor.
10. To respect property of others.

How you can organize your block.

1. Select leaders, who are good examples of Clean Block ideals: a person who has tack, and can work with adults as well as children.
2. Choose a captain and co-captain between the ages of 8 and 19 (not married).
3. Make sure captains register names of all workers.
4. Elect a block inspector, who will see that no trash accumulates.
5. Elect a marshal, who will call out the clean-up brigade at a definite time each day.
6. Have a secretary, who will record what is done at each meeting.
6. Each block must have an adult advisor.

WEEKLY MEETINGS

1. Each block must have representatives attend the Friday morning meetings.
2. Guests from city agencies and others interested in the Clean Block program are invited guests at each meeting.
3. There is entertainment to be arranged in advance.

Ministers ask denial of liquor licenses

A group of Baltimore ministers has asked the city Liquor Board not to transfer or issue any additional licenses in the vicinity of Reisterstown Road and Grantly Avenue.

In a telegram, sent Thursday to the board, the ministers said," We oppose the establishing or the transferring of any liquor outlet in the vicinity.

"We join with the Towanda Association and its attorneys in opposing the issuing of a Neighborhood Improvement Association and its attorneys in opposing the issuing of a liquor or beer permit in that neighborhood."

The Rev. Paul Smith, the Rev. J. E. Harlee and the Rev. Pratheaus C. Land signed the telegram on behalf of the Baltimore and Vicinity Evening Conference.

Steelworkers to receive adult courses

About 1600 steelworkers will receive adult basic education through a pilot program involving the cooperation of seven major steel companies, the United Steelworkers Union of America and the Federal Government.

Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz and Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare John W. Gardner this week jointly announced the program which will involve about $1 million in Federal funds.

The format of the program was developed as a result of a joint study provided for in the 1965 contract settlement between the Coordinating Committee Steel Companies and the steel union.

The aim of the program is to lift the workers' educational levels to enable them to qualify for training and job opportunities when available.

Wilbur J. Cohen, Under Secretary of HEW and Dr. Geo W. Blackburn, executive director of the Board for Fundamental Education, a nonprofit organization, which will conduct the training, signed the contract covering the 14-month pilot program.

Unwed mothers present problems to Juvenile Court authorities

According to Juvenile Court authorities, Maryland's training schools for delinquent girls have no facilities for expectant teen-aged mothers.

Master Bernard McDermott made the announcement during a trial Tuesday as he removed a 15-year-old unwed mother from Montrose School for Girls to a foster home.

Montrose is not a lying-in home, he stated.

The lack of proper places for unwed mothers who have committed juvenile offenses came to the attention of the court when the teenager's father reported he lives alone and cannot take her in.

He stated he works around the clock and cannot care for an infant, wouldn't know what to do if he had the time.

• • •

HE ALSO testified he had spotted his daugher's boyfriend on the street at one time but did not approach the man because he was afraid of "what his gang would do."

The unborn child will be the second one credited to the man who is married, the father testified.

Mr. McDermott concluded the case by asking the Department of Public Welfare to supervise the girl in the foster home. He warned her not to associate with the man and stated she will be sent back to Montrose after the child is born.

He also stated he will ask the police department to try to apprehend the boyfriend in hopes of bringing him to trial in Criminal Court.

• • •

IN ANOTHER case involving a blond 18-year-old expectant mother who hopes to be married July 23, Master McDermott admitted he had no jurisdiction.

However, he recommended the bridegroom-to-be be contacted and asked to "move the wedding day up a few weeks."

This case came before the court as an emergency through Lt. Violet Hill Whyte who was summoned at 4:45 a.m. Tuesday to Lutheran Hospital.

Emergency room nurses said a 40-year-old woman had come there with her daughters, 15 and 18, because they had no home, no money, no food.

• • •

LT. WHYTE told the court the wife and children had been deserted.

Mr. McDermott committed the 15-year-old girl to the Department of Public Welfare to be placed in a foster home.

He suggested to the case worker present in the courtroom that DPW obtain medical aid for the mother obviously suffering malnutrition and mental strain because of the pathetic plight.

Among the various misfortunes the destitute three had suffered the past few days was eviction from their South Pulaski St. home.

Passers-by had stolen the furniture from the street and $89 worth of food obtained through Welfare emergency had disappeared mysteriously.

Baltimore yeoman home from Vietnam

"It feels pretty good being back home," said Yeoman Third Class Gregory McCrimmon, one of the lucky ones who went to Vietnam and came back untouched.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Roger (Ruth) McCrimmon, 5312 The Alameda, he is a 1964 City College graduate.

The 20-year-old former business administration student enlisted in the Navy in October, 1964. His boot training was taken at the Great Lakes Base, then he was moved to San Diego, Calif.

Last June McCrimmon was sent to Vietnam to join in naval support activities at Da Nang.

• • •

THE YOUNG seaman, due an October discharge, plans to attend Maryland State College to continue his education.

