Methodist Women See Rights as Basis for World Peace

Gadabouting the USA

With Lula Jones Garrett

Famous old Sharp Street Methodist Church, in Baltimore, was the setting, Saturday, for the marriage of Joan Amy Griffin, daughter of Mr and Mrs. Albert R. Griffin, and Lt. Charles Thomas Randolph.

The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Annette Randolph Jones and the grandson of Mrs. Eleanor Branch, of Baltimore.

Miss Griffin, a graduate of Morgan State College, is on the faculty of Edmondson High School. Lt. Randolph, also a Morgan grad, is currently assigned to the Armed Forces Examining and Entrance Station at Fort Holabird, Maryland.

The Army Dress Blues (dark navy blue jacket and light blue trousers) worn by the Lieutenant was the perfect foil for the wedding gown of re-embroidered Alencon lace over satin, worn by the bride. Her veil was attached to a crystal and pearl coronet, and she carried a cascade of orchids.

Mrs. Gloria Addison, sister of the bride, was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Rosetta Claiborne, also a sister of the bride; Miss Edloe Brown of New York, Miss Miriam Bruce of Philadelphia, Miss Joyce Patterson of Baltimore, Miss Doris Coates of Brooklyn, and Miss Mattie Whyce of Baltimore.

The honor attendant wore a gown of yellow satin and carried yellow roses. Bridesmaids were in green and yellow satin gowns, with matching shoes. They wore green flirtation veils and carried yellow candles in their nosegays. Patricia Reid was flower girl. Ring bearer was Ronald Majett.

Harold Randolph, the bridegroom's uncle, was best man. Ushers were Anthony Claiborne of Dundalk, Md., Sterling Addison of North Carolina, Emory Neale of Baltimore, Michael Strotman of Brooklyn and Clarence Hatcher and Herman Scott of Baltimore.

POT-POURRI: The National Council of Negro Women's project, "Workshops in Mississippi" is a runner-up for the 1966 Lane Bryant Annual Award for outstanding volunteer service to the community. Citations qualifying them for consideration in the final selection went to about 20 percent of the 700 nominees of which NCNW was one.

Launched in 1964 as "Wednesdays in Mississippi" the project under direction of Mrs. Louis G. Cowan, has grown into the present series of "Workshops in Mississippi". The workshops bring together grass-roots women and government, social agency and civic workers to obtain understanding of local needs and of available means of help.

WITH THE LADIES: Alice Norris (she's the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Granville M. Norris of Petersburg, Va.) has been serving as an intern in the Washington headquarters of the Peace Corps, this summer. A junior sociology major at Virginia State College, Miss Norris is working in the Office of Selection which is responsible for policies and procedures for selecting of Peace Corps volunteers. She is one of 20 interns selected from colleges across the nation. In September, Miss Norris will return to her college where she will help with the Peace Corps campus recruiting program.

In Wilmington, N.C., last week, the Grand Court of Calanthe of North Carolina, re-elected Mrs. Clara M. Nesby of Winston-Salem to the post of grand worthy counsellor. This will be her 18th term in the office.

Sylvia Wilkinson, who wrote "Moss on the North Side," has a new tome headed towards distinction, "Concepts of Freedom in the Old Testament."

Two Florida sisters, Mrs. Mildred White, librarian at Edward Waters College, and Gloria Parsons, teacher at Darnell Cookman High School, in Jacksonville, have been visiting their New York cousin, Mrs. Orville Payne of the Bronx. Mrs. Payne is housing supervisor with Haryou-Act, Harlem's anti-poverty agency.

And in the States from the Bahamas, last week, were Dr. Willis Max Saunders, Mrs. Gloria Braithwaite, and Mrs. Barbara Stirrup, here for the sessions of the Beauty Culturists League convention. All are officers of the National Association of Bahamian Cosmetologists.

THE MARRIAGE of Mrs. Ethel T. Douglass and J. Robert Poindexter took place at one of the most popular members of Enon Baptist Church, Baltimore, on Saturday.

