Light House keeping

By LULA MACKAY

Don't do it to them . . . make the youngsters wear ill-fitting clothes because you think they may out-grow them before the garments have had sufficient wear. You could just smash their little egos by buying larger than needed items with the intention of letting the children "grow up" to them.

I am all for saving a dollar where it can be done without hurt. And there are ways to meet the problem of clothes and fast growing children. For example you can add several inches to the skirt length and take a deep tuck just above the hem's edge. You can put a tuck at the waistline seam. You can choose patterns that have a loose pleat or gathering at the shoulder that can be released as the child grows.

But please don't have shoulder seams drooping over the shoulder bone, waistlines that hang, or pants legs and sleeves that drag. Remember these alteration points, too, when you are buying, as well as making a garment.

HEALTH NOTE: July is especially the month to practice caution and moderation under the sun. Remember that sun rays are at work on hazy, foggy and slightly overcast days as well as sunny ones.

But should you get minor sunburn, there are several ways to bring relief.

A cold shower, and a liberal application of a reputable antiseptic cream will bring relief.

Vinegar applied to the affected area will relieve the sting.

Or, take a pinch of baking soda and mix into half cup of milk and apply gently to the face with a clean cloth and allow to dry. A blanc' cold cream or oil may also be used. For a blister or small cut apply a Dermicel brand first aid tape to help prevent irritation.

Take special care of the new coat of skin that replaces the sunburn by using moisturizers.

RECIPE OF THE WEEK: Oh, I discovered what gives that special appeal to that nationally known brand of prepared chicken that you purchase by the piece, bucket box and by the bucket. Sprinkle a small amount of sugar on the chicken to be fried, broiled, baked (not enough to make it sweet). It not only gives an appetising brown color but ups the taste.

About a half teaspoon of sugar on half a broiler is right.

This, however, isn't your recipe of the week. I am thinking about barbecued chicken legs for your cookout.

You will need one teaspoon dry mustard, one teaspoon salt, one-eighth teaspoon garlic salt, one teaspoon paprika, one-fourth cup vinegar, a half cup salad oil, a half teaspoon tabasco, a tables- molasses. Brush sauce and grill until tender, brushing frequently.

Place chicken legs on grate, skin side up. Mix together mustard, salt, garlic salt and paprika. Stir in vinegar, salad oil, tobasco and molasses.

PHILADELPHIA, PA. — Miss Alice Renee Dash of this city was graduated at St. Francis De Sales High School, Powhatan, Va., recently.

The commencement exercises were held in St. Emma Military Academy on June 5th.

DOVER, Del. — Dr. and Mrs. Luna I. Mishoe of this city announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Bernelyn Charlene Mishoe, to Hugh Wilbert Carey Jr.

Mr. Carey is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Carey of Snow Hill, Maryland.

A graduate of Morgan State College, Baltimore, Md., Miss Mishoe will be matriculating at Columbia University in a master's degree program during the 1967-68 school year.

Mr. Carey, an alumnus of Morgan State College, will be teaching in the Baltimore City school system this September.

A spring wedding is planned.

BALTIMORE — Mr. and Mrs. John Allen Lemon have announced the engagement of their daughter, Sue Estner, to Sgt. E-5 Weldon Tyrone Nock, son of Mr. and Mrs. Weldon G. Nock, also of this city.

Mr. Nock, a graduate of Douglass High School, is enlisted in the United States Army, and has served in Germany and South Vietnam.

A September wedding is planned.

EAST SPENCER, N.C. — William Benny Mitchell, foster son of the Rev. and Mrs. William M. Wyatt, of this city, received a master's degree in business education from North Carolina State College, Durham, recently.

Then, there's that once a month when a girl could use a good old-fashioned medicine.

Report From Europe

By OLLIE STEWART

PARIS — Just before leaving here on June 20, Sammy Davis Jr. had a memorable get-together with a legend in show business — Maurice Chevalier.

