Believe It Or Not! Most Of Us Still Live In Dixie

Picture will change by '70 census

WASHINGTON — Even though we are leaving in droves, the latest Census Bureau reports show that most black Americans still live in Dixie.

But come 1970, if the trend continues, this will not be the case.

About 60 per cent of all U.S. colored citizens lived in the South at the time of the 1960 census. But this percentage dropped to 54.4 per cent by 1964 and to 53.6 per cent by 1965, the last available figure.

If the trend keeps up, the figure will drop below 50 per cent before 1970.

ESTIMATES MADE by the Bureau also show that the black American population is growing proportionately faster than the white population.

Additionally, colored Americans on the average are younger and have less education and lower family income than the white population.

Total colored population as of July 1, 1966, the latest figure available, reached 21,600,000, about 11 per cent of the United States population.

This compared with 10.5 per cent in the 1960 census.

IN 1966, the Bureau said, 28 per cent of all black Americans 25 years or older had completed at least four years of high school compared with 20 per cent in 1960.

But in the same period, the percentage for whites rose from 42 per cent to 52 per cent, the Bureau added.

Between 1960 and 1966, the black population living in metropolitan areas, including those in the South, increased by 21 per cent, from 12,200,000 to 14,800,000 and almost all the increase was in the inner cities.

The white population increased meanwhile by nine per cent in metropolitan areas, and all of it came outside the inner cities, the Bureau said.

NMA head blasts 'union' at convention

ST. LOUIS —Recent remarks by its president "indicate that the American Medical Association has forfeited its right to speak for the doctors of America," said Dr. Lionel F. Swan in his inaugural address as president of the National Medical Association here last week.

Dr. Milton O. Rouse, president of the AMA, complained in a June 20 speech that the medical profession is threatened by "the concept of health care as a right rather than a privilege."

Denying any quarrel with capitalism, Dr. Swan said, "I am the poorest confirmed capitalist I know. But I declare most emphatically that the health of the people comes before every other consideration."

He called on the 1500 delegates to "join the battle for al people," and condemned discrimination against colored patients, physicians and para-medical personnel, both North and South.

DR. JOHN L. S. HOLLOMAN, retiring NMA president, warned against ghetto alienation, saying that the nature of the profession tends to lead colored physicians too deeply into white society.

"Do not be seduced by the system, but keep your roots with the people," Dr. Holloman said. "Work with the young people in the streets."

Lt. Gov. Thomas F. Eagleton of Missouri also addressed the group.

Congress told not to cut welfare $$

NEW YORK — The NAACP warned Congress Friday that the nation would reap "anguish and anger" from colored people if there is a cut in welfare aid to states which do not reduce their welfare roles.

Roy Wilkins, executive director of the organization, sent the warning in telegrams to House Majority Leader Carl Albert, Minority Leader Gerald Ford and to Rep. Wilbur Mills, chairman of the Ways and Means Committee and to John W. Gardner, secretary of Health, Education and Welfare.

THE NAACP "strongly protests the provision adopted by the House Ways and Means Committee to reduce federal payments for welfare to the states if states do not reduce the number of families on relief rolls," Wilkins said.

He said such a cut "will bolster the appeal of those who now counsel destruction of a society which employs heartless tactics against a segment of the population."

THE PROPOSED cut-takes no account of recurring emergencies such as natural disasters or civil disorders," he said. "No recognition is given to reiterated and documented discrimination against colored workers in many industries and in a still considerable number of craft union.

"It would constitute a notice to the colored community that its living problems are of no concern to federal government machinery and will be dealt with through peremptory cases," the telegram said.

"We urge you to see every means available to you to amend, clarify or eliminate the section of the pending (social security) legislation," the telegram concluded, "the adoption of which would bring anguish and anger to large populations of our citizens."

100-year-old man to get free hair cut as long as he lives

BURLINGTON, N.C. (UPI) — George Morris got a free haircut the other day. And he expects to continue getting them free for as long as he lives.