The ceremony in the church auditorium at 6:00 p.m. was performed by the Rev. A. J. Payne, assisted by Rev. James Thomas, both only members of their immediate families and a few friends present.

The bride was radiant in a pink street length dress with long sleeves and fitted bodice. Her headpiece was a veil of silk illusion and rose colored flowers. Her accessories were pink. Mrs. Bertha Seay was her attendant. Wilbur Butler was the best man.

The new Mrs. Poindexter is the personable secretary at School No. 106 in Baltimore, Mr. Poindexter is a retired army sergeant.

The couple left Sunday morning by plane for a honeymoon and visit with the bride's son, Tignor Douglass, and his family in San Francisco. Douglass is an associate civil engineer with the Bureau of Highways there. His wife is the former Phyllis Folkes. Mrs. Poindexter's other son, Rodney, is a recreation specialist at Bethesda, Md. and his wife Gwendolyn, is a Baltimore School Teacher.

The ceremony was followed by a reception at the Carlise Avenue home of the bride's sister Mrs. Ruth Rosedom.

THE KIRTON family held their reunion this year at Ocean City and Topsail Island, N.C., last week.

They attended morning service at the Wade H. Chestnut Memorial Chapel with Layreader C. H. McDonald delivering the message and Mrs. Edwin E. Kirton at the organ.

Present for the traditional family dinner were the Rev. Edwin E. Kirton and Mrs. Eunice Brathwaite Kirton, senior parents; their elder daughter, Eunice Eleanor and her husband, Harvey; Virgil Davis of Wayne University, Detroit, Mich., and their three children, Carol Christine, Sheila Kay and Todd Andrew; their son, Edwin E. Kirton II and his wife, the former Shirley Benedict and daughter, Gertrude Odessa, of St. Albans, N.Y.; daughter of the senior Kirtons.

On Tuesday, the group marked the birthday (a week early) of Elsie Elise, who will be 18 on August 14th, and they also gave her an early send-off to college.

Mrs. Eunice Kirton Davis is a psychology graduate of North Carolina College at Durham; Edwin II matriculated at North Carolina A and T University and North Carolina College at Durham; Elsie Kirton will enter Appalachian State University in September. Fr. Kirton has been the rector of St. Mark's Episcopal Church in Wilmington for the past 16 years, and Mrs. Kirton Sr., is a musician and has been a journalist for 26 years.

Their daughter-in-law, Shirley, is a physical therapist graduate of Bennett College. Greensboro, and son-in-law, Harvey Davis, will receive the Ph.D. degree in Industrial Toxicology from Wayne University, Detroit in December.

The Kirton clan was feted with a cook-out at the lovely home and garden of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Hedrick McMillian of Wrightsville Sound, and Mrs. Wade H. Chestnut entertained them at her beautiful Topsail Beach Home. Present also were her daughter-in-law, and two sons, Wade III and wife, Winona, of Peoria, Ill., and Kenneth, a senior at Duke University's School of Engineering.

Riots and War demand urgent peace response

Kansas City, Mo. — Riots in America's cities, and war in Vietnam and elsewhere give an unparalleled urgency to the struggle for human rights in this country and around the world, a national Methodist women's meeting was told here, recently.

Two keynote speakers at the National Seminar of the Board of Missions, looked at the Seminar theme, "Human Rights in World Perspective," from the national and international standpoints. They were Miss Peggy Billings, secretary of Christian social relations of the Woman's Division, and Mrs. C. A. Bender, United Nations observer for the Board of Missions. Both are from New York.

• • •

"THE WHITE majority in America, and especially Congress, have much to answer for in light of the riots that are tearing apart the nation's cities, Miss Billings said, adding: "The response, or lack of response or resistance by the white community to the needs of the colored community, is a major factor in the change in the pace of the civil rights movement. Any country where Congressmen can angrily demand a riot control bill with one breath and, sneeringly and sarcastically, refuse to pass a riot-control bill has something to answer to before Almighty God."