It took place in the Olympia Theater in the after-noon. The place was empty, except for cameras and lights and technicians. I was there because Sam asked me to drop by.

The high point came when the two stars were seated in front-rows seats chatting. Some of their talk had been rehearsed but some just happened.

Like when Maurice said, "I don't know how to thank you, Sammy, for promising to come to my birthday party on September 12. I hope to make it the biggest in my life — because I'll be 80 years old."

"I'll be there." Sam promised. "I'll probably fly in from New York — and take off the next day."

"Fine," said Maurice, "and I promise you something. When you get to be 80, I'll be there — if I have to come from hell or wherever. I'll be there."

* * *

THE TECHNICIANS and the few people on hand applauded.

Maurice said he'd be expecting a picture of their interview in a few days. Sam said he'd get it, then added: "And say, Maurice, don't forget you promised to send me one of your straw hats."

"I'll send it to London," said the French star. "Straw hats! I've got plenty of them."

Later, Sam sat down and gave me a run-down on his immediate plans. He was taking off for London the following day, and would be there for ten weeks, or until September.

"I'll not only be making a picture," he said very relaxed, "but I'll be co-producer with Peter Lawford. He'll also be in the film."

"What's the name of the picture?" I asked.

"I though I told you before: Adventures of Salt and Pepper. I'll be an entertainer, but not the kind I've been there at the Olympia. I'm doing a different kind of thing."

While we talked, a young man came up and Sam introduced me to him. He's translated Sam's book; "Yes I Can," into French, and had set up an autographing session at the Drug Store on the Champs Elysees.

TOURISTS ARE slow coming over this summer. I don't think the war in the Middle East had anything to do with it because no European countries were affected.

Agencies have announced that reservations are up this year by 10 to 15 percent, but as yet it hasn't showed up in Paris. As a rule, by the end of June, the streets are crawling with camera-carrying visitors.

But this year, even with good weather, all's quiet on the Paris front. Maybe we'll get double in July and August.

Dr. Nathan Pitts, my commuting buddy who lives in Baltimore and works in Washington for the U.S. Department of Education, was here on one of his regular trips in June.

This was a fast one. He only had time for a few quick conferences at UNESCO (which is why he came), and then it was time to grab a plane back to the States. But he'll be back. He always returns.

Philly Social Whirl

By BARBARA PRIGMORE

PHILADELPHIA — The Reynolds School faculty gave a luncheon-shower in honor of Miss Clarabon Isley, teacher, who was married to Charles Logan, Saturday; and Mrs. LaVerne Cheatham, office secretary, who is an expectant mother.

Mrs. Delores T. Williams, chairman of the luncheon was mistress of ceremonies. Presentations were made by Miss Barbara Brown and Mrs. Gertrude Dunlap to the honorees. Mrs. Margaret W. Seamon presented gifts to school aides, including Mesdames Amelia Jackson, Harriett Armour, Lois Neismith, Juanita Morrison, Jamie Gardiner, Mildred Lester and Lucille Peele.

The luncheon buffet table was beautifully set with yellow flowers, gladiolas, snapdragons, marigolds and chrysanthemums. Linen clothes were canary yellow and place cards matched the color decor.

Attending were: Mesdames Charlotte S. Mayo, Cecelia M. Wyatt, Dorothy M. Tyree, Lillie Coulton, Ruby DeMagnus, Mildred Pindell, Barbara S. Prigmore, Clementine Ogletree, Ruby Stuckey, Cornelia Camp, Jennie Price, Barbara Ellis, Helen T. Certaine, Doris Chaney, Clara Clarfield, Linda Renshaw, Allen Samilwood and Wilber Hobbs; and Mrs. Elizabeth Moore, school-community coordinator.

MISS YVONNE BETHEA STEVENSON and Dwight D. Reed were married on Saturday afternoon, in the New Bethel Baptist Church.

The bridegroom's father the Rev. Harry N. Reed, officiated.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lee Stevenson.