Twenty years ago Barber Jesse Howe made an agreement with Morris to cut his hair free after his 100th birthday. Morris, who has been getting a haircut each month from Howe for the past 20 years, became 100 Monday.

Congo seeks U.N. aid to crush rebels

KINSHASA (UPI) — The Congolese Government this week awaited an answer to its appeal for international help in fighting white mercenary-led rebels now in control of Bukavu, the Kuvu Province capital.

Foreign Minister Justin Bomboko made the plea to the U.N. Security Council and to friendly countries.

In a letter to Council President Roger Seydoux of France, Bomboko asked for "logistic support and other help in maintaining regional order."

THE KINSHASA government, meanwhile, was steadfastly ignoring an ultimatum to negotiate.

Mercenary Leader Maj. Jean (Black Jack) Schramme has given President Joseph Mobutu until Aug. 20 to start talks.

Schramme's Congolese Chief of Staff, Col. Leonard Monga, proclaimed himself chief of a dissident "save the nation" government last week and promised to liberate the other provinces of the Congo.

THE CONGOLESE Press Agency dismissed Monga as one of the "subversive agents created by Schramme" and Mobutu rejected Schramme's demand for negotiation.

Schramme is seeking the release of Congolese Ex-Premier Muise Tshombe, now held in Algiers pending an extradition request by Kinshasa; a government post for Tshombe and safe conduct for his Katangese troops to return to their province. Tshombe is a one-time Katangese leader.

An estimated 500 to 800 rebel Katangese troops back up Scharmme's white mercenary force of less than 150.

Ghana finding it difficult to get rid of $47,275 car

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Looking for an "excitingly different" second car?

The Ghana Embassy is trying to get rid of a $47,275 limousine that was custom-made for Ghana's deposed President, Kwame Nkrumah.

Now gathering dust in a public garage near the embassy, it is equipped with:

Air conditioning, an AM-FM radio, television set, bar, refrigerator, writing desk, dictating machine, bulletproof glass, a hidden gun compartment, retractable steps for bodyguards and a back-seat telephone for communicating with the driver.

Signs of the Times

LONDON (UPI — The Evening Standard believes the police should use more judgment as to where they put up their posters.

The newspaper reported a large sign in one London railway station reads: "God is our refuge and our strength." Right next to it, said the Standard, is a police poster reading: "He can't be everywhere. Call a policeman if you see anything suspicious or if you need help."

2 ministers tour European cities

CHICAGO — (NPI) — Two prominent ministers embarked last week on an extended tour of Europe with plans to visit Copenhagen, Denmark; Oslo, Norway; Stockholm, Sweden; Hamburg, Germany and other points of interest while on the continent.

Board says no to Harvey plea

RICHMOND, Va. (UPI) — The Virginia Board of Elections Thursday refused to rescind its order for a runoff election for the Democratic nomination for the Danville-Pittsylvania County House of Delegates seat.

Miss Ruth L. Harvey, a colored attorney who led a field of four for the floater seat in the July 11 primary, had asked the Board to declare her the party nominee without a runoff.

Facing Miss Harvey in the runoff Tuesday, the first ever held in the state for a House seat, will be Danville Vice Mayor George B. Anderson.

Miss Harvey, in a letter to the State Board, said Virginia law does not provide for runoff elections in State legislative races and called the election "expensive, futile and meaningless."

LEVIN NOCK DAVIS, secretary of the Election Board, said the Board would "take no action to rescind its order."

Miss Harvey said the reply to her letter to the Board "skillfully avoids saying anything concerning the legalities of the run-off and discusses only the cost."

The two candidates will share the estimated $8,000 in election expenses.

Chester denies ok for klan parade

CHESTER, S.C. (UPI) — The Chester City Council has refused to grant the Ku Klux Klan a permit for a parade here Aug. 20.

Steve Sloan, Grand Dragon of the local United Klans of America, called the council decision a "slam in the face of the white people." Sloan contends he does have permission for the rally and plans to proceed with it.