"The legitimate demands of colored Americans for decent jobs, housing and education are simply not recognized by the white majority. Whites no longer want to be reminded of the more than 100 years of discrimination against black Americans — from slavery days onward. We as whites could not accept our responsibility for the past, so we projected it off on the out-group itself, and now finally a majority of white Americans are convinced that the present condition of our colored citizens is their own fault.

"ONE OF THE incredible facts about our nation, and about ourselves as whites, is that at the same time we have the capacity to put ourselves in the shoes of the minority group, still we can continue to play the role of discriminator," said Miss Billings.

In her address, Mrs. Bender noted that the questions of peace and human rights are intertwined. Today, she said, "everyone of us is confronted by wars and their threat of world involvement.

"Indeed," she added, "human rights are the essential thing to talk about when one wants to begin a basic discussion of the things that make for peace.

Report From Europe

By OLLIE STEWART

PARIS — Dr. and Mrs. (Jimmy) Albert Laforest, of Baltimore, arrived here August 1 for their fourth visit to the City of Lights — coming from Norway, Sweden and Denmark.

"What a change in temperature," said Jimmy. "In Norway it was 58 degrees, and dropping into Paris we met a heat wave of better than 90. Like opening a furnace door in your face."

From Hilton Road, Baltimore, they put up at the Hilton Hotel, Paris. And after catching the show at the Lido the first night, they took it easy for a couple of days before heading for home.

• • •

FROM WASHINGTON, D.C., a few days earlier came Jimmy Owens and his wife, Mary, for their second visit together. Jimmy previously worked in the Paris Embassy — but is now on the staff of the Inter-American Development Bank in the nation's capital.

From Paris they went to Brussels, Amsterdam and Frankfurt, returning for a second week in Paris where Jimmy took time out to look up old friends from earlier days.

PHILADELPHIA'S contribution is Sheila Bourne. She's been here seven months studying at the Sorbonne, and plans to stay until February of next year. She formerly studied illustration at the Philadelphia College of Art.

I met her with a friend, Charlene Claye, of Houston, Texas, who has also been here seven months studying French in preparation for a diploma in contemporary and modern art at the Sorbonne.

Charlene's plans call for two more years of study, and eventually specializing in African art. Then she plans to teach.

LOIS ALEXANDER, New York City, arrived late in July with a group that had spent three weeks taking part in Pepsi Cola's international golf tournament in Madrid. They also visited Rome, Florence and London, in addition to Paris.

"I think everybody enjoyed the golfing," Lois told me. "Our group produced some real good golfers, and they competed against some top notch players from several countries."

Included in the group were Mrs. Marguerite Brown and Dr. and Mrs. Lehman Spry, of Baltimore; Mrs. Jane M. Gardner of Philadelphia, and Mrs. Louise Holland of Columbus, Ohio.

Others included Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Hamlar and Carroll Holland, of Roanoke, Va.; Mrs. Helena Duncan, Miss Arlene Harewood and Roosevelt Goodson, of New York City; Mrs. Edna Williams and her daughter, Ethel, of Pittsburgh; Mrs. Mattie Armstrong and her granddaughter, Jennifer Armstrong, Chicago.

Also Dr. and Mrs. Douglas McAfee, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Ochier, Mr. and Mrs. George Taylor, Clarence Jackson and Mrs. Eleanor S. Griffin, all of Detroit.

Also Mrs. Rose Threat and Mrs. Ada McCain, of Teaneck, N.J.; Mrs. Mary Truitt, Chicago; Mrs. Mary Minor, Washington, D.C., and her daughter, Mrs. Joyce Henderson; Mrs. Evelyn Caldwell, Louisville, Ky.; Mrs. Ida Lyles, Indianapolis, Ind.; and John DeShields, St. Louis, Mo.

Miss Martha Bassett becomes bride of Capt. Victor Fenwick

Winston-Salem — Miss Martha Jean Bassett and Capt. Victor Joseph Fenwick Jr., were married at noon on Saturday, in St. Benedict the Moor Catholic Church, here.

The Rev. Edward J. Sheridan, coordinator of Bishop McGuinness High School, officiated.