The bride was lovely in white peau-de-soie gown, featuring cascades of flowers down the front and at the waistline. The maid of honor, Miss Christine E. Murphy, cousin of the bride, wore Nile green chiffon with matching shoes. The bridesmaids were Misses Madeline Keels, cousin of the bride and Christine Robinson. Escorts were Marvin Bethea of Washington, D.C., cousin of the bride, and Herbert Dorm of York, Pa.

Ushers were Isaac Johnson, Theodore Hughes, James Emanuel, members of the Junior Deacons of the Christian Mission Baptist Church, of which the bridegroom is chairman of the board, and Peter Jackson.

The flower girls were Sarah W. Reed, sister of Mr. Reed and Cecelia Porter, Ringbearer was Michael Ashford.

The mother of the bride was attired in turquoise linen, with matching pill box hat and white accessories. The mother of the bride-groom was dressed in gold lace with matching gold shoes.

Several hundred guests attended the reception, which followed the ceremony.

Out-of-town guests included:

Messrs. and Mesdames Charles Ashford, Orrin Robinson, David Bethea, Carl Hall and Abraham Bethea of Washington, D.C.; B. T. Williams of Richland, N.J.; Samuel B. Williams, W. RICHMONDER IS 'BOY WONDER' IN TV JOURNALISM

MAX ROBINSON
TV'S "BOY WONDER"

By RAY BOONE
RICHMOND

A little luck, a lot of guts, self-confidence and ability have combined to lift a Richmond lad from a $50-a-week "glorified flunky" in the broadcasting business to an award-winning TV newscaster in the nation's capital.

The Richmonder who has taken that big jump is Maxie Robinson Jr. whose success has been so remarkable in such short time that astonished colleagues call him the "Boy Wonder" of TV journalism.

* * *

WHY MAX is an amazing young man (28) is easy to see.

In just two years, not only has he learned the announcing game, but learned it so well that his views have been printed in the Congressional Record, that he has won two of the big journalism awards — and earned two morning TV shows ("Today" in Washington) of HIS own. That he is operating out of highly-competitive Washington with NBC makes his accomplishments even more impressive.

The other day Max was back in his hometown and was asked how he had managed to do it all so quickly.

Max tells it like it is. His answer was frank, even a bit cocky — in a way that is characteristic of most people who have something on the ball.

"Well, I talked myself into thinking I was a damn good reporter and I started to being one," said Max, brimming in confidence. He went on:

"I feel that all colored people are first-class. I feel first-class and I demand that I be treated as such. This is the only way to make it."

BUT MAX made it clear that his self-brainwashing wasn't the only factor in his big jump. "A lot of hard work and luck helped and a break didn't hurt either," said the graduate of Armstrong High School where his father Maxie Robinson is head coach of athletics.

Young Max got his break when he was a $50-a-week TV floor director (that's a fellow who's hired to prepare settings for TV shows) and Max says the job title is that of nothing more than a "glorified flunkie."

"It was my second week on the job," recalled Max, "I was going about my job pushing around furniture when all of a sudden the president of Washington's station, WTOP-CBS, called me over to test some cameras.

"I got before the cameras in front of me was a kiddie show script. I started reading the script . . . and the next thing I knew I was being sought by the news director and news manager."

* * *

IMMEDIATELY WTOP promoted Max to a cameraman-reporter and less than a week after then, his film was on TV, although he had "never used a camera before."

"It was incredible," said Max. "I had no idea at all I, a floor flunkie, was "being auditioned when I picked up that kiddie script."

Four months after this, he was promoted to a "full time reporter" on WTOP — and a month later he was with WRC-NBC as a general assignment reporter.

* * *

HIS BIGGEST recognition has come with NBC where he has appeared on "Meet the Press," that national public affairs program, and won the District of Columbia Education Association's award for "excellence in television journalism."