AME laymen conduct 10th biennial session

NEW ORLEANS — The laymen of the African Methodist Episcopal Church held its 10th Biennial Session here, from Aug. 1-5. The Connectional Organization comprises 18 Districts of the AME Church in America, Bermuda, South America, and Africa.

The laymen were hosted by the Eighth District (New Orleans). Mrs. Beulah Singleton is president of the District and the Right Rev. William Franklin Ball Sr. is presiding Bishop.

Thirteen prelates of the church were on hand to salute the laymen and their President, J. D. Williams, for outstanding service to humanity across the world in the name of the church.

PRESIDENT, J. D. Williams, 5th District; First Vice, Arthur Funn, First District; Second Vice, W. A. Edge, Sixth District; Third Vice, Mrs. Almar Mackey, Tenth District; Secretary, Henry H. Glass, Fifth District; Assistant Secretary, Mrs. Lillian Evans, Sixth District; Corresponding Secretary, Mrs. Vorheese Jamison, Second District;

Also Treasurer, Lynnie B. Murray, Third District; Assistant Treasurer, W. C. Matheson, Ninth District; Director of Lay Activities, Miss Christine Brogdon, Fourth District; Director of Public Relations, E. P. Wallace, Ninth District; Historiographer, Raymond Davis, Third District; Parliamentarian, Mrs. Beulah Singleton, Eighth District; Chaplain, Mrs. Pinkie Brown, Ten District.

The host pastor was the Rev. Lutrelle G. Long of the Union Bethel AME Church.

Bill would up VA burial pay

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A bill introduced in the House by Rep. Joel T. Broyhill, R-Va., today would provide $250 toward the cost of burial lots for veterans who are not buired in a national cemetery.

Broyhill said the administration's decision to close the Arlington National Cemetery and other national cemeteries to veterans because of crowding will place an unfair financial burden on some veterans.

The Veterans Administration now pays $250 toward a veteran's funeral expenses whether he is buried in a national cemetery or not. Broyhill said. His bill would provide an additional $250 for those denied burial in national cemtteries, he said.

The children played rather than protest

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Children bused from a slum area to picket a playground in an upper income district proved Monday they know how to make the best of a good thing.

The 140 would-be pickets, most of them non-whites from the city's north side, discarded their signs and joined Squirrel Hill youngsters on the playground itself.

The children mixed easily and made good use of the equipment in Frick Park. The north siders' signs, which protested lack of playgrounds in the slums, were piled on a bench.

THEY PLAYED from 10 a.m. until 3 p.m., then were bused back home.

"I don't see why they shouldn't come back," said Mrs. Pat Eisenberg, a Squirrel Hill mother who had come to the park to watch her own children.

"If the city doesn't give the north side a playground, they should come back," said Mrs. Louise Landy.

A group called the Summer Youth Mobilization Program sponsored the bus trip to Squirrel Hill. The program has received federal anti-poverty funds.

Grads sought by State for foreign jobs

WASHINGTON

The U.S. Department of State has launched a special recruiting program to find minority group college graduates who wish to pursue a career in public service abroad.

As described by Eddie N. Williams, director of State's EEO Program, the recruiting drive is aimed at candidates with Bachelor's, Master's, Ph.D., or Law Degrees with special interest in diplomacy and foreign affairs.

"We're looking for the young, dynamic, intelligent individual who wants to serve his country abroad as well as at home," Williams said.

Salaries will range from $6,451 to $8,979 per annum, depending on academic background, work experience and age of the applicant. At overseas posts, salaries will be supplemented by housing and other Foreign Service allowances.

Black Power means self-help to 6 paint-up, fix-up youths

LEXNGTON, Ky. —Black Power can mean self-help, and this was proven last week as half a dozen CORE workers stopped by to make things brighter for Mrs. Anna Richardson and family.

Mrs. Richardson's husband is an odd jobber and does not earn much. But the family receives no public assistance, nor any other non-earned income.

The CORE workers first hung up their Black Power sign. Then they went to work painting the front door, washing the family's clothes, and even took up a collection with which to buy them Sunday dinner.