Mr. and Mrs. Grover C. Wall of this city, uncle and aunt of the bride, are her guardians. Mrs. Fenwick is a graduate of Morgan State College, a member of Delta Sigma Theta Sorority and the Psi Phi psychology honor society. For the past year she has served as an Intake Specialist at the Kimberley Park Neighborhood Service Center; a local anti-poverty agency.

• • •

THE BRIDEGROOM is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Victor Joseph Fenwick of Hollywood, Md. He too is a graduate of Morgan State College and a member of Alpha Phi Alpha fraternity. He has recently finished an Officer's Career Course and will be stationed at Fort McClelland, Alabama as an operations officer.

Given in marriage by her uncle, Mr. Wall, the bride wore a gown of silk organza and Chantilly lace with a chapel train. Her veil fell from a pearl crown and she carried stephanotis and ivy on a prayer book.

• • •

MRS. RONALD B. WILLIAMS of Philadelphia, Pa., was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Claudia S. Lee of Yonkers, N.Y.; Mrs. Henry Harriel of Baltimore, Mrs. Frank A. Robinson III and Miss Linda D. Bassett, the bride's sister, of Winston-Salem.

Thomas Butler of Washington, D.C., was best man. Ushers were Ronald B. Williams of Philadelphia, Pa.; Henry Harriel of Baltimore, Frank A. Robinson III and Arthur L. Blue of this city.

Mr. and Mrs. Grover C. Wall entertained at a reception in the Alumni Building of Winston-Salem State College following the ceremony.

After a trip, the couple will live at Fort McClelland, Alabama.

CAPT. AND MRS. VICTOR J. FENWICK, JR. were married in Winston-Salem, N.C., Saturday. The bride is the former Martha Jean Bassett.

MOST FELLOW ATHLETES MUM ON ALI

By SAM LACY

It will be noticed that very few of the athletes who have taken part in the verbal lashing of Cassius (Muhammad Ali) Clay, are men still eligible for military service ... Fellows like Jack Dempsey and Ernie Terrell have been quoted, but both are well out of the age range for the action in Vietnam ... As was pointed out earlier, very few of Ali's critics have been found among the young men playing baseball, football, etc., with draft cards in their pockets.

There are several reasons for this reticence, two of which are readily obvious: (1) They are not asked questions pertaining to military duty by friendly reporters traveling with the various clubs, because any answers they give would serve to call attention to their Selective Service status ... (2) All the athletes among this particular group have their own special reasons for disliking the heavyweight champion.

Subtle isolation

Few of us in the business are blind to the fact that the regular baseball and football writers on the circuit are involved in the subtle brainwashing of the public on the subject of Muhammad Ali ... By merely ignoring discussions of the draft status of the scores of Joe Blows in their leagues, these fellow scribes of mine succeed, to a degree, in isolating Ali's case.

On the other hand, the action of Muhammad last June left the government with no choice but to chastise him ... This meant that Selective Service's behavior in dealing with other athletes would be brought under severe scrutiny ... That is why more professional athletes have been dumped unceremoniously into the military the past two months, than had been called in the previous two years ... That's why the Chicago Cubs lost a couple of valuable ball players in late June, and why the St. Louis Cardinals football team is playing today without their quarterback mainstay ... That's also why Ali is unpopular with a number of athletes his own age.

Safer in Vietnam

Returning for a moment to the kind of people in the sports world who have been outspoken on the Ali controversy, one is inclined to chuckle ... As A to Z has pointed out on some earlier occasions, Jack Dempsey didn't openly rebel (but he didn't serve, either) when he was a strapping youngster during World War I ... and his "military service" is wrapped up in an honorary officer's rating conferred by the U.S. Coast Guard ... when he was 46 years old.

As for Terrell, it was interesting — if nauseating — to read his spoutoff, the other day ... Ernie blasted Muhammad with the assertion that he's a "good fighter in the ring" but that he doesn't make much sense out of it ... Every other young American is willing to fight for his country, who does he think he is that he refuses to do the same.

There are two observations to be made that fit here ... The first is that, even though Terrell could feel the same if he were younger and eligible, it is most unlikely that he'd be so vocal about it ... The second is that, after the experience of his last two fights, Ernie might think he'd be safer in Vietnam.

