Army promotes career soldier James Williams

FT. LEE, Va. — Sergeant Major James Williams of the Adjutant General Military Personnel Branch was promoted to his present grade during a recent ceremony at Ft. Lee. Officiating at the ceremony was Major Anne Whitman Adjutant General Military Personnel Branch chief.

The new sergeant major is currently assigned to the Cadre Unit Personnel section of Adjutant General Military Personnel Branch. He has been stationed at Ft. Lee since Jan. 31.

• • •

SERGEANT MAJOR WILLIAMS' home town is Harrisburg, Pa. He entered the service at New Rochelle, N.Y., in March, 1944. Since that time he has seen service with the 1331st Engineer Battalion at Camp Claiborne, La., in France, on Okinawa, and in Korea. From January 1946 until 1948, he served with the 1571st Engineer Dump Truck Company in Germany.

Subsequent assignments include service with the 787 1st Training and Educational Instructors, in Frankfurt, Giessen, and Kitzingen, Germany; with the 1771st Training and Educational Group in Germany, with the 41st Anti-aircraft unit, and with the 23rd Artillery Group, Ft. Totten, N.Y. He returned to Korea in 1960.

He has also served with the XXI U.S. Army Corps, Annville, Pa., with the 25th Infantry Division, Hawaii, and spent a one year tour with the 25th Infantry Division in Vietnam, prior to his assignment to Ft. Lee.

• • •

HIS AWARDS include the Bronze Star, the Army Commendation Medal with one Oak Leaf Cluster, Combat Infantry Badge, seven awards of the Good Conduct Medal, American Defense Medal, Asiatic-Pacific and European-African-Mediterranean Theatre Ribbons, Victory Medal, Occupation Medal (Germany), National Defense Service Medal with Cluster, Vietnam Service Medal with battle star, Vietnam Campaign Medal, and a unit citation.

Aretha's dad faces tax sentence

DETROIT — One of this city's civil rights leaders, the Rev. C. L. Franklin, has entered a plea of no contest to charges that he failed to file federal income tax returns.

The Rev. Mr. Franklin is the father of singer Aretha Franklin.

Mr. Franklin, pastor of New Bethel Baptist Church, had been charged in four counts with failure to file income tax returns for the years 1959 through 1962.

The government stated that during this period he earned a total of $70,869 and should have paid $9,756 in taxes.

• • •

THE "NO CONTEST" PLEA in tax cases of this nature is treated like a guilty plea.

Federal Judge Thaddeus M. Machrowicz last week ordered Mr. Franklin to report to the probation office where a pre-sentence report will be made.

Each of the misdemeanor counts carries a maximum sentence of one year in jail and $10,000 fine.

School benefits for veterans are announced

ROANOKE, Va. — Both Vietnam and Cold War veterans can receive GI Bill educational help at the high school level to prepare themselves to meet college entrance requirements without reducing eligibility for college study under the Veterans Administration program, E. P. Brosnan, manager of the Roanoke Regional Office said last week.

Single veterans can receive $130 per month while attending full-time programs at either high school or preparatory school level under the higher rates authorized by the recent law. Veterans with one dependent receive $155. Those with two or more dependents get $175 per month plus $20 per month for each additional child.

Eligibility for GI Bill education requires at least 181 days of military service with part of it after Jan. 31, 1955. One month of VA educational assistance is authorized for each month of service up to a limit of 36 months.

Jones-Ross vows spoken

MARTINSVILLE, Va. — Miss Helen Carolyn Ross, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Raymond Ross of Sunset Drive, Bassett, became the bride of Allen Garnelt Jones, son of Mr. and Mrs. Burgess Jones of Elkhorn, W. Va., in the Oak Hill Baptist Church, here, recently.

The Rev. R. T. Anderson officiated at the double-ring ceremony. A program of wedding music was presented by Leander Morris, Miss Marie Finney of Roanoke was the vocalist.

GIVEN IN marriage by her father, the bride wore a cage gown of white lace over peau taffeta, styled with a high square neckline, edged with scallops of lace and trimmed with iridescent sequins.

The same motif of lace was carried out on the edge of the Kabuki sleeves, the hemline of the gown and along the edges of the detachable chapel train.

Her bouffant veil of illusion was attached to a crown of matching lace and seed pearls. She carried a white lace prayer book to which was affixed her bridal bouquet of garlands of feathered carnations, centered with a white hybrid orchid and satin streamers.

MAID OF HONOR was Miss Shirley Ann Wimbush. She wore an Empire gown of mint green bridal satin. Other attendants were Mrs. Lester Holland, Mrs. Clyde Ross, Mrs. Lazarus Hairston, Miss Doris Turner, Miss Doris Williams, and Miss Pamela Ross. Flower girls were Cassandra Holland and Towanna Jones.