While the CORE people worked, the barefoot Richardson children skittered around the yard asking questions about the Black Power sign.

RONALD BERRYE, local CORE leader, said the words meant self-help for colored people.

"I thought Black Power meant violence," a neighbor woman said.

"Some people think it does," said Barrye, "but that isn't what it means to all of us."

"You know some white people belong to the Ku Klux Klan, but all of them don't believe that Klan stuff.

"It's the same with us blacks," Berrye added.

'Bury' militants in putsch, ex-general tells Legion

SANTA ANA, Calif. (UPI) — The man who wrote "God Is My Copilot" told an American Legion meeting Friday a military takeover (a putsch) of the United States by "devious or direct means" may become necessary if politicans cannot control lawlessness.

Retired Air Force Brig. Gen. Robert Scott, author of the best seller, said, "Military takeover is a dirty word in this country, but if the professional politicians cannot keep law and order, it is time we do so by devious or direct means.

"If there is no law to prevent the Adam Clayton Powells, Stokely Carmichaels and Rap Browns from burning the country down," he said, "what is wrong with us saying 'We will build it up again but we'll bury you first?"

THE RETIRED general called for revitalization of the American Legion as a "powerful and militant political force dedicated to returning to private life those politicians who prove unwilling to listen to the voice of 100 per cent red-blooded Americans."

Scott said the alternative was a military or vigilante takeover of the country as a temporary measure if all else fails.

Building Girls Town

OMAHA (UPI) — A Girls Town aimed at rivaling the nearby Boys Town is being built along the Elkhorn River west of here.

The Home of the Good Shepherd, which previously had its facilities located here, is conducting a fund-raising campaign to provide the home for girls.

UNITED NATIONS REPORT

Tshombe on skids, despite Western efforts to free him

By CHARLES P. HOWARD

UNITED NATIONS — The question of the return of Moise Tshombe to the Congo, and presumably sudden death, remains undetermined as this is being written.

Even though the Supreme Court of Algeria has honored the request of the Congolese Government that Tshombe be extradited to the Congo, Algerian President Houari Boumedienne has not yet affixed his signature to the extradition order, a necessary requirement before the order may be put into effect.

Meanwhile, frantic efforts are being carried on at the United Nations, in the United States, Belgium, Britain, Spain and France and parts of Africa to prevent Tshombe's being returned to the Congo and into the "merciful hands" of the Mobutu Government.

Tshombe is often described by African Nationalists as "the most hated African in all of Africa."

The reasons for this are many: Of all the Africans implicated in the death of Lumumba, Tshombe was the one held most responsible.

ALTHOUGH TSHOMBE participated in the negotiations for the independence of the Congo as a unified country, he promptly returned to Katanga and began a secession campaign designed to break Katanga away, thus gravely damaging any early efforts at Congolese unity and encouraging balkanization which many Africans believe hinders African national growth.

FURTHER REASONS are: — Cooperation with white supremacy governments in Southern Africa which are considered the enemy of African independence and freedom.

— Cooperation with European commercial interests to enable these interests to retain their hold on Africa's natural resources.

— The use of white mercenaries, especially from South Africa, Portugal and Rhodesia to further his ends, like secession and his personal return to power in the Congo.

— Being used by the colonial powers to destroy the Organization of African Unity (OAU), and any other nationalist movement designed to consolidate the progress of African nationalists.

— More people, particularly Africans, have been killed, either opposing or supporting Tshombe's schemes of secession or his return to power, than have been killed supporting any other African in modern times.

— For all of Tshombe's crimes, he has gone unpunished to date.

— He has thrown his great wealth around to subvert where ever it served his purpose to do so.

ON THE other hand, for some of the same reasons Tshombe has long been the "favorite African" of the white supremists forces of the United States, Europe, Southern Africa and the "power structure" that has held on to the wealth of Africa in spite of African independence, and all the forces often described as neo-colonialist which prevent or hold back the development, progress and independence of African nationhood.

