'Emmett just missed play', laments Frank

"Emmett just missed the play; he just didn't see it."

Frank Robinson, slugging outfielder and MVP of the Baltimore Orioles, thus commiserated with umpire Emmett Ashford following the second straight weekend of rimbaba involving the only colored arbiter in major league baseball.

"I feel terrible about the fact that I was victim of the call, but I feel worse because it brings trouble to a man already troubled. Emmett is a good umpire," Frank continued, "but as I've said before, he is human. Like all the umpires, he misses calls now and then."

The trouble referred to came about in the 9th inning of the Birds' second loss to the Chicago White Sox Sunday afternoon.

* * *

ASHFORD FIRST called an apparent hit by Robinson in the eighth inning on, but then signalled a hit for Wayne Causey in the ninth after Robinson had appeared to make a shoestring catch.

The trouble in the eighth started after Paul Blair led off with a single and Robinson followed with a blooper to center. Centerfielder Tommie Agee made a diving try for Robinson's ball but appeared to trap it.

Ashford, however, signalled a catch and Blair, who was all the way to third base, was easily doubled at first. Oriole manager Hank Bauer protested vehemently on the call but to no avail.

* * *

CAUSEY LED off the ninth with a blooper to right that Robinson held up on then made a lunge for. Ashford ruled the ball trapped and Robinson burst into a fit of anger and charged the 58-year-old umpire.

It took three Orioles, including 240-pound Boog Powell, to restrain the enraged Oriole slugger.

The play was further complicated when first base umpire John Rice overruled Ashford's decision and called Causey out.

Study of stars

SANTA CRUZ, Calif. (UPI) — A study of the stars which began 20 years ago and was not scheduled to be completed until the next century will be completed 50 years ahead of schedule as a result of newly developed instruments.

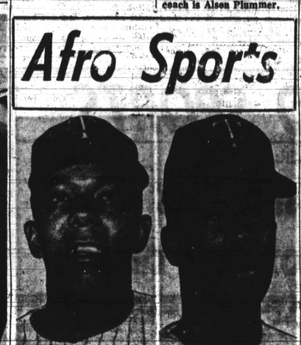
The new accurate measuring devices are accurate to 40 millionths of an inch, according to University of California astronomers.

Hotel reservations

NEW YORK (UPI) — A survey taken by the Hotel Edison shows that only 25 percent of hostelry guests now reserve rooms more than a month in advance. Hitherto, says Milton J. Kramer, hotel president, the figure was 50 percent.

MOSHER CHAMPIONS — Winners of the 1967 James Mosher Little League Bitter are shown with their adult leaders. The Orioles took their 18th game in 19 starts when they defeated the Pirates, 7-5. In picture are: Michael Briggs, Ronald Briggs, Winston Collins, Terry Dean, Leon Diggs, Celester Hall, Marvin Jackson, Tyrone Jones, Howard Jones, David Morton, James Marion, Keith Neal, Kevin Parker, William Rollins, Terrence Wheeler, James White, Bernard Williams and Lewis Williams. Manager is Milton Shelton, coach is Alson Plummer.

STRONG HAND — Baltimore Bullets rookie Mal Strong chats with tiny David Kelly of Parkville, 1967 Cystic Fybrosis poster boy. Strong and his Bullet teammates are preparing a Preview Night benefit for Sept. 20, at Civic Center. Program which includes an intra-squad basketball game, will donate proceeds to Maryland Chapter, National Cystic Fibrosis Research Foundation and Johns Hopkins' Cystic Fybrosis Center.



KEY TWINS — Two of the big reasons the Minnesota Twins appear strong contenders for the American League pennant are Tony Oliva (left) and Red Carew. Oliva, two-time AL batting champion, is at .273 after an horrendous (wo-and-a-half-month slump at the beginning of the season. Carew established himself from the outset as a brilliant rookie prospect until injury took him out of the starting spot at second base.

