Dr. Paquin also called a meeting for today (Friday) at 10:30 a.m. for the BTU; PSTA, school officials and the Principals Association of Baltimore to meet with a rep presentative of the American Arbitration Association to help lay more of the ground rules (including who shall vote) for the election.

Dr. Paquin observed that the two rival groups were unable to agree on anything in yesterday's meeting "except that the cost of the proposed election should be assumed by the School Board."

Union representative Joseph Cascella said his position in the meeting was that the whole election should be turned over to the American Arbitration Association.

When arguments over other aspects of the election arose, the union left, with Mr. Cascella stating the union "would agree to using white pebbles like the ancient Greeks." if the election were held before September.

H. ORVILLE BERWICK, executive secretary of the PSTA, said the association had been willing to resolve other questions on the agenda, including the use of the American Arbitration Association, when the union walked out.

Later in the day, at the afternoon School Board meeting, Mr. Berwick heatedly argued that the School Board had neglected colored children in inner city schools "to build palaces on the range of Baltimore, he said it showed:

Citing the National Education Association report on "I. The Schools have deteriorated. 2. The poorest schools are in colored ghettos serving the largest number of Baltimore's pupils."

He said the Board had not until this year made realistic budget proposals "in terms of the needs of all pupils.

"THE PSTA," he continued, "rejects an attitude which presupposes that colored schools must, by definition, be inferior because they are colored schools.

"Obviously the School Board feels otherwise," he said, citing examples of "the Board's lack of concern for the majority of pupils who happen to be colored."

He lashed out at the Board's thinking for building an $18 million high school complex on the rim of the city while 35 years ago in a report 45 years ago, are schools, declared inadequate kept open and allowed to "rot."

The City Council is expected to give final approval to the ordinance allowing the teacher election on Monday night.

when realistic multi-racial books are available."

THE LISTING covers the books of 28 publishers, with a brief description of each elementary book. It covers such subjects as arithmetic, english, health, history, music, science, social studies and spelling as well as readers and story books.

There will be a nationwide distribution to the approximately 1,500 branches, state conferences, youth, councilles and college chapters of the association. Additional distribution will be made throughout the country to a selected listing of local superintendents of schools, local boards of education, professional teachers' organizations, state departments of education, state boards of education and public libraries.

Copies will also be made available to teacher training colleges and institutions; preSchool and Head Start program directors; to civic, religious and labor groups, and to local and state human relations agencies.

Copies of the "Integrated School Books" listing are available to the general public through the National Office of the NAACP. Single copies cost $1 each; 10-25 copies at 75 cents each; 25-50 copies at 60 cents each; and 50 or more copies at 50 cents each.

pective couple had a storybook character.

"I've known him all my life," Miss Brooks said, "we lived near each other when we were young."

They had been going together for several years and gotten engaged a year and a half ago.

They both worked binding books for the same graphic arts company.

"I never knew him to take dope," his bride-to-be said.

Likewise his family said they did not know if William used narcotics, but his mother, Mrs. Margaret Carter, conceded her son had not "been around the house much anymore."

She was at the party, but "didn't know it was for a marriage" until she got there.

"All we knew was that it was to be a big party," said a brother, James Barnes, who also went to the party with his wife.

WHEN POLICE learned the identity of her son, they visited the mother, but put off telling her, fearing for her high blood pressure,—until they could find another member of the family to tell her.

Western District police said one of the men who brought the body was a cab driver, from nurses descriptions.

But it is not unusual for cab drivers to "perform the errand of mercy" by taking someone to the hospital and not making themselves known, police said, so they are not involved in police procedure.

The deceased is survived, in addition to his mother, by his father, Gene Lyles; five brothers; one sister; and nieces and nephews. He also is survived by a young daughter.

THE MEDICAL Examiner's Office said determination of cause of death is still pending until final results of an autopsy are returned next week.

Funeral services will be held at the Halstead Funeral Home, 1206 W. North Ave., Saturday at 1 p.m. Burial will follow at Mt. Calvary Cemetery.

The family will receive friends at the funeral home Friday night from 8 to 9.

be, the next line from left to right, insofar as is actually come time and again as Mrs. Murphy waged war against many civic and community problems, whether in the courts or with public officials.

Among victories remembered by Cherry Hill was her 1963 fight for a seat on the Community Action Commission.

OTHER THAN being a daring crusader, the wife of a leading attorney, mother of five children and grandmother, who is Mrs. Murphy?

She is first of all the director of Community Services of the Cherry Hill Community Church which she helped found. An elder, she is active in all areas of the church.