The best man was Eugene Manning Jones. Groomsmen were Leonard Jones, Terry Miller, George Clemmons, Jasper Tucner, Harold Moore, and Rayfield Moore. The ring bearer was Gerald Holland.

Immediately following the ceremony, a reception was held in the Bassett Recreation Center.

The new Mrs. Jones is a graduate from the George Washington Carver High School, Fieldale; the Durham Business College, Durham, N.C. She is employed in the office of the Bassett Furniture Industries. Mr. Jones graduated from the Elkhorn High School, and is employed with the Bassett Table Company. The couple will reside in Fieldale.

FASHION NOTE: The distinctive look of an Originals coat in a red diagonal double-faced wool, Narrow top with flare, double-breasted with gold buttons, add up to low key elegance.

MR. AND MRS. WILLIAM R. WILLIAMS were married in Raleigh, N.C., Saturday. The bride is the former Miss Sandra Diane Larkins.

Report From Europe

By OLLIE STEWART

PARIS — A French government decree recently restored some of my faith in people. No all, but enough to get my morale up from rock-bottom.

At a time when a big discussion is going on about raising American taxes, the French have just made an across-the-board slash in taxes. It's for people who don't pay more than $200 a year — and the slash is a much-welcome twenty dollars.

Nothing to fill out. Just take off twenty bucks from what had to be paid last year. In other words, a gift.

• • •

IN ADDITION, old people get more for their pension, and family allowances are — get bigger. Everything in the decree was aimed to help people who need help most — the poor people.

It was such an unusual thing to do that it shook me. Imagine a government actually cutting taxes voluntarily, and giving somebody something! I can't remember when I last heard of such a thing.

FRANCE ISN'T perfect. Almost every day I see something-in-the papers criticizing everybody from the head of state on down. The flood of tourists pouring through this summer had a lot of gripes — some justified and some unfait.

But a good deed deserves credit. France could have a lot of things wrong, and still get a nod from me for giving back a little of the money that's been pouring into the treasury.

Best of all, though, is the fact that this is a country at peace.

JAMES BROWN has just hit Paris. And when I say hit, I mean hit with a splash. I'd never heard of this rock and roller until recently, but I'm not likely to forget him from now on — even though I'm not in love with the noisy stuff called rock and roll.

Brown rocks, and jumps, and moans. He broke it up from the first night at the Olympia Theater where he was booked until October — and the long-hairs ate it up.

Some people misery prone

By LOUISE P. DUMETZ

Some people love misery.

You have to come to that conclusion, for what else can you say when you see a sensible, charming friend deeply involved with a shallow rogue who brings her sleepless nights and endless days of worry?

What else can you say when you see a clean cut, stable fellow employee developing a chronic shuffle with bowed head and angry grimace because his married girl friend nags and tortures and teases. She is rarely available when he wants her most, and she always needs more money than he feels he can afford.

Some people just naturally love misery.

That's the truth.

Dr. Edmund Bergler, the psychoanalyst who authored "Divorce Won't Help," explains it this way:

"Difficult though it may be to believe, there are people — millions of them — who are perpetual 'injustice-collectors.' The constantly bring about situations in which they will be unjustly treated. They are not aware that their hurts and punishments are self-imposed. But viewed analytically, these people turn out to be gluttons for punishment.

• • •

DR. BERGLER claims that this need is unconscious.

He says "Divorce Won't Help" because the persons seeking to get out of unhappy situations are so neurotic that they will soon involve themselves in other unhappy situations.

From your personal observation, would you say that this seems valid?

Well, if it does, then you might try passing the word along.

When you encounter a sensible, charming friend, or a clean-cut stable co-worker bemoaning his or her unhappy state, take the time to clarify the situation.

Tell your friend that his unconscious is secretly ecstatic.

Tell him that what he wants most in the world is to be mistreated. Tell him to stop kidding himself and go ahead and enjoy his misery.

• • •

QUOTE Dr. Bergler. "What appears in consciousness is never an unconscious wish directly expressed, but only the inner defense against that wish."

Explain that, when you bemoan being mistreated, you are just fighting against an unconscious need for misery.

Of course this only works with neurotics who have this particular affliction, but then, a normal person would go ahead and cut loose without all that moaning and groaning, wouldn't he?

So do your neurotic friends a favor.

If he accepts your view, you may have prevented mayhem and murder.

Frankie never would have shot Johnnie if she had had all the facts.