To the independence-minded African, Tshombe is the living symbol of the capacity of the power structure to protect any black man that fights on their side, from any punishment for deserting the cause of freedom and independence in Africa.

There appears to be only few cases in history where a black African was ever punished for participating in the overthrow of a duly elected African Head of State, or an African who fought on the side of the colonialists against the interests of African nationalism.

The white power structure could always hold out the inducement to prospective traitors to the cause of African independence and African dignity, their guaranteed protection irrespective of the circumstances.

They could point to the fact that no African had ever been punished for fighting on their side. If Tshombe ever makes it to the firing squad or the hangman's noose, that myth will be exploded.

MEANWHILE, FEVERISH activities continue to save Tshombe. President Johnson is reported as privately putting pressure on President Mobutu to reduce the penalty and not execute Tshombe.

The South African lobby, a powerful group here in the United States, appears to be working through Senator Strom Thurmond of South Carolina, ex-Democrat now Republican, and Senator Thomas Dodd, Democrat, Conn., an ex-FBI agent. They have both spoken up in the United States Senate for Tshombe. Tshombe accuses the CIA of infiltrating his organization.

There is even talk of an international trial of Tshombe that would be held in Algeria, designed to expose the neo-colonialist maneuvers of Tshombe.

In addition to all this, reportedly pressures almost amounting to blackmail are being put on President Boumediene to not sign the order returning Tshombe to the Congo.

LBJ Urged To Appoint Black Mayor In Washington

Hunt begins for 'right' man for post

WASHINGTON

In gaining the support of the House for his reorganization plan, the President is only partially on the way to streamlining the affairs of Washington.

The next step is to find the right man for the job of heading the city's government. There is strong sentiment that this job properly belongs to a true representative of the Washington population.

ACCORDING TO Joseph Rauh, former chairman of the Democratic Central Committee, "The President's reorganization plan is a small step in the right direction. It could be multiplied many times and given real significance if the President appoints a D.C. colored person to the post of mayor."

Rauh suggests that Walter Washington, Sterling Tucker, Charles Duncan and Judge Aubrey Robinson are among those who have earned the right to consideration for this post, through their integrity, dedicatn, energy and experience.

"Such an appointment by the President," he contends, "would strike a meaningful blow for democracy in the nation's capital.

AT THE TIME support was being drummed up for the reorganization plan, attention was diverted from the identity of possible nominees to the top spot in order to prevent unnecessary controversy. Now that the hurdle is safely past, the race is wide open.

It has been reliably reported that Washington would gladly accept appointment to the top post (although he had previously declined a Commissionership offered by the President, when he was denied appointment as the top Commissioner under the present setup because the administration did not want the police department under the jurisdiction of a non-white).

THE TOP candidate, according to the rumor mill, is Stephen Pollak, white, the Presidential advisor for the District of Columbia. He has been influential in getting community support for the reorganization plan.

Commissioner Walter Tobriner stated, "I am glad this long period of indecision is ended with the overwhelming action on the President's Reorganization Plan.

"I think that the plan augurs well for a more effective city government. The division of the executive and legislative functions between the Commissioner and the City Council is logical, orderly and traditional.

"The success of the new Government or its failure will depend to a great extent on the strength and wisdom of those who are appointed to it.

"I feel that the President will be most careful in . . . such an appointment in order to achieve the mandate of the plan that the City Council be broadly representative of the D.C. community.

'Please don't do that to me,' and a 3rd 'sniper' bit dust

DETROIT (UPI — Police are investigating the death of a youth who was shot and killed during the Detroit riot, it was disclosed Wednesday, after witnesses said policemen forced him to run and shot him down despite his pleas for mercy.

Meanime, two policemen charged with murder in the shotgun slayings of two youths in a motel during the riot were free on $5,000 bond despite objections that their release was unconstitutional.

The new investigation concerned the death of William N. Dalton, 19, a Job Corps trainee and milk truck helper, who was shot to death in a West Side parking lot before dawn July 28.

