Joe Howard being feted Saturday

Assistant States Attorney Joseph C. Howard is being honored by the Fairmount Neighborhood Association at a testimonial dinner Saturday at Park Terrace, Oswego and Pall Mall Rd.

Last year in his position of Assistant State's Attorney, Director of Trial Section, Mr. Howard charged that the courts police and the prosecuters Office used a double standard when trying rape cases involving colored and white victims.

As a result the Supreme Bench refused to approve his reappointment in January.

After an investigation by the Grievance Committee of the Bar Association and widespread protest from individuals and civic organizations, the Supreme Bench approved his re-appointment four months later.

RECENTLY Mr. Howard spent his three-week vacation working with a team of lawyers advising civil rights workers of their legal rights.

"Mr. Howard is truly a man worthy of being honored because he has exemplified in his daily activities courage and great conviction in his dedication to seeking justice and dignity for all people," sponsors said.

We Have No Gimmicks!

The Westinghouse Electric Corporation has no gimmicks to offer its striking I.U.E. Local 130 employees. We only have what we consider to be a sound and progressive solution to the stalemate—arbitration. The union has said that the major obstacle to a settlement is the matter of job classifications. The company has offered to go to arbitration on this point.

The union seeks reclassification of approximately 75 jobs. The company has offered to let the union select any 20 of these jobs and place them before an arbitrator whose decision would be binding on both the company and the union. The company has yielded ground on this point in the interest of settling the strike. Westinghouse expects the union to yield ground too. That, after all, is the spirit of collective bargaining. And the company feels that it is only through such bargaining that solutions can be found to the current impasse.

Westinghouse has 15,000 employees in the Baltimore area. Only 1,500 of them—members of I.U.E. Local 130—are on strike.

But when these men stop work at the company's Surface and Underseas Divisions, they seriously disrupt the flow of radar and armament systems to our men in Vietnam and around the world. And they seriously disrupt their own livelihoods and the well-being of their families.

The union must consider the disruption of customer service could cause a loss of contracts, which in turn could lead to further lost wages and possibly lost jobs. Westinghouse urges members of Local 130 to ask their leaders if this is any alternative to arbitration of the job classification issue and settlement of the strike.

The company also urges Local 130 members to ask the union leaders why, when the Federal mediator asked the union to postpone its strike deadline and continue to negotiate, they refused to grant this extension. Because of Westinghouse's defense contracts, the union should have made a special effort to keep the talks going. The company did. The union owes it to itself and to our fighting men to do the same.

Pierians' silver chalice to Artist James E. Lewis

With Lula Jones Garrett

The Pierians were hostesses to a hundred and one at a small, but elegant, affair on Saturday evening, initiating their first Awards Dinner.

Receiving the club's first award was James E. Lewis, director for the Morgan State College Art Gallery, and head of the college's art department. The award, a silver chalice, went to Mr. Lewis for "community Service in Fine Arts." Prior to and following the dinner, guests viewed a small exhibit of the works of art by Mr. Lewis in the media of painting, sculpture, drawing and photography.

Covering a period of eight years, the Pierians have worked closely with Mr. Lewis in the presentation of a distinguished series of Morgan State College art exhibitions.

Mrs. G. James Fleming made the presentation to Mr. Lewis.

Others presentations included flowers to the outgoing president of Pierians, Charlotte Mebane; to the newly-elected president, Louise Lamb; and to Mrs. James E. Lewis, wife of the honoree. There probably would have been flowers, too, to Verniece Reynolds for her chairmanship of the dinner meeting had she not been doing the designating.

On her dinner committee were Mrs. Ernest Johnson, program chairman; and Mesdames Arthur Lamb, G. Luther Washington, G. James Fleming, Lester Norris, James Mebane, Glenn Tarter, Herbert Moseley and Clifford Mackay.

Other Pierians are Mesdames I. Bradshaw Higgins, Emerson Walden, Ruth Welling, Pearl Brackett, Lydia Mussenden, Edith Smith, Jerome Todd, Henry C. Welcome and Herbert Wilson; and Dr. Jessie Colson.

The dinner was at the Tail of the Fox, Timonium, Md.

Guests were:

Messrs. and Mesdames Robert Diggs, Randall Tyus of Silver Springs, John Berry, Ralph Williams, J. Percy Bond, Charles King, T. Brown, Edward Perpell.

Messrs. and Mesdames Fredrick Johnson, William Lee, Vernon Proul, Marshall T. Bright, James Murphy, John Gloster, Lee Brill, Ronald Rayne, Warren Weaver, Marcellus Moore, E. Taylor.

Judge and Mrs. Harry Cole, Dr. and Mesdames Harold Derry, Thurman O'Daniel, C. Arthur Lamb Jr., Norris Adkins, Maurice Adams, Lionel Desbarates, James Laforest, Saul Perdue; Drs. Evan Gilkes, Richard McKinney, G. James Fleming, I. Bradshaw Higgins, Herbert Mosley; Dr. Elaine Davis, Miss Lena Martin, Mesdames Anne Wayne, Mildred Seaborne, Grace Hunt, George Pendleton, Jerome Todd Sr., Mildred Allen;

W. W. Tilley of Washington, Ernest Johnson, Arthur C. Lamb, James Mebane Jr., Lester Norris, Clifford Mackay, Medford Reynolds, Glenn Tarter, Jerome Todd Jr., G. Luther Washington, Herbert Wilson, Cedric Ware, James E. Lewis Jr.

MEMBERS OF the Fairmount Neighborhood Association will honor one of their most active members, Joseph Howard, at a testimonial dinner on tomorrow night (Saturday) at the Park Terrace on Oswego Ave.

Mr. Howard is being honored by his neighbors because he has exemplified in his daily activities, courage and great conviction in his dedication to seeking justice and dignity for colored Americans.

He is most recently remembered for having allegedly charged that there was a double-standard of justice in rape cases. As a result of the statement, his reappointment as a supervisor of the trial section of the States Attorney's Office was held up for several months.

The members of the association also felt that spending his three week vacation in Mississippi with a team of lawyers, who went into the South to assure that the rights of civil rights workers would not be abridged, is characteristic of Joe's unselfish efforts to uphold the dig-