Would you shoot somebody for doing what you want them to do?

Oh well!

Light House keeping

By LULA MACKAY

With every blessing, I suppose, comes some impediment. Just when we begin to slove the problems of purse-snatchng and pilfering our bags by use of checks and credit cards, along comes the warning that thieves are as interested in our credit cards as they are in cold cash.

Between the time of a card is lost and the time the loss is reported, the thief can buy a wardrobe of clothes, purchase an airline ticket or get a whole new set of tires for his car.

But there's usually a remedy, too. In this case, insure your credit card.

FAMILY FARE: Why worry over our sons' taste in hair styles? I admit that Sampson's tresses got him done in, but long hair didn't seem to do Frederick Douglass, Benjamin Franklin or even the First President of the United States any harm.

Striding down the street, teen-age couple, the boy with hair far below his shoulders, the girl with skirt far above mid-calf. They were having the time of their life enjoying shocking their elders who were turning and squirming as they passed.

Maybe the cure here would be for us adults to take it in our stride and thereby take away youth's ability to needle us.

WHAT NEW? For weight-watchers, Pet has a new evaporated skimmed milk that contains only 89 calories per cup when mixed half and half with water. The regular evaporated milk contains 178 calories prepared the same way.

For you dish-dish-washing haters, there's real relief in those disposable casserole and refrigerator dishes. Made of bright aluminum they are priced at slightly over 10 cents, and are fine for cooking in as well as freezing it. Just relegate them to the trash can after the meal, or, of course, if you are the industrious sort, reuse them.

THE BEAUTY BIT: Believe it or not, Vera Williams of Baltimore, who has as pretty as pair of knees as you will find peeping from 'neath a mini-skirt, keeps them fair and soft with a mixture of Spic and Span, a dash of detergent and a good nourishing cream. She makes a solution of the cleansers, uses it with a soft wash cloth to remove discoloration and applies the cream to velvetize the skin.

RECIPE OF THE WEEK: For a sophisticated dessert that can be taken from your shelf and served at moment's notice, keep on hand a few jars of "Fruit in Wine and Honey."

Make this Fruit In Wine and Honey with one cup honey, three-fourth cup Port wine, a third cup bottled lemon juice, eight whole cloves, two inches stick cinnamon, a quart quartered peaches or whole peeled figs and a few drops vanilla.

Simmer honey, wine Real-emon juice, cloves and cinnamon. Add fruit and simmer fifteen minutes or until tender. Pack into hot jars. Pour hot syrup over fruit and seal.

Make sundaes by placing a few pieces of fruit in each dish, topping with a scoop of ice cream or whipped cream and spooning syrup over all.

Household Hints

After using a weed killer in a garden sprayer, clean the sprayer with a solution of one pint of water to four tablespoons of baking soda. Shake the jar as you spray the rolution to clear suction tube, jar and internal parts.

• • •

KEEP well ventilated the closet where cleaning items are stored. Store oily rags in a metal box or can. And if possible store all articles so they can be seen easily and removed without moving other items.

• • •

MAKE sure of ladder safety when painting. Spread the step-ladder fully and lock it in position before climbing.

Don't let anyone climb part way up to hand you things — two are a crowd on a ladder. Don't stand any higher than where you can brace legs comfortably and never attempt to stand on the top rung or shelf.

TEST mirror quality before buying. A finger test will reveal the thickness of the glass and beveled edges. Try mirror placement before hanging to see that it reflects just the beauty and color you want to be seen.

Teenage complexions bloom with proper grooming care

Whether it's an occasional blemish or an abundance of trouble, it's a common characteristic of nearly all teens. And, inevitably, skin problems occur just at the time you are most eager to look your best.

• • •

HAPPILY, THERE is more help for teen skin problems today than ever before. Teens today are big on bathing, and cleanliness is the first step in complexion control.

A recent survey showed that teenage girls bathe an average of 10 times a week! But even that won't prevent all complexion problems.

• • •

FREQUENT FACE washing is one of the secrets to a smooth complexion. That means washing morning, midday and before bed at night.

But harsh rubbing and scrubbing are out. Wash gently for best results. Lather your hands or a clean wash cloth and gently massage the suds on your face for at least three minutes. Be sure your hands are clean or dirt and germs will be transferred from hands to face.

A SURE-FIRE face washing goes into the hair line all around (hair is a source of oil and complexion trouble) and includes the neck. Rinse your face with warm water, then cool water, before patting dry.

Use common sense about eating the right foods and getting sufficient rest, and avoid any irritation to your skin. Then relax and enjoy yourself, for your skin problems will probably fade away — in your sight and others!
