NATIONALLY KNOWN PASTORS AT CONVENTION

Dynamic leadership brought Progressive Baptists to top

Baltimoreans have had the rare chance this week to meet the dynamic ministers who are the leaders of the Progressive National Baptist Convention, the fairly new group that broke off from the Rev. J.H. Jackson is National Baptist Convention, at one time the "largest group of colored citizens in the world."

The five-year old Progressive group is holding its Christian Education section convention here and will end the 7-day session at Cornerstone Baptist Church Sunday with over 5,000 deleages attending.

The national convention Sept. 5-10 in Cincinnati, Ohio will witness them gathering again but with over 10,000 delegates attending.

And according to predictions of some 1,000 ministers on the scene in the city now, September will find the Progressive organization is due in "largest and strongest" crown.

The 1,000 churches with combined membership of over 1 million persons enrolls such historic churches as Congressman Powell's Abyssinian Baptist, New York; Concord Baptist, Brooklyn, N.Y.; Wheat Street Baptist, Atlanta, Ga. and Metropolitan Baptist, Washington, some with more than 13,000 members.

AMONG THE greatest of them all is Dr. Garland K. Offutt, the out-going president of the Christian Education Congress and pastor of the Louisville, Ky. West Chestnut Street Baptist Church.

A Kentucky State College graduate and holder of AB, MA, doctor of theology and divinity degrees, he is a noted clergyman and educator.

An orator and "born leader," Dr. Offutt is credited with making the Christian Education division, the most influential of young Baptists groups today.

In his administration he has accomplished the unusual fete of making each one of thousands of laymen, young and adult, feel he plays an important role.

Dr. Offutt told the AFRO in an interview Thursday the rapid expansion of the Progressive organization is due in part to its accent on Christian education for leadership. Turning out graduates in every state at commencement once a year, eminently qualified students immediately rise to become leaders in the church, neighborhood and community.

Thus following their inspiring example, hundreds of persons are brought in to the Baptists fold.

Classes of instruction are being held here in Baltimore at the convention at Wayland Baptist Church every day.

Starting at 7:30 a.m. they are divided into areas of instruction which touch not only academic and Biblical education but also training for personal life and living.

THE DEAN of the Congress of Christian Education is also an unusual personality.

He is Dr. William C. Upshaw, pastor of Antioch Baptist Church, Akron, Ohio 17 years and a minister 42 years.

The convention Congress at Work sectional meetings have been under his direction each day here.

His expert faculty supervises the instruction involving the Louisville, Ky. West Chestnut Street Baptist Church.

Courses go from how to read and study the Bible to how to usher to recreational leadership, political activities, to storytelling, development as a person.

Various divisions of instruction cover adult courses, curriculum for administration, child development, ministerial development.

Also included are courses for ministers wives, older adults and nursery school children.

DR. GARDNER C. TAYLOR, the internationally known pastor of Brooklyn's Concord Baptist Church is president of the Congress of Christian Education.

Dr. Taylor leaves New York Monday for a 2-week tour of South Africa. During the trip, the first such ever made by an American minister, he will speak not only to Baptist churches but also important interracial gatherings in the controversial area.

Dr. I. Logan Kearse, the Cornerstone Church pastor who arranged the Baltimore convention is also slated for Europe and Africa the next two weeks.

Other officers at the 1967 convention are:

Dr. Melvin Watson, Atlanta, Ga., Vice President

Rev. J. M. Burrel, Acting Secretary

Rev. John H. Pierce, San Francisco, Calif., Assistant Secretary

Rev. J. E. Lloyd, Kansas City, Mo., Treasurer

Dr. William H. Anderson, Philadelphia, Pa., Assistant Dean

Rev. Charles W. Green, Washington, D.C., Director General

Rev. T. O. Rich, Anderson, S.C., Associate Director General

James V. Roach, Cincinnati, Ohio, Music Director

Graduates who received certificates at the Tuesday commencement exercises at Cornerstone were:

Messers, Mesdames and Misses Sargent P. Jackson, Chicago, Ill.; Adele E. Ivey, Detroit, Mich.; Emma Jean Lewis, Louisville, Ky.; Ethel W. Peters, Chicago, Ill.; H. Parker, Piscataway, N.J.;

Ronald Weston, E. Chicago Heights, Ill.; William Gillespie, New York, N.Y.; Fred Corley, Philadelphia, Pa.; Osceola Irons, Chicago, Ill.;

Also Ronald Weston, E. Chicago Heights, Ill.; William Gillespie, New York, N.Y.; Louise Gray, Arlington, Va.; Alvin H. Sharpe, Louisville, Ky.; Mattie K. Perkins, San Francisco, Cal.; Rebecca L. Thomas, Tuckahoe, N.Y.

The 1967-68 officers elected Thursday are: Dr. William C. Upshaw, Akron, Ohio, president; Rev. Charles Butler, Detroit, Mich., vice president; Rev. J. M. Burrell, Akron, Ohio, secretary; Rev. Charles Green, Washington, D.C., dean; and Rev. William H. Anderson, Philadelphia, Pa., director-general.