Super encore?

A pre-season poll conducted by Sport Magazine, figures the Green Bay Packers and the Kansas City Chiefs will do an encore in the 1968 Super Bowl faceoff ... AFRO area fans may be interested to know that the poll picks the Baltimore Colts to finish first in the new Coastal Division of the National Football League, and the Washington Redskins (perhaps to the dismay of DCites) to be third in the four-team Capitol Division ... behind the Dallas Cowboys and Philadelphia Eagles.

Incidentally, the same Sport poll foresees two tan rookies taking rookie-of-the-year honors ... Clint Jones of the Minnesota Vikings, in the NFL, and Floyd Little of the Denver Broncos, in the AFL ... Willie Davis of Green Bay, is expected to tie Bob Lilly of the Cowboys, as the top NFL defensive lineman, while Buck Buchanan of the Chiefs, is out in front of the AFL field for similar honors.

In this connection, here's word from the AFL top: Jim Nance, Boston's "player of the year" and holder of the league rushing record, scrubs off the idea of suffering a "sophomore jinx" ... Says he: "I plan to weigh 220 opening day, because I plan to go outside a lot more this season, increasing my effectiveness inside ... Once a man starts thinking jinx, the next thing he's believing it ... So, I'm thinking I'm going to have another good year — and that's all there is to it."

Football bounces

Until last season the New York Jets were unable to accurately weigh tackle Sherman Plunkett because the only scale in camp stopped at 300 ... They acquired a bigger one last year and the former Maryland State star zipped the needle around to the 325-pound mark ... But the Jets are having trouble again ... "We can't rely on this one anymore now," declares coach Weeb Ewbank ... "Sherm knows the scale now, he knows how to step on it and play the corners."

Los Angeles Rams fullback Dick Bass, who has eyes on a possible film career, als Woody Strode, made his acting debut recently in an episode of the "Daktari" television series.

And John Mackey, all-pro tight end of the Baltimore Colts, made his bow in the business world the other day, opening the "Big 88" Carry-Out Shoppe on Baltimore's Edmondson Avenue.

When the College All-Star Game was played August 4 in Chicago, it marked the fourth time in the last six years that a product of Grambling College was in the starting line-up against the pros ... Norman Davis, now with the Baltimore Colts, opened at right guard against the Green Bay Packers in his one ... His predecessors were ends Ernie Ladd (1961) and Al Dotson (1966) and tackle Buck Buchanan (1962).

Love wanted

"The idea is to get him in the lineup somewhere," says New York coach Allie Sherman of his experiment with a middlebacker Freeman White as a strong safety ... "He's one of our better young players and it could be his best spot is the secondary ... He's a good tackler and even though he's 6-4 and 220 or so, he still runs 40 yards in 4.9 seconds — he even did 4.7 when he was up to 232 during the winter."

"Moreover," Allie continues, "he is a former basketball player and can jump 15 feet in the air ... I'll say this — if he's only a step away from the receiver that ball better be thrown in there just right."

Says White, a second-year Giant from Nebraska: "I like it back there ... You can get up a head of steam for a good lick at them."

THE WASHINGTON Redskins are experiencing the sort of inner-sanctum tug-of-war that any pro football team would enjoy having ... All the coaches — offensive backfield, defensive backfield, etc., — want John Love, the exciting rookie from North Texas State College who thrilled the more than 45,000 witnesses at last week's pre-season game against the Chicago Bears.

"Gee," grins the fleet Texan, "I like 'em all ... catching the ball, running with it, stealing it, kicking it ... and running back kicks. Man, that's like pie."

He proved his enthusiasm for the kick returns when he put together a pair that collected over 100 yards against a Chicago team fabled for its defense ... No wonder, the Redskins love John.

Nat'l net meet starts Monday

WILBERFORCE, Ohio — The American Tennis Association, now in its 51st year, is set for the biggest event conducted under its sponsorship, the ATA national championships at Central State University, here August 21-26.