"Vietnam was a nice experience, I didn't really dislike it. But I would not like to go back for a while," Yeoman McCrimmon said. He added, "My experiences opened my eyes more to the world situation."

Reception for artist at Moore Center Sunday

A reception will be held for Philadelphia artist Frederick Campbell Sunday, 1 to 5 p.m. at the William L. Moore Foundation, 433 E. 25th St.

Campbell, whose one-man exhibit is currently ending a two-week run at the Foundation, will discuss his work and the conditions which motivated it. The series of 26 pictures depict the life of the colored American.

A native of Philadelphia were he is director of an Eastside Community Center for the Salvation Army, he took a year's leave of absence to complete the work. Mostly oils, with some pens and water colors, they range in composition from the serene to the violent.

• • •

NORMAN REEVES, chairman of the Foundation, estimated that more than 1,000 attended the opening of the exhibit.

"It's probably the most potent social commentary in the city at this time," Reeves said. A visitor from Guiana, Josiah Henry, called the exhibit "an expression of faith."

The exhibit will be opened Friday from 6:30 to 9 p.m.; Saturday, 1 to 5 p.m., as well as Sunday. The public is urged to attend the reception.

Douglass-African musuem gets $250,000 Ford grant

The Frederick Douglass Institute of Negro Arts and History, which sponsors the Museum of African Art, has been awarded a $250,000 grant by the Ford Foundation.

Covering a three-year period, the grant, which must be matched from other sources, will help support the Institute's educational program on the cultural and historical background of the colored American.

Warren M. Robbins, founder and director of the Institute, announced that the grant brings the total of funds received or pledged during the past six months to more than $375,000.

OTHER PRINCIPAL grants received during this period have been $25,000 each from the Rockefeller Brothers Fund and the Old Dominion Foundation, for refurbishment of the museum building at 316 - 318 A Street., NE. Capital Hill; and $15,000 from the Kress Foundation, in support of the art education program on the Museum of African Art, including a special exhibit on contemporary Afro-American sculpture on 20th century Western art.

A $26,000 grant from the U.S. Office of Education, in the District of Columbia Superintendent of Schools, will be used by the Institute to develop an Interdisciplinary Resources Center for Washington teachers and pupils and to serve a prototype for other school systems throughout the country.

THE INSTITUTE, together with the Museum of African Art, occupies the first residence in Washington of the 19th century abolitionist orator, publisher and government official, Frederick Douglass, regarded as the "Father of the Civil Rights Movement."

Opening its doors to the public in May, 1964 as the Museum of African Art, with four galleries set up provisionally in one half of the Douglass building, the Institute now comprises twelve galleries with exhibits on the role of the race in American history in addition to 300 works of African sculpture, some close to modern Western art showing African derivation.

More than 35,000 visitors from every state in the Union and numerous foreign countries have visited the exhibits, with approximately 5,000 groups of school children, university students, government officials and members of civic and church organizations used today);

'He has left his children a legacy. . . the AFRO-AMERICAN . . . and John Jr., has followed in his footsteps. . .'

FOLLOWING NUMEROUS other tributes, the honoree, with aid of a cane, walked ramrod straight to the microphone.

Tears came as he began by saying 'It is mighty hard for me to stand here after all these magnificent thoughts expressed by people I've come to love through the years. . .

And, then, as though he had received an inner push, he rallied, abandoned his cane and in a strong voice read his speech of thanks . . .

'I am very humble. . . very happy, very proud. . . dated. You have selected little 'ole me for this first and original award . . . it is more glorious to receive honors while alive. . . '

• • •

AFTER HIS SPEECH, he turned to his wife seated at a front table and cited her for her 'inspiration and help these past 38 years.'

There was unrestrained laughter when he revealed,' Her constancy stands out when she sees that I follow good taste in my clothing and grooming.

'No longer than this week, she said my old tuxedo had to go. So, tonight I am adorned in a new tuxedo. . .'

Others who brought greetings were: Noble James Richardson, 32nd, Imperial Deputy of the Oasis; Noble John A. Hawkins, 32nd, Imperial Deputy of the Desert; Noble Lewis J. Brown, 32nd, Illustrious Potentate, Jerusalem Temple; Hon. Samuel T. Daniels, 33rd, Most Worship Grand Master, Prince Hall Masons;

Also John H. Murphy 3rd, president, AFRO-AMERICAN Co., Dt. Maidella Storey, Illustrious Commandress, Jerusalem Court; Thomas J. Austin, a longtime Carey St. neighbor; and Howard H. Murphy, who introduced the honoree's family.

Music was by Noble Rogers G. Moore, 32nd, Noble E. Jerry Williams, 33rd Imperial Advisor, supplied dinner music; and nobel Sherman Mason, 32nd.

The invocation was by the Rev. Mr. Bascom. His associate minister, the Rev. John M. Day, gave the benediction—B. M. MOSS

From the resoltuion, he hopes will come a program in which agencies can "take people and then give the training to upgrade them."

He said agencies "have made provisional appointments before" and he has seen the procedure work well in agencies like the Bureau of Building Inspection.