Morgan alumni meets Sunday

The regular monthly meeting of the M. J. Naylor Chapter of the Morgan State College Alumni Association will be held on Sunday, June 25, at 6 p.m., in the Alumni Office, Room 110, ground floor of Soper Library, Morgan State College campus, Coldspring Lane and Hillen Road.

Alumni and former students in the Baltimore area are cordially invited to attend this meeting.

5,000 in convention 3 more days

By ELIZABETH M. OLIVER

Blessed by Heaven, well-off, generous and kind, Baptists the world over are known in ecclesiastical circles as "The Good Baptists."

They certainly are!

When the Progressive National Baptist Congress of Christian Education now in session ends Sunday, Baltimore will be more than a half-million dollars richer.

Authorities making a conservative estimate told the AFRO that the more than 5,000 delegates and visitors including 1,000 clergymen from 50 states will have spent an average of $150 each during the seven-day assembly here.

Not only have the delegates from 1,000 plus churches taken over penthouse suites and top-price rooms in leading hotels and inns but they are filling the spare rooms of many homes and suburban mansions.

The larger Eastern Seaboard churches have as many as 20 adult and youth delegates with Brooklyn, N.Y.'s 13,500 congregation of Concord Baptist Church, Dr. Gardner Taylor, pastor, as a good example.

Visitors have been arriving since Monday by plane, train, bus and private car.

By tomorrow night (Saturday), what is termed as the largest convention in history here will have a good 6,000 persons present.

* * *

AVERAGE LODGING for seven days is estimated at a low figure of $10 per day or $70 total. Food, three squares a day, comes to at least $5 although many ecclesiastical visitors known as "big spenders" are dining evenings at leading restuarants and hotels at a cost of more than $10 per person.

One minister entertaining guests from as far away as California said his hotel dining room bill was $119 one night this week.

And then, since sessions have been scattered around at three of the largest churches in town, there is the matter of cab fare.

Although the city's Baptist churches have provided 150 courtesy cars to run from 7 a.m. to past mid-night each day, many of the visitors have traveled exclusively by cab... from Cornerstone Baptist at Bolton and Wilson; to Wayland the other side of town, at Garrison and Fairview; to Tabernacle Baptist at Walbrook and Rosedale.

In addition, post cards, stamps, souvenirs sold out for example at Wayland Baptist Church where the convention bookstore has done a land office business.

Other Baptist money is being spent at countless drive-ins for the all-American favorite of hamburgers and French fries as the visitors spend leisure hours "looking around" the town.

* * *

ACCORDING TO Dr. Logan Kearse, pastor of Cornerstone, one of the host pastors and head of the entertainment committee, his church as well as the others have been planning for the convention over a period of 12 months.

When Baltimore was chosen at the previous convention in June 1966, "We got busy," he stated.

Most interesting was his statement that "delegates started saving for the seven-day stay at the convention a year in advance."

"Baptists never go anywhere without enough money to stay comfortably and enjoy whatever the host city offers," he stated, adding that so far (on Thursday) all had gone well and no one had reported any embarrassing incidents "because of race, creed or color."

* * *

BACK TO the question of meals, the AFRO checked at the Wayland Baptist Church where the huge kitchen of the $500,000 complex has been stewing, frying and baking home-cooked meals since 5:30 Monday morning.

Breakfasts alone require 30 dozen eggs a day.

For the three meals for at least 800 persons a day, they have used 200 pounds potatoes, 1,000 quarters frying chickens; 75 pounds turkey; 75 pounds ham.

Three times a day the high-workers change the white ly efficient crew of volunteer clothes on the 30 tables that seat 26 persons each time.

Along people serving as waiters carry in for evening dessert over 30 home-made sweet potatoe and apple pies cut in generous slices; watermellon, ice and bread puddings.

Mrs. Mary Lucas of Perkins Square Baptist Church is credited with the delicious "Good Baptist favorites." thousands of home-made rolls and biscuits she begins baking at 5:30 o'clock each morning.

All green vegetables come in by the crate and produce firms are constantly delivering sugar, flour, apple sauce, milk, bread, other canned goods and 10 varieties of meats.

* * *

THE WAYLAND church sexton, William Reynolds, spending an 18-hour-day on the premises, opens the building each morning he says, to the "finest group of cooks in Baltimore."

William Boyd, a Wayland trustee, heads the operation along with assistants, Isaiah Leaunu, Reginald Trusty, Jodie Vance, David Rather, Clarence Smith and Mesdames Emily Utley, Gertrude Coleman, Pearl Watts, Alice Beetle, Katherine Tyree, Adlean Jeffrey, Doris Boyd, Keziah Bowley, Betty Foster and young people, James, Velma and William Boyd, Sandra and Edmund Trusty, Ronald Wilson, Charlene Murphy, Gwendoyn Ellis and Doretha Jacobs.

Members from other Baptist churches who have volunteered during the week are too numerous to count.

CONVENTION PRESIDENT —Rev. G. K. Offut, convention president from Louisville, Ky., chats with delegate J. S. Smith from Alabama.