ATA junior national championships, Virginia Union University, Battery Park Tennis Courts in Richmond, August 14-18.

Dr. Hubert A. Eaton of Wilmington, N.C., president of the American Tennis Association, and Ronald K. Charity of Richmond, Virginia, executive secretary, have expressed confidence that the nationals will have the strongest field of players and spectators in the history of the event.

• • •

IN YEARS past, when colored players could not generally play in the USLTA tournaments, the ATA national and regional tournaments were the proving grounds where promising young players could measure their progress.

They met topline competition on a national level and bolstered their ego by winning trophies and receiving the plaudits of a large segment of the public and the press.

• • •

MOST OF the reigning ATA champions are expected to return and defend their crowns.

Current singles champions are: men's singles, Wilbert Davis of New York City; women's singles, Bonnie Logan of Durham, N.C.; men's senior singles, Colonel William Campbell (now in Vietnam); women's senior singles, Doris Harrison, Washington, D.C.

Robinson widens AL batting gap

FRANK ROBINSON

NEW YORK (UPI) — Frank Robinson's quest for a second straight batting title is looking better every day.

The slugging outfielder of the Baltimore Orioles found himself over the weekend with a 13-point lead in the battle for American League batting honors, and there aren't too many hitters in the league who figure to offer him much competition.

Robinson's average stood at .329 and only two other players in the league can boast an average better than .300.

Boston's Carl Yastrzemski and Detroit's Al Kaline are tied for second with .316 averages but after that the drop is all the way to .296.

• • •

IF ROBINSON had not gotten hurt he might have made a serious bid for his second straight triple crown.

But, it looks as if Harmon Killebrew of Minnesota, or Frank Howard of Washington, will take the home-run crown and either Yastrzemski, Killebrew or Howard the RBI title.

Killebrew led in homers with 32 followed by Howard with 29. Yastrzemski was in front in RBI's with 78, followed by Killebrew with 78, and Howard with 71.

Frank had 22 homers and had driven in 64.

Yankee Stadium salute for Campy

NEW YORK (UPI) — Roy Campanella, Charlie Keller and Billy Martin will be honored at the New York Yankees' 21st annual Old Timers Day Saturday at Yankee Stadium.

They join Joe DiMaggio, John Lindell, Gil McDougald and Early Wynn who previously announced their acceptance. More than 50 old timers will appear, including the two latest additions to the Hall of Fame, former Yankee pitcher Red Ruffing and ex-Pittsburgh outfielder Lloyd Waner.

Campanella, a former standout catcher for the Brooklyn Dodgers, has been confined to a wheelchair since an automobile accident in 1968.

Birth of myth

Steelers' Ben McGee has knee operation

PITTSBURGH — Defensive end Ben McGee of the Pittsburgh Steelers will be out of action for at least six weeks because of a knee injury.

The former Jackson State College star is in Devine Providence Hospital following surgery for torn knee cartilages. McGee was injured during practice at the St. Vincent College training camp in Latrobe, Pa.

D'Amato suit names Mathis

NEWARK, N.J. (UPI) Boxing manager Constantine (Cus) D'Amato has filed an $6.5 million suit charging Peers Management Corp. of New York with inducing heavyweight contender Buster Mathis to break a contract.

The suit also accuses Philip H. Iselin and Townsend B. Martin, of "maliciously" inducing their sons to break the contract between D'Amato and Peers Management Corp. of New York.

• • •

JAMES ISELIN and Michael Martin are officers in Peers. Philip Iselin is president of Monmouth Park race track and Townsend Martin is the track treasurer.

D'Amato contends that Mathis and Peers had a contract in which it was agreed the manager would employ the boxer and assign half interest to Peers.

D'Amato once managed former heavyweight champion Floyd Patterson.

AFL New York Jets

PEEKSKILL, N.Y. (UPI) — The New York Jets have added rookie flanker Raymond Brown from Alcorn A and M to their roster. He had failed to pass the physical at the beginning of training camp because of a bad muscle pull in his right leg.

A former trackman in college, Brown has been clocked in 9.7 for the 100.