Likewise the number of applicants should increase "because people will know they're going to be hired."

• • •

MR. PARKS pointed out that Federal funds are available for such job-training programs.

His resoltuions states that the serious lack of employees "could be remedied if the city would combine the use of temporary employees and job-training programs.

"The understanding would be that the temporary employee taken on without having passed a Civil Service examination would be required to complete a job-training program and then to pass the Civil Service examination covering his particular position."

Charred furniture and clothing lined the sidewalks outside the corner house.

Four apartments in the upper stories of the house incurred only smoke damage as no one was injured by the fire.

Mrs. Brown is an IBM operator, who also teaches data processing in Dunbar High School evening classes.

Program to aid migrant workers

BATESVILLE, Miss. (NPI) — A new migrant worker training program will be directed by a committee elected by local residents.

Some 18 to 20 non-whites and about 10 whites are expected to serve on the board of Mid-State Opportunities, Inc., which will offer year-long basic education and prevocational training for 300 migrant workers.

THERE WERE loud 'amens,' and nodding of heads when the three ayens was mentioned. Later, other speakers alluded to the honoree's ayem calls.

'Brother Jack' called when others were sleeping because he couldn't sleep himself.

To which another quipped, 'If he just wouldn't call at 3 a.m.!'

Another side of the ayem calls was given by the guest speaker, Hon. Roscoe (Rocky) C. Washington, 33rd, Shrine Imperial Potentate.

Noble Washington flew from Los Angeles to present the honoree with the original certificate of merit, (only one of its kind).

He said: 'I made a special trip to be here tonight to honor the oldest living Past Imperial Potentate. . . my friend whom I've admired down through the years. . . One who has had a rare devotion to Prince Hall Masonry.

With reference to the 3 a.m. calls he gets, Noble Washington had the banquet guests in stitches when he reported: 'I enjoy every minute in Jack's presence, in person and over the telephone.

You people here in Baltimore are fortunate. When he calls me in Los Angeles at three in the morning, he reverses the charges.

Right now I'm going to have to go to the finance committee and hope they will consider and reimburse me for what appears to be an excessive phone bill!'

A LIFETIME friend, Bishop Howard Z. Plummer, Church of God,came from Portsmouth, Va., with his wife.

He said: One can not speak of him without remembering his father, John H. Murphy Sr. who was the prime motivation in the life of our home.

He told the court his German Shepard dog was in his parked truck at the curb and the woman objected to his pup's looking out the window and attracting her dog.

"She called me a skunk and reached in a paper bag she was carrying and threw a tomato at me," he stated.

He added, "she tore my new shirt and then she told her big dog 'Go ahead and bite him.'"

In describing Mrs. Zukerman's attitude toward him, Mr. Wagner stated, "She was ferocious and really carried on."

IN OTHER "numbers court" action Wednesday, Judge Grady handed out a one-year suspended sentence and $1,000 fine to Claude Sydnor, 42, 3400 block Grantley Rd., a 20-year employee at a sugar refinery.

Mr. Sydnor was apprehended by plainclothesmen in March with lottery paraphernalia on him that indicated $819 in play.

Asking the court for mercy he said he would lose his longtime job if he were found guilty.

• • •

HIGHEST fine imposed was against Mrs. Mildred M. Smith, 800 block N. Central Ave., who received a one-year sentence suspended and $2,000 total fine, $1,000 on each of two counts.

Mrs. Smith was arrested at her home Feb. 3. Rackets Squad members said they found paraphenalia indicating $2,657 in play.

The Forest Park High youngster said he was afraid to jump while the vehicle was going so fast. He said he did not know the boys who agreed to give him a ride to the shopping center.

JUDGE HAMMERMAN said he wanted the 10th grader to complete the school year but hoped he would learn during the probation period to resist temptation to ride in unknown cars and associate with unknown persons.

The youth denied any knowledge of the 11 car keys found on the front seat of the vehicle. Police reported they would fit any General Motors car.

He said the tear gas gun converted to shoot bullets was his but explained that he had found it and was carrying it for protection.

• • •

ALSO SPARED to complete school which ends in three weeks was "a very good 8th grade student" in trouble for the first time.

Judge Hammerman postpone disposition of the case until June 16 after classes are over when the 14-year-old youth will return to court to hear his fate.

The jurist said he may send him to Boys Village for the summer and he may not, "depending."

Meantime, the youngster is to stay away from undesirable persons, undesirable places such as poolrooms.

However, two purse snatchers, ages 10 and 11, were sent without delay to Boys Village for their daring escapade in an alley near the downtown department store complex off the 100 block Eutaw and Howard Sts.

Advised of his rights, the 10-year-old child took the 5th Amendment and refused to talk.

However, the 11-year-old "told it all," stating attempts to snatch other purses had been made "but missed."

The youngsters were apprehended after they were chased by two 15 year-old girls. One of them caught the 10-year-old and held him for the police. The other kept her assailant in sight until officers appeared on the scene.
