'I believe we can produce a church truly color-blind . . .'

WASHINGTON — "We are all in a fishbowl together — my congregation and I.

"They know they are being watched, and I know I'm being watched.

"It will be a bit taxing, but they and I believe we can produce a church in which God's servants are truly color-blind."

The words belonged to the Rev. Harold G. Johnson, first colored minister of the Baltimore Conference, Methodist Church, to be assigned to an all-white congregation as its minister.

THE REV. MR. Johnson talked to the AFRO on Wednesday, June 7 as the Baltimore Annual Conference convened for its 183rd session at 1:30 p.m.

The meeting began at historic Metropolitan Methodist Church across the street from the American University campus here, and will continue through Sunday.

Present are more than a thousand delegates and ministers from more than 500 churches in the Baltimore, Washington, Hagerstown area.

PRESIDING BISHOP of the conference is the Most Rev. John Wesley Lord.

He and eight district superintendents comprise the governing board or "cabinet" of the Conference.

In the cabinet are two well-known colored clerics, the Revs. William Bishop, superintendent of Baltimore Northwest District, and Edward G. Carroll, head of the Washington Northwest District.

Until 1965, the people and churches which now make up the Baltimore Conference were organized in two separate conferences, Baltimore and Washington.

Both of them were segregated, the Washington Conference was all colored, Baltimore, white.

The two merged after a resolution supporting integration was passed in the quadrennial conference of 1964 at Chicago.

TO A degree, all the confereses share the Rev. Mr. Johnson's sense of being in a fishbowl.

They mingle, smile, work and even live together at the gathering, but all things are just not what they used to be.

THE BALTIMORE Conference element shows efficiency, a kind of "hail-fellow-well-met" levity (they usually use first names for clergy and laymen) and deals in millions.

The Washington Conference strain is warmer, less hurried, tends toward more formality in personal dealings and is more prone to think and deal in thousands.

BUT ALL in this integrated

set-up, now just two years old, seem as conscious as the Rev. Mr. Johnson of their strategic role in creating a working, color-blind church.

Despite the impression which may have been given recently in a Washington daily, the Rev. Mr. Johnson says he and his congregation have had much success during the past conference year.

When he reported to Bell Methodist Church at Camp Springs, Md., near Andrews Air Force Base, there were 1560 persons on the rolls.

The annual budget was $90,000 plus.

Despite the novelty, the church has raised $62,000 and accepted 67 new members since he came.

Only 112 of the original members are deleted from the rolls, and four of them were due to death. The net membership reported to this meeting from Bell will be 1515.

It is true, says the minister, that the money raised last year was $24,000 less than the budget, but he expects that increased planning will take care of this, just as would be the situation if the congregation were colored.

HIS WORK in organizing small community groups for specialized tasks and the mid-week prayer services have been very successful.

The minister explains that integrated living and working is no new experience for him and his wife, Mrs. Dorothy Johnson.

Both were born and reared in New York. He was confirmed in the Episcopal Church, and attended church schools where most persons are white.

(He is a graduate of St. John University in Brooklyn, New York University and the Bible Seminary of New York, and was ordained in 1941.)

He believes that his prior collection of white friends who have worshipped at the church have helped his service there.

THE REV. MR. Johnson says his experience at Bell teaches that prejudice is no geographical matter.

Sixty - five percent of his members are better educated and traveled persons from Andrews. Yet some of the antipathy he has run into has been from this segment.

At the same time, some of his warmest support has come from local persons who never before knew colored people.

Last year the Rev. Mr. Johnson had a white associate minister, the Rev. John O. Hoffman. In the coming year the associate will be assigned elsewhere, but the minister will have the help of two paid lay assistants.

He and wife have ten-year-old twin boys, Harold and Donald, and live in the church parsonage.—D.E.S.

'Viet Summer' to hit U.S. war stance

"Vietnam Summer" a program designed to stimulate discussion and new ideas on Vietnam, held orientation session June 7 and 8.

A spokesman for the local chapter of the group explained that the plan has "no ideology, no fixed position, except its deep and determined opposition to the escalation of the war.

The Baltimore chapter opened a Maryland Ave. office last week.

The group intends to canvass the Baltimore community and to provide speakers and resource people for neighborhood discussions.

The Baltimore chapter is a member of the national group, Vietnam Summer, sponsored by Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.

Central aim of Vietnam Summer is to develop meaningful alternatives to current U.S. policy in South East Asia.

CORE endorses ConCon candidates

The Congress of Racial Equality (CORE) has announced its endorsements of candidates for the Constitutional Convention election throughout the city of Baltimore.

CORE feels that the endorsements are in keeping with the organization's emphasis on political action as the quickest and surest route to equality and self determination for black people.

This slate consists of eight colored members who have been active in civil rights and community work and are running on a platform which stresses a strong Bill of Rights, elimination of all state supported discrimination and providing guaranties of the right to shelter, sustenance and freedom from invasion of privacy for welfare recipients and tenants of public housing.

The endorsements are:

Las Doces Civic Guild gives NAACP pledge

Members of the Las Doces Civic Guild sponsored their Annual Fashionette and Luncheon last Sunday, at the Mount Zion Methodist Church.

This Guild was organized in 1961 under the name of the Golden Harvest Social Club. In 1963 the club decided to help under-privileged people, needy organizations and other causes and became Las Doces (the Twelve) Civic Guild.

Highlight of Sunday's activities was the presentation of $150.00 initial payment on NAACP Life Membership to Dr. John L. Tilley, NAACP office manager.

Dr. Lillie M. Jackson, president of the Baltimore branch, said, "These ladies represent hundreds of citizens who are investing $500 in the advancement of a race. This club's name will appear with names of other civic groups in the national NAACP office when payments are completed.

"THE BALTIMORE Branch welcomes other groups to follow this example. Adult Life Memberships are $500, Youth Life Memberships, $100. This year we are specializing in In Memorial Life Memberships in remembrance of deceased parents and loved ones.

"The Baltimore Branch NAACP is breaking down discrimination against our people in employment opportunities, with emphasis on plumbers and electricians. Your Life membership money is needed to help us realize our goal," Dr. Jackson said.

Welfare recipient to be named to DPW Com.

The city's Board of Ethics has ruled that a welfare recipient may be appointed to the Welfare Commission of the Department of Public Welfare, but must face certain reservations.

Mayor Theodore R. McKeldin, in making the announcement Wednesday, quoted the Board as stating:

"Should a welfare recipient become a member of the Welfare Commission, he would have to avoid voting on any policy which directly or indirectly affect the benefits that he would receive as a recipeint.

"He should be careful not to commit any act in connection with the policy or program of the welfare benefit class that he is a member of to avoid a conflict of interest."

IN ESSENCE, should the welfare recipient appointee be intho aid to dependent children category for example, then he would have to refrain from any voting on policy for that department.

The mayor has asked the Health and Welfare Committee of his Task Force for Equal Rights to immediately nominate a welfare recipient for the authorized appointment.

The Board of Ethics' ruling represents a significant victory for several civic groups actively interested in the problems facing welfare recipients.

They have long pressed for such representation on the Welfare Commission, contending that a welfare recipient can best present his side of the picture to facilitate more thorough deliberations and equitable policies.