A native of Boston, Mass., she was reared and educated in Wilmington, Del., a graduate of Temple University School of Commerce and former student at the University of Maryland.

THE CLUBS and organizations to which Mrs. Murphy gives or has given responsible leadership are: President, Lawyers' Wives; Secretary, Presbyterian Interracial Council; Secretary, Citizens' Committee for Voter Registration; Sub-Committee Chairman, Staffing Patterns and Procedures of the Citizens' School Advisory Committee appointed by the Board of School Commissioners.

As Democratic candidate for the Baltimore City Council Sixth District in 1963, Mrs. Murphy ranked first among independent candidates and seventh in a field of thirteen.

Also the Urban League, NAACP Life Member, President Hospital Guild, Board of Trustees of Morgan Christian Center, Maryland State Conference of Social Welfare, League of Women Voters, CPHA, and Cherry Hill Coordinating Council.

Among the honors received by Mrs. Murphy for distinguished and meritorious service to the Metropolitan Community are: Citation — "Strengthening Family Life and Living Project." Urban League, 1962; "Distinguished Certificate of Merit" — Citizens School Advisory Committee, 1964; "Volunteers Service Certificate" — Citizens Committee for Voter Registration, 1964.

She was featured nationally as one of the six "Inner City Missionaries" in the official journal of the Women's Division of the Board of National Missions of the Presbyterian Church and was given the Maryland League of Women's Clubs Sojourner Truth Award.

The Murphy children are William Jr., a Massachusetts Institute of Technology graduate and a second year law student at the University of Maryland; Mrs. Madeline Rabb, wife of Dr. Madeline Rabb, the Chicago opthomologist; Laura, 11; Houston, 14 and Arthur, 17.

Mrs. Davis, who owns two other wigs costing about $125 each, said she hopes other people benefit from her experience and know not to send in for the "free" wig.

—Mitchell expects $5 million program to be approved today by D.C. office

A $5 million dollar program aimed at wiping out the problems of hard-core unemployment in Baltimore's inner city is scheduled to receive final approval in Washington today (Friday).

Parren J. Mitchell, director of the Community Action Agency, said that the program, which is similar to the one in Cleveland and Washington which have already been funded, will begin operation in Baltimore in the latter part of June.

Officially titled the Concentrated Employment Program, the proposal will provide close cooperation with business, industry and government in making jobs available to target city residents.

The Community Action Agency of Baltimore has been designated as the sponsor for the CEP.

THE TARGET area, inner-city of Baltimore, has been divided into two segments — one to the east and the other to the west of the central business district but extensive exceptions were made to include demolition areas and pockets of high unemployment.

CEP will attempt to recruit, train and place 2,000 persons initially and 3,000 persons during the first year of operation.

One CEP job center will be established in Baltimore where a wide range of manpower services can be provided to enrollees.

The program will operate from the fourth floor of the former Baltimore Polytechnic Institute and will have a staff of 60 professional and non-professional workers.

A CEP director, who will receive an annual salary of $15,000 and a deputy director who will receive a salary of $12,000, are expected to be selected within the next two weeks.

THE PLANS, which must also be approved by the City Board of Estimates will include:

1. General development and pre-vocational education to be conducted by the Baltimore City School System for 500 enrollees.

2. On the job training to be operated by Opportunities Industrialization Center, Inc. for 400 people

3. A neighborhood youth core to be staffed with an addition of 250 persons to the present staff of 500. An additional 250 people will also be assigned to this staff during the summer months.

4. The "New Careers" unit of the program will attempt to employee 300 people in local, state and city government jobs.

5. The Sharp Street Methodist Church will serve as the sponsor for a neighborhood improvement program. The work experience and training plan is designed to provide construction skills for 150 workers during the year through neighborhood park improvement projects.

MITCHELL DEFINES "hard-core unemployment" as situations in which able bodied individuals who have the will to work but have been unemployed for a year or more find it difficult to find steady jobs.

The CAA has asked the city to help finance the program by a sum not to exceed $250,000. The federal government is expected to finance the program by a grant of $1,486,254.

Western Electric, Westinghouse and General Motors are expected to take part in CEP.

At a Wednesday morning interview Mitchell said the success of CEP will depend to a large extent on the support it gets from the community.

"We will need the support of all businessmen and industries in the area," Mitchell said.

required or needed, by virtue of the number of names in each district.

"I am prepared to issue a Writ of Mandamus compelling the Board of Election Supervisors to so arrange the names.