Max won both honors for his role in the production of WRC-TV's "The Trouble with Anacostia," a 10-part series that boldly told "The Why" of Anacostia, a colored Washington ghetto laden with unrest, frustrations and deprivations.

To get the story, Max lived in Anacostia for six months. "I went there because I was tired of seeing nothing but riot scenes," he explained, "I wanted to show the causes . . . why people riot, how people suffer before criticisms are hurled at them as rioters."

The Anacostia assignment was also the reason Max won praise in Congress. Maryland Congressman Charles McC. MATHIAS Jr. was so impressed with the Anacostia documentary that he entered the transcripts — with commentary by Max — in the Congressional Record.

* * *

MAX WHO attended Oberline College and Indiana University, is married to the former Eleanor Booker. They have two children, Mark, 5, and Maureen, one, and they reside in Washington.

Max's success has helped TV employers. "It used to be that a kid wouldn't even think of working for $50-a-week," said a TV bigwig, "but since Max's story has been getting around, we've had youngsters wanting to work for little or nothing. They just want the chance for someone to discover them."

Proposed election plan attacked in Charlotte

CHARLOTTE, N.C. June 28 — (UPI) — The president of the North Carolina Conference of the NAACP said Monday his group will challenge a numbered seat bill if it becomes law.

Kelly Alexander made the announcement in telegrams to members of the Mecklenburg legislative delegation.

He called the proposal a "Bad Bill" and said "If it passes, we will challenge its constitutionality."

* * *

THE MEASURE is currently before the North Carolina Senate. It passed the house after 65 of 120 seats were exempted. A total of 41 of the Senate's 50 seats were also exempted by the house when it approved the bill.

The bill would make each seat in the general assembly a separate office. As such, prospective legislators would have to designate which seat they would be running for.

Opponents of the measure have said it discriminates against minority groups.

HOLLYWOOD — All-time football great Jim Brown has been signed for a major starring role in "Ice Station Zebra," a Martin Ransohoff production in Cinerama for MGM release.

Brown, currently appearing in "The Dirty Dozen," joins Rock Hudson, Laurence Harvey, Patrick McGoohan and Tony Bill in the stellar cast of the roadshow attraction, now filming in color at the Culver City Studios.

* * *

"ICE STATION ZEBRA" marks Brown's third successive motion picture for MGM following completion of "The Dirty Dozen," for which he received rave reviews, he starred in "Dark of the Sun" opposite Rod Taylor and Yvette Mimieux.

In the big-scale adventure drama, he will portray an aggressive Marine captain aboard a nuclear submarine during a top secret mission to the North Pole.

Newsweek team 2d report due

NEW YORK — In 1964, when the current of the civil rights movement was at "flood-tide," the first William Brink and Louis Harris report was published, The Negro Revolution In America.

Based on a nation-wide survey, sponsored by Newsweek, it documented the attitudes of both the rank-and-file and the leadership, and became the classic statistical reference on the progress of the revolution to that date.

On June 26, Simon and Schuster will publish the second Brink-Harris report, Black And White: A Study of U.S. Racial Attitudes Today. Through the use of the same exhaustive, scientifically prepared questionnaires and in-depth interviews which characterized their previous poll, the authors plot the turbulent course the revolution has taken since 1963.

Brain Waves

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Restless waves that surge through the brain may hold a secret about this complex organ, a medical researcher says.

From these waves, research is learning how the brain receives, stores and retrieves information according to Dr. W. Ross Adey of the University of California Brain Research Institute.

Brain waves have been recorded for more than 80 years. Adey said, but not until larger computer systems were applied was it possible to analyze "patterns which denote movement of information within the brain.

Power of Prayer

BRISTOL, England (UPI) — Everything else failed so an unidentified parishioner at St. Philips Church asked the Rev. Malcolm Widdicombe for religious help to start his jalopy.

The Rev. Widdicombe said he blessed the car keys and the motor later kicked over "Just one way in which the Lord blesses us," he said.