Dave Bing captures MVP mod in Stokes Fund tilt

BUCCANEER BASHER — Willie Stargell on Friday night became the first major league ball player in history to clear the 83-foot wall in Pittsburgh's Forbes Field twice in one year. The Braves' Eddie Mathews and the Reds' Bob Skinner have done it twice, but in separate seasons. The blow helped the Pirates whip the New York Mets, 7-2.

MONTICELLO, N.Y. (UPI) — The East All-Stars had a little trouble defeating the West All-Stars 87-76 in the ninth annual Maurice Stokes Benefit basketball game at Kutsher's Country Club Tuesday night.

Leading most of the way and enjoying a 14-point margin at one time, the East, coached by Red Auerbach, the Boston Celtics' vice president, was led by Billy Cunningham of the Philadelphia 76ers, who scored 17 points.

* * *

DAVE BING of the Detroit Pistons, last season's National Basketball Association rookie of the year, scored 17 points for the West.

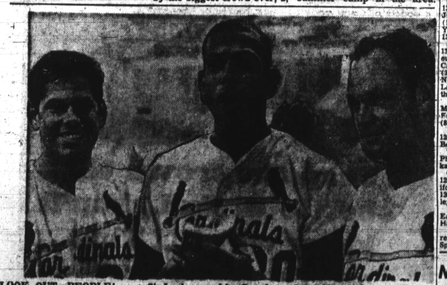
He was named the game's most valuable player, beating out Oscar Robertson of the Cincinnati Royals and the Knicks' Willis Reed for the honors.

* * *

THE GAME was attended by the biggest crowd ever, 2,637, who paid $11,235 into a fund for Stokes, once one of professional basketball's finest players until he was struck by post-traumatic encephalopathy, which is a condition brought on by a blow to the head.

DAVE BING

Stokes was in attendance at the game. Earlier in the day, the pro stars played an abbreviated contest for the summer camp in the area.



LOOK OUT, PEOPLE! — Orlando Cepeda is flanked by teammates Nelson Briles (left) and Joe Hoerner as all grin a warning to other clubs to look out, here come the Cardinals! St. Louis, paced by Cepeda, Curt Flood, Lou Brock — and anxiously awaiting the return of injured pitching ace Bob Gibson—is making a shambles of the National League pennant race. Ironically, all except Briles and Gibson, are castoffs from other teams — Flood from Cincinnati, Brock from Chicago, Cepeda from San Francisco and Hoerner from Philadelphia.

Bullets end extensive tour at Monroe's school

A training camp opening on September 13 at Fort George G. Meade, Md. and an eight-game exhibition tour of the Far West will highlight the pre-season activities of the Baltimore Bullets.

In addition to the Bullets' charity Preview Night intrasquad game at the Civic Center on Sept. 20, they will play a total of 10 pre-season games against NBA Nine of the 10 will be against Western Division rivals.

Their only Eastern foe will be Detroit in the Bullets' first test on Sept. 24 at Steubenville, Ohio. Fans there will be treated to the first Jim Walker-Earl Monroe duel, pitting the NBA's first and second college draft choices, Walker (Providence) for Detroit and Monroe (Winston-Salem) for Baltimore.

FIVE nights later, the Bullets begin their Far West swing into Oregon, California, Utah and Idaho. They meet the Los Angeles Lakers four times, the new San Diego Rockets twice and the Western Division Champion San Francisco Warriors once.

The final game in the West is against the Lakers in Ru-

Philly boo-birds making life miserable for star

PHILADELPHIA — The Philadelphia Phillies have only one truly outstanding player, but the "boo-birds" who have been knocking for years to resort with little rhyme or reason, are making life miserable for him.

As a matter of fact, Richie Allen wouldn't lose a wink of sleep if he were traded or sold tomorrow, but the idea of leaving manager Gene Mauch, if this were to happen, disturbs him.

The big, 25-year-old third baseman is an acknowledged hitter, but Phillies fans, who are known to beg for scapegoats, thrive on Allen's fielding miscues.

* * *

THE CONSTANT harassment of Allen, who is the Phillies' only big star, has been a season long affair at Connie Mack Stadium.