"I think everybody has an equal opportunity. They are all on the same row. No favoritism. No obvious markings. No delineation of how one would have the advantage over the other.

"I think that is to me what they want to do in the law, and if you start with an 'A', you wind up with 'Z.' If you start with an 'A at this point, on the lefthand side, and run to 'Z' over here, nobody is favored.

"In this instance you have no confusion with any other names, and other candidates, any other particular office that is being aspired to."

JUDGE WOLFE was sustained by the Maryland Court of Appeals. Speaking for the court Chief Judge Hall Hammond held:

"For reasons to be stated in an opinion to be filed later, it is this 30th day of May, by the Court of Appeals of Maryland that the order of the Superior Court of Baltimore City appealed from, dated May 15, 1967, be, and it is hereby, affirmed with costs."

The verdict, Judge Hammond told the AFRO, only applies to the Con Con Election and a formal, written opinion will be issued at the end of this month.

new will name another colored man to fill the school board position.

This is the way the situation developed.

Earlier this year the Princess Anne NAACP and the Men for Progress Club sent Miles' name to Annapolis as a possible appointee to the school board.

Miles, a life-long Republican, received the notice of commission in the mail on May 27. It had been signed on April 25.

WHEN MILES went to qualify Wednesday afternoon, he was told by Somerset county clerk Theodore Phoebus that the commission had been rescinded.

Herbert Thompson, Agnew's press aide, said that one of the appointment, the governor was reminded that he had turned down the appointment of a 70-year-old Arundel County woman to the school board because the post has a tenure of six years and she would be 76 when the term expired.

Miles would have been 78 when his term of office would have been up.

THERE IS little chance that Miles will attempt to make an issue out of the gubernatorial snafu.

"It's like this," Miles told the AFRO, "I am not looking just to better myself. I am interested in the welfare and future of our people and if they think that it's best for me to stand aside, I'll do so."

A number of Somerset organizations had expressed sharp criticism lately over the possible appointment of a colored citizen who they felt would not function in the best interest of the colored community.

The submission of Miles' name was viewed as one way of blocking the appointment of a candidate proposed by some GOP officials.

Agnew's aide, Dr. Gilbert Ware, visited Somerset County last week and is expected to provide the governor with the name of an individual who will be acceptable to the Somerset organizations.

Somerset has had federal funds cut off because of a failure to meet desegregation requirements.

Racial breakdown under new school plan

By ROGER J. NISSLY

A report released Thursday by School Superintendent Laurence G. Paquin revealed what the racial complexion will be in the 10th grades of the city's high schools next year.

Dr. Paquin had the report prepared at the request of the School Board to study the effects of a plan it had passed to eliminate split sessions next year.

Questioned by the Ad Hoc Committee for Good Government were what effects the plan would have on integration at the three schools in which it was implemented — Western, Edmondson and Northern.

The board approved the plan before knowing how it would have affected school integration. It still is to be determined what the enrollments would have been without the new plan.

At Western, to be located in the new $18 million complex with Poly next year, 47.7 percent to 37.9 percent drop nearly 10 per cent from 57.7 per cent to 37.9 per cent.

Dr. Paquin said, as he had predicted earlier, that a "major factor" in this percentage drop was the "relocation of Western from the inner-city to a site on the outskirts of the city."

THE PLAN adopted by the School Board allowed for all students to receive their first choice schools, except in the case of these three schools which would have been overcrowded.

In these students received their second choice schools if they selected ones that would be operating under capacity. The plan was coupled with a mild form of districting.

About 10 percent of the total ninth-grade students received their second choices.

But Dr. Paquin pointed out that under this plan, for the first time since 1962, the school system would not need split shifts at any of the high schools.

AT EDMONDSON the nonwhite percentage in the 10th grade will rise from 93.4 this year to 96.9.

At Northern, integration is bettered, with the non-white figure rising from 14.6 to 17.3.

Non-white percentages also will rise at Poly (from 14.9 to 18.3) and at Mergenthaler (from 17.3 to 24.3).

The projections of the tenth grades for next year show two schools at 100 percent colored populations, Carver and Dunbar, and three at nearly that figure, Forest Park, Douglass and Edmondson.

The figures show that of those who selected Western, 209 white students were given their second choice compared with 186 colored students.

The majority of these, 321, will go to Eastern. Another 124 will be divided among Southern, Dunbar, Forest Park and Douglass.

CIVIC GROUPS composing the Ad Hoc Committee for Good Government feared the Fence, signs promised at Cherry Hill site

A Monday night protest meeting in Cherry Hill resulted in promises from City officials to seal off the abandoned dump area where a 9-year-old girl drowned last week.

