Newsman Conard Clark returning from Vietnam

VIETNAM — U.S. Army Specialist 5 Conrad Clark, a senior combat correspondent with the 4th Infantry Division, is expected to return stateside in June.

A former WW II correspondent in the Pacific Theatre of Operations, Clark has been in Vietnam since September of last year. He is now on his fourth tour of duty in the Pacific. His last two tours were in Korea and Japan (1959-1962).

Prior to his being sent to Vietnam last year, he served about two years in Europe as an Information Specialist with Taunus District in Frankfurt, Germany (July 1964-May, 1966). From Germany he was assigned to the Information Office, U.S. Army Training Center, Fort Campbell Ky., and after two months there left for the 4th Infantry Division at Fort Lewis, Wash. He spent less than three weeks there, before leaving for Vietnam.

DURING THE eight months that he has been in Vietnam he covered the actions of the infantry units in the field.

He will be in the states on a leave and will attend the annual national convention of the NAACP in Boston, July 10-15. He will also make a ten-day visit to the Virgin Islands, following the convention.

Two months ago he made a five-day visit to Hong Kong, and while in that British Colony appeared on an NBC TV broadcast, where he was interviewed by the local representative.

A correspondent for home news organs, Clark is a member of the Washington Press Club. A former U.N. correspondent, he has been reporting both national and international news for more than thirty years.

War flares anew in Middle East

By WALTER LOGAN
United Press International

The Middle East war flared up today with renewed fury despite cease-fire agreements by the chief belligerents.

Egypt charged that Israeli armed forces were attacking "west of the Suez Canal" — in Egypt itself. Israel denied this but said Egypt and Syria had opened coordinated ground and air attacks on two fronts.

Iran's Baghdad radio implored the Arabs to keep fighting the Israeli enemy.

An Israeli communique issued in Tel Aviv said Egyptian forces in the Sinai Peninsula had begun another counter attack and were beaten back. This was a last desperate move because Israeli air and armored columns had almost obliterated President Gamal Abdel Nasser's tank and air forces.

THE SYRIAN attack appeared to be the most serious threat.

An Israeli communique said the Syrian army "launched a full-scale attack along the entire front" in the north of Israel, using tanks and planes.

The Israelis said Syrian planes bombed the Israeli city of Tiberias on the southwestern shores of the Sea of Galilee. A spokesman said Syrian infantry and armor, with artillery support, struck several Israeli villages.

The attack followed an artillery barrage which struck Israeli villages all along the border with Syria, from Ma'ayan Barukh, at the very northern tip of Israel to Tel Ktazir and Ha-On, on the southeastern shore of the Sea of Galilee.

Israel and Jordan agreed to a cease-fire Wednesday and the guns ceased on that front. A dramatic announcement in the United Nations Security Council at 3:20 p.m. EDT Thursday said Egypt accepted after its armored forces were savagely mauled in the Sinai. At 12:40 a.m. EDT today, the U.N. said Syria agreed to the cease-fire.

Israeli Foreign Minister Abba Eban had announced Israel would accept whenever its enemies did. But the Israelis made it clear they would fight back if attacked.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — U.S. officials were caught by surprise today when fighting broke out anew in the Middle East after both sides had agreed to a United Nations cease-fire.

—Dr. Paquin to push

great a jump — an average of 12 schools a year.

DR. PAQUIN, noting the past opposition of teachers groups to changes in assignment, said that for next year he would "try like the devil" to "accelerate" this integration pace.

He said he had been "putting the pressure on" his administrative staff to move faster in this area.

He insisted he was becoming "impatient with the (teachers') point of view which puts their own personal convenience ahead of what serves as the higher priority — the youngsters who require their services."

Generally in city school systems, he said, teachers with seniority feel they can ask for and should get reassignment to more favored positions (on the basis of nearness to their homes or out of the inner city).

DR. PAQUIN argued with one of the Public School Teachers Association recommendations that all new teachers be assigned where they are most needed, implying the inner city schools.

The case is just the opposite, he argued, with the more experienced teachers needed in the inner city schools.

As an analogy, he pointed out that an intern would not be assigned to a case involving serious operation.

He also pointed out that integration of school staffs was not one of the demands of the Baltimore Teachers Union when it sought a collective bargaining election.

MAKING THE problem even more difficult, the superintendent had on his desk a report showing that most new ly-recruited teachers, rather than receive assignments to inner city schools, would "simply go to other institutions."

In some schools marked progress has been made, according to the superintendent.

The Polytechnic Institute "is no longer liiy white," with an integrated administrative staff and an 18.3 percent of colored students in its 10th grade for next year.

Likewise the percentage of non-white students in the 10th grade at Mergenthaler Vocational-Technical High School will go from 17.3 to 24.3 next year.

But in some other high schools the percentages are not well balanced.

Carver and Dunbar will be 100 percent non-white in the 10th grade.

Douglass will have one white student; Forest Park, one percent white students; and Edmondson, 3.1 percent.

Patterson's 10th grade will be 95.6 percent white.

Dr. Paquin noted that "racial" balance has improved at Northwestern, Northern and Eastern, in addition to Poly and Mervo.

At Western, non-white enrollment will decrease, and at City and Southern it is about the same as last year.

IN A PRESS conference last Thursday, Dr. Paquin indicated that he felt the newly-created Central Admissions Office and Board of Admissions had fallen short on its objective to improve integration in the high schools.

On two other objectives — providing adequate information about the schools and eliminating "double sessions" — the new procedure was successful, he said.

In the same policy statement providing for these three objectives, the School Board instructed the two new units to be "sensitive" to the need for integrated populations.

Dr. Paquin said the availability of information on the high schools (for more informed choices) in large measure helped the progress that was made.

For next year he promised an "educational fair" on the high schools for prospective students and vigilance on the integration objective, which received less attention this year.

It should be noted that while the selection process was being effected for the first time this year, Dr. Paquin, confined to the hospital, was not able to oversee it.

RETURNING to staff integration, the superintendent emphasized three points about reassignments that would be necessary:

1. That they would not be arbitrary or punitive in any way.

2. That they would be made because good education demands it.

3. That it is not good to put the newest teachers in the jobs demanding the most experience.

He restated his position that the superintendent must "have the opportunity to reassign teachers if the situation demands it."

-Action 8 slate

Mrs. Juanita E. Shearin, 41, nursing student of the 1900 block E. Eager St.

Mrs. Mary Paige, 39, of the 1400 block N. Bond St.; Lloyd Taylor, 41, a neighborhood development counselor of the 2000 block Kennedy Ave.; Clarence Davis, 24, Morgan State College student of 2600 block Beryl Ave.; and Charles L. Wyche, 26, organizer of the 1600 block Carswell St. • • •

IN A LETTER to State's Atty. Charles E. Moylan Jr., the eight candidates called on him to prosecute a complaint that had been in his office for some time after the bar had been investigated by the State Interracial Commission.

The slate promised to work for a new constitution which would "insure all people against all forms of discrimination."

Many of the demonstrators lauded the manner in which police handled the delicate situation at the scene of the protest.