"Maybe I deserve it," says the young slugger.

"I've had four years of it now, and I'm getting to feel like a veteran. The fans are the last ones I think about. I wouldn't care if they ignored me."

ALLEN, who is currently hitting .310 with 20 home runs and 72 runs batted in, wasn't as happy as most sluggers usually are after blasting one into the distant seats the other night to break up a tale inning ball game.

"Who knows but that I might not be around much longer," said the disgusted Allen after delivering his winning blow.

"I might be traded or I might kick over and die. The way I feel now, a couple of broken bats and a pair of cold shower shoes would be an even up deal."

"MY FEELINGS have nothing to do with Mauch," says Allen. "Gene has taught me all the baseball I know, what little I do know.

It would be a crime to leave Gene, but it would be another thing to get out of Philadelphia."

Lionel Aldridge, star Packer end, breaks leg

GREEN BAY, Wis. (UPI) — The world champion Green Bay Packers were jolted Sunday with the news that defensive end Lionel Aldridge had broken his leg.

The announcement came from Packers head coach and general manager Vince Lombardi, who said Aldridge would probably be lost to the team for the better part of several months.

Aldridge broke a bone in the lower part of his left leg in Friday's game against the Chicago Bears, Lombardi said Saturday.

JUST A few days before the Packers had lost flanker Bob Long, who underwent knee surgery, for an indefinite period.

Quarterback Bart Starr's fitness was also in question. He had his right hand and left side taped following Friday's game. Lombardi insisted Starr was not hurt. "We have no injuries," he said.

WBA ratings cite Spencer, Pimental

SYLVANIA, Ohio (UPI) — Heavyweight Thad Spencer of Portland, Ore., and Mexican bantamweight Jesus Pimentel were named co-boxers of the month in the World Boxing Association's monthly ratings.

Spencer gained the distinction for his lop-sided victory over Ernie Terrell in the WBA's heavyweight elimination tournament, and Pimentel was rated for his technical knockout victory over Spaniard Mimoun Ben Ali, who had never been stopped before.

The WBA top contenders follow:

Judge Watts jails laborer

Stating that "People in this district (Western) take cuttings too lightly," Municipal Court Judge Robert Watts this week sentenced a man to six months in prison.

The man, Henry McCoy, a 45-year-old laborer, 1600 block N. Gilmor St., was arrested July 31 for assaulting and stabbing Carlton Bynum, 51, of the same address.

Mr. Bynum went to Provident Hospital where he received six stitches for a wound "a few inches above the heart," he said.

Police learned of the cutting at the hospital, and arrested McCoy.

Mr. Bynum opened his shirt in court to show the judge his wound.

Judge Watts frowned and said, "This could have easily been a homicide."

"I can see people scuffling," Judge Watts added, "but this 'pulling knives' for the slightest reason is too much."

CALVIN DOUGLAS, lawyer for McCoy, built his case around McCoy's statement that he came home after cashing a Welfare check, and was suddenly struck on the head and robbed as he went upstairs.

McCoy slashed at "whoever attacked him," Mr. Douglas said.

Bynum said he was sitting on the front steps when McCoy threatened him as he left the rooming house.

McCoy then attacked him with a 2" paring knife when he came back, Bynum said.

D'Alesandro proposes City Hospitals transfer

$10,000,000.

"Ample precedent for this takeover exists," Mr. D'Alesandro stated. In the case of Sydenham Hospital, a municipal hospital for treatment of contagious diseases which was transferred to the state more than 20 years ago and transformed into Montebello Hospital.

"Baltimore City Hospitals consists of a series of medical facilities located in a single compound. Its revolution from an almshouse in the middle of the last century to its present high level of service to the community is a source of satisfaction.

"But this progress has not been achieved without considerable cost to the taxpayers of Baltimore."

Thomas D'Alesandro 3rd, Democratic candidate for mayor, recommended Monday that "serious consideration be given to transfer of City Hospitals to the state for operation as part of the successful system of state medical institutions."

He said the annual saving to the city would be about