The meeting was called by the Cherry Hill Coordinating Council and Cherry Hill citizens following the death, last Tuesday, of Vanessa Williams, a student at Cherry Hill Elementary School.

The girl fell into a pool containing four feet of water while chasing turtles about a block from her home in the 800 block Seagull Ave.

The dump is on City property in the 3300 block of Reedbird Ave.

ACCORDING To Mrs. Sarah Bundy, president of the Council, the two-hour meeting was attended by State Senators William Hodges and Harry McGuirk, both from the Sixth District. The two legislators have given their full support to the citizens' attempt to eliminate the hazardous conditions at the site, Mrs. Bundy said.

JAMES W. AXELROD, representing the Department of Public Works, promised the group the immediate erection of a fence around the area and the posting of "Danger" signs.

A Department of Sewers spokesman assured the protestants that arrangements would be made to fill in the low areas in which stagnant ponds are created following rainfalls.

More than 200 signatures had been affixed to a petition calling for immediate remedies to prevent further tragedies.

Bill Strayhorn top Duke aide, cancer victim

NEW YORK (UPI) — William (Billy) Strayhorn, composer and arranger for Duke Ellington, died Wednesday of cancer at the Hospital for Joint Diseases. He was 51 years old.

Strayhorn, nicknamed "Sweet'pea" by Lena Horne years ago, wrote with and worked out arrangements for Ellington since he joined the musician's organization in 1939.

ON HIS own, he wrote such songs as "Take the A Train," "Lush Life" and "Chelsea Bridge."

Strayhorn was born in Dayton, Ohio, on Nov. 29, 1915, and was privately educated in Pittsburgh. Later he moved to New York, where he was living at the time of his death.

the rank of captain, was second in command to Maj. Gavin in the Investigation Bureau.

A widely-acclaimed investigator, Capt. Mello is considered a logical successor to Maj. Gavin. He may, however, be by-passed.

The AFRO has learned that citizens and public officials plan to urge Commissioners Donald D. Pomerleau and Gov. Spiro T. Agnew to elevate Capt. Mello to the vacancy left by Major Gavin.

Currently there is one other major of color within the department. He is Maj. William A. Harris.

As head of the Department's Community Relation Division, Maj. Harris' function deals more with promoting a better relationship between the department and the community than line policing.

MOVING INTO the high echelon, in the vacated post as one of the Police Department's three deputy commissioners, is Lt. Col. Wade Poole.

Lt. Col. Poole, now chief of the Traffic Division, becomes deputy commissioner of operations.

Previously he was commander of the Western District, then the Central District, and was made a deputy chief over four of the districts under the recent police reorganization.

COMMISSIONER POMERLEAU also announced these promotions in the shift necessitated by Deputy Commissioner Deuchler's retirement:

Maj. Joseph A. Mahrer, now in charge of four districts in the Patrol Division, replaces Lt. Col. Poole as head of traffic.

Capt. George C. Schnabel, commander of the Central District replaces Maj. Mahrer as deputy chief in charge of four districts in the Patrol Division with the rank of major.

LT. EDWIN L. LAWRENCE, of the Western District, was promoted to captain and given command of the Central District, replacing Capt. Schnabel.

Lt. Col. Poole's promotion makes him one of the three deputy commissioners directly responsible to Commissioner Pomerleau.

He will be in charge of the "guts" of the police force, operations, under which come traffic, patrol and the Criminal Investigation Division.

The other two deputy commissioners are Ralph G. Murdy, for administration, and Thomas J. Keyes, for services.

and use the gunfire to flush SNCC members out into the streets.

EARLIER IN the day at a federal court hearing, Norace said SNCC was planning to organize colored gangs trained in judo and the use of firearms to create riots in Nashville.

He said an investigation he conducted in 1966 disclosed detailed plans of the newly-formed SNCC chapter's "Operation Nashville."

The officer said the SNCC project included plans to organize juvenile gangs, plans to teach these gangs, judo, karate and the use of firearms, and instructions for colored persons to survey stores in non-white areas to determine which ones were owned by whites so they would know "which ones to burn."

Norace also testified that SNCC planned to instruct rioters in the creation and use of molotov cocktails.

BROWN SAID Nashville's selection as a target area for SNCC meant the organization would "meet aggression by any means we find necessary."

Asked when he would return to Nashville, Carmichael said this would be up to Brown since he is the new SNCC administrator.
