N.Y. golf club's refusal to sell to Jackie appealed

NEW YORK — A major civil rights organization has announced it will appeal the State Commission for Human Rights dismissal of a complaint of discrimination filed by a group of prominent colored persons, including former baseball star Jackie Robinson, against an upstate country club.

RONNIE WILSON

Says: "He's always happy to be of service to you in your selection of a new or safety tested used car. Stop in to see him for that deal."

Robert L. Carter, general counsel of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, filed the original complaint with the anti-bias agency in January, 1966, following charges by Robinson and Harlem banker William R. Hudgins that they were discriminated against when they sought to purchase the $1,400,000 Putnam Country Club in Mahopac, N.Y.

• • •

"WE RECEIVED a notice on May 1, 1967, dismissing our complaint," Carter said in a letter announcing his appeal to Commission Chairman George H. Fowler.

"This came after the complaint had been lingering in the commission for over a year."

The complaint accused the country club of withdrawing the fashionable layout from the market after it learned that the prospective purchasers of the 136-acre, 18-hole club were colored.

Commissioner Fowler assigned SCHR Vice Chairman Bernard Katzen to investigate the charge of discrimination on Jan. 22, 1966. Sixteen months after the complaint had been filed, Katzen announced that the charge was dismissed "for lack of jurisdiction and a determination whether probable cause exists to credit the allegation of the complaint."

• • •

CARTER SAID his organization was appealing "on the ground that the statement of the law in the opinion (by the Commissioner) is in error. It attempts to find ways, means, and definitions which would restrict and bar the State Commission from taking action."

Much of the complaint is based on statements, letters and conversations filed by Jack Ratiner, a real estate broker, whom Hudgins and Robinson, both officials of the Freedom National Bank, contacted to negotiate purchase of the club after they noticed a "for sale" advertisement in the Wall Street Journal.

• • •

THE COMPLAINT also quoted a conversation between Ratiner and a country club board member, who allegedly said, "You must be out of your mind to think that we would sell this club to colored buyers. It's out of the question."

Under rules governing the State Commission for Human Rights, Carter said, complainants have the right to apply to the commission chairman for a review of the dismissal or the complaint.

Conyers sees Romney bid as 'problem'

Michigan Congressman John Conyers Jr. believes that the 90th Congress can find a way out of the current Adam Clayton Powell "dilemma" if it will change its attitudes and seat the ousted New York lawmaker on the basis of his re-election.

"We have worked ourselves into a Constitutional dilemma and unless we seat Mr. Powell New York will re-elect him every 60 days until 1968."

Conyers, a second-term Democrat from Detroit, Mich., held a brief press conference on the campus of Morgan State College Tuesday night.

• • •

HE WAS scheduled to address the closing session of The Institute for Political Education but he arrived on the campus an hour late.

An outspoken critic of the Administration's posture on Vietnam, Conyers said that he "never has and never will vote for supplemental appropriation measures to finance the war.

"I have always been for the immediate and peaceful resolution of the Vietnam issue," Conyers said.

Conyers said he feels that the possible candidacy of Michigan George Romney presents a "real problem" for the Democrats.

"Romney is saying enough of the right things at the right time and he could present the new image for the GOP."

Morgan College president Martin D. Jenkins, professors Benjamin Quarles and Dr. G. James Fleming received awards from the Institute of Scholars for their support and guidance of the program which has been sponsored for the past eight years by the Ford Foundation.

President Jenkins asked for a moment of silent prayer, at the close of the assembly, in memory of the father of Elbert Bishop who died Tuesday.

Bishop, who presided at the program, stayed in Baltimore to participate in the program before going to South Carolina to make funeral arrangements for his father.

King can't make march here Tuesday

Civil rights leader Dr. Martin Luther King has told the Activists for Fair Housing that he will be unable to participate in a fair housing march on Memorial Day because he will be attending a peace conference in Geneva, Switzerland.

In a letter to William Haskins, the Nobel Peace Prize winner expressed his regret over not being able to take part in the demonstration which will commemorate the 145th anniversary of the hanging of Denmark Vesey, a slave abolitionist who was hanged in 1882.

A spokesman for the fair housing group said that he hoped Dr. King would find time during the summer to lead a fair housing march in Baltimore.

The march, scheduled for March 30, will begin at 1 p.m. at the Community Center of the Union Baptist Church.

The march will end at the Sun Life Building in the Charles Center where Joseph Meyerhoff has his offices.

The Activists charge that Meyerhoff, a builder and active civic leader, refuses to integrate his real estate holdings.

The march is one of a series of recent demonstrations aimed at Meyerhoff.

A number of their organizations have announced that they will take part in the march.

They include U-JOIN, The Ministerial Alliance, the Prince Hall Masons and the National Alliance of Postal Employees.

Memorial Day harness 2-bill

WASHINGTON

Harness racing fans can witness a Memorial Day doubleheader at Rosecroft, while paying no admission charge.

There will also be a drawing-for-a-free-Ford-Mustang in the big harness racing twin bill.

With the first half of the twin bill beginning at 1:30 p.m., harness racing will return to its old daytime tradition. Until 1946, it was a daylight sport. Admission will be free.

The evening program gets under way at 8:20 p.m., but fans who care to stay can do so without paying. Both bills will feature daily doubles and Quinellas.