Four persons told the Detroit News they saw police shoot Dalton. Four others said they witnessed his arrest, presumably as a curfew violator.

ABOUT 20 POLICEMEN and National Guardsmen saw the slaying, the alleged witnesses said.

Charles Hall, 25, a Ford Motor Co. worker, said he watched from his apartment window as police held Dalton. Hall said he could not hear what the policemen said but heard Dalton say, "I know you could do that to me, mister. Please, mister, don't do that to me."

Dalton was one of 41 persons who died in the riot.

Phillip Hyde, 23, said officers pushed Dalton against a tree and searched him.

"Then they tried to make him run, but he said he wasn't going to do that," Hyde was quoted as saying.

"ONCE GUY said 'when I count to 10 you had better run,'" and the boy said "No," according to William Arnold, 26, another alleged witness.

"The policeman said, 'Run or you'll be laying,' but he still didn't run," said Arnold, who said he watched from the porch door of his upstairs flat.

The officers kept Dalton in custody, then moved him to a nearby parking lot, the witnesses were quoted as saying.

Mrs. Alberta Jones said police accused Dalton of setting fires but he protested, "I didn't set no fire. You don't see no fire."

A POLICEMAN "pushed him against a wall," Mrs. Jones said.

Mrs. Jones and three other witnesses said the officer ordered Dalton to run. He fled along the building, vaulted over the hood of a car, and was felled by a shotgun blast by the same officer who had ordered him to run, they said.

Mrs. Jones said before Dalton was shot "a man in the house down the street yelled, 'Don't shoot that boy!'"

New studies

It was authored by Dr. Dolie Walker, of the local school system, and Dr. Arthur L. Slinchcombe and Mrs. Mary S. McDill, both of the Center for the Study of Social Organization of Schools.

Among its findings were:

1. Second only in importance to the county boundary is private and parochial school segregation.

2. The progress in Baltimore has been made by introducing colored children into white schools, and not vice versa.

3. Resegregation of schools by changes in housing patterns has nearly equaled desegregation.

4. There are few schools left in the city which are segregated white.

AMONG POLICY suggestions the study made were: either the opening up of housing in the suburbs, and keeping the two school systems separate, or the integrating of the County and City school systems.

The study noted that 'the private schools are responsible for a very large share of the segregation within the city," but that the city schools system can do little about this.

"Probably only civil rights organizations and the state and federal governments can do anything about either of these," it said.

Consumer unit issues swimming pool warning

Summer is the time for enjoying home swimming pools, but buyers beware!

Many "unscrupulous operations in the advertisement and sales of home swimming pools," have been reported by Thomas J. Guldera, Sr., executive director of the Maryland Home Improvement Commission.

Although many of these companies are presently under investigation by the commission and the Better Business Bureau, consumers are asked to report any suspicious sales techniques.

Among the favorite dishonest practices used is the "Bait and switch technique," the director said.

Companies advertise large swimming pools with accessories for a small price, but when their salesman calls the prospective buyer, he discourages the purchase of the advertised pool, he warned.

"He (salesman) may proceed to downgrade the 'bait' say that it requires hours and days of maintenance, carries no guarantee . . ." explained Mr. Guldera.

"Then he will show pictures of his 'Deluxe' model priced at $3,900 but offer a $1,000 discount if the customer will furnish a list of 10 other prospective buyers."

"A better product could be bought for a much lower rate through more legitimate companies," he said.

Many times installation problems, poor materials, and extra excavation charges accompany the high prices of unreputable companies.

There is a state law which prohibits such practices, and all companies and their salesmen must be licensed by the state. But in the case of "Questionable companies," it sometimes takes months of investigations and hearings, according to Mr. Guldera.

"Customers should know that all home improvements must contain certain elements to comply with the law," the Commission executive stated.

"Accept no verbal promises. The writing in the contract must be legible and contain a description of the work to be done and material to be used," he counseled.

Contact the Home Improvement Commission to answer any questions and to assure your protection. The office is at 2100 Guilford Ave.
