Mrs. Burton was sister of Dr. Holmes

WACHAPREGUE, Va. — Mrs. Hallie Holmes Burton, wife of Dr. Edward T. Burton and sister of the late renowned educator and former president of Morgan State College, Dr. D. O. W. Holmes, died here recently.

Mrs. Burton was 77 and celebrated her 51st wedding anniversary this year.

Born in Staunton, Va., the daughter of the late Rev. John A. and Sarah Bolden Holmes, Mrs. Burton was educated in Baltimore public schools, Coppin Teachers College and Pratt Institute of Brooklyn.

She taught in Baltimore schools for six years, then returned to Virginia, where she remained closely aligned with the Accomack County Teachers Association for the last 24 years of her teaching career.

Mrs. Burton was active as a community leader in Accomack County, and for years was an outspoken member of the NAACP.

She is survived by her husband; four cousins, Miss Rachel Anderson of Washington, D.C., Mrs. Thelma Anderson, Robert and Theodore Stewart of Baltimore; a grandniece, Miss Gwendell Holmes of Newark, N.J and a nephew, Charles C. Holmes of Philadelphia.

HONORED — These Provident nurses were cited Sunday during annual installation services of the Auxiliary of Provident Hospital, Inc., held at the Bethel AME Church, pastored by the Rev. Frank M. Reid. At left Mrs. Ada Lovick, supervisor of the operating room, pins service pin on Mrs. Neather Space. At right, Mrs. Doris Reese, director of Nursing "caps" Mrs. Beatrice Lewis.

BRIEF RESPITE —The feelings of these youngsters are obvious as they wait outside after evacuating the Robert Eden Elementary School No. 20 at Eden and Federal Sts., Thursday while firemen check building to make sure flash blaze is out.

His wife, Mrs. Jeanette Foreman, pretty and young, tired of the responsibilities of marriage and left, Charlie Foreman testified, Thursday.

Mr. Foreman was divorced from Mrs. Foreman, now of East Orange, N. J., in Circuit Court.

He said that though he tried to keep her from leaving him, she had made up her mind and he could not stop her.

Wed in Newborn, N. C. in 1942, the couple was separated in 1953.

MRS. ODELL EULLEY of 2731 Rayner Ave., divorced Jack Eulley on grounds of infidelity, after her brother, Ronald L. Alston told a Master of the Court that he knew of Mr. Eulley fathering a child by another woman.

Mrs. Eulley said that after her brother told her of her husband's unfaithfulness, she asked him about the charges. At first he denied and then admitted the adultery, she said, and she left him. Her maiden name, Adell Alston, was restored.

A TEENAGE marriage that didn't work out ended in divorce in Circuit Court, when 19-year-old Willie E. Parker divorced Mrs. Barbara Parker.

"We realized that we had made a mistake and separated," he said. Married April 24, 1964, they stayed together until March 25, 1965, and are parents of one child. He is to provide $8 per week for the child's support.

Winn-Dixie promises gift to Bethune-Cookman

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. — "I'm going to throw you businessmen a curve," said the speaker at the recent Friday's Bethune-Cookman College Development Fund luncheon at the Daytona Plaza Hotel.

"But remember that a curve can be turned into a home run. If you can raise locally, by Jan. 1, 1969, donations to the development fund of $150,000, my three brothers and I will match it with our check for $100,000."

These words wound up the talk by James E. Davis, Jacksonville, national chairman of the Development Fund and chairman of the board of Winn-Dixie Stores, Inc. He was beginning a 10 year campaign to raise from $7 million to $10 million for college expansion.

* * *

ABOUT 100 B-CC TRUSTEES, local businessmen and educators, and Volusia County and Datona Beach area officials attended the luncheon meeting, presided over by J. Saxton Lloyd, local development fund chairman.

The meeting opened with three songs by the Bethune-Cookman College Chorale, directed by Thomas D. Demps. The invocation was made by Dr. Liburn Moseley, of Seabreeze United Church.

Dr. John O. Gross, Nashville, vice chairman of the trustees, outlined the importance of education for young people in today's world, especially colored young people. He spoke of the role Bethune-Cookman has fulfilled through the years in preparing young men and women to take their rightful place in society, and of community responsibility for furthering that work.

Hollis quits Justice and joins law firm

WASHINGTON — Julius Jay Hollis, 35, first colored trial attorney in the Anti-Trust Division of the U. S. Department of Justice, has left the agency after 6 years to accept a partnership with Pratt and Bowers, an established Washington, D.C. law firm.

The firm is now known as Pratt, Bowers, and Hollis. The partnership will continue primarily in the general civil practice of law.

OUR DESIRE FOR TV $ $ $ $ QUESTIONED

By SAM LACY

Presumably, Hal Humphrey is a TV columnist who writes out of Hollywood and enjoys a limited syndication . . . The piece about to be discussed here, for example, appeared in a Kentucky daily paper the other day and served as my introduction to him . . . In more than 20 years on the scene, one gets to know, read or hear about most of the regular writers of any importance or stature . . . It was not one of the kinder fates that had me meeting Humphry at a time when he was questioning the wisdom of our campaign to erase the racial lines in TV commercials, but sometimes the bad hops occur.

According to Humphrey, the battle for equal rights sometimes takes us into areas we "might be better off avoiding" . . . As an example, he says, "The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People's Legal Defense and Educational Fund recently asked the Federal Communications Commission to investigate the 'possibility of racial bias in television commercials.'

"I think it was columnist Art Buchwald," Humphrey goes on, "who a few years ago found screen writer Nunally Johnson upset over a letter from his daughter in which, she told him she'd been picketing a dime store to get integrated lunch counters in the chain's Southern stores . . . 'But that's a good cause,' Buchwald said . . . 'What do you mean?' Johnson replied, 'haven't we done enough to those (colored people) without making them eat at a dime store?'

They're so considerate

"This is my reaction to integrating (colored athletes) into TV commercials . . . What have they done to deserve playing those silly roles like the stupid school teacher or salesman with the bad breath, or the guy with the headache 'like two bull-goats pounding?'

"It's ironic, but it is possible that some advertising agencies don't use colored people in their commercials for the very reason that the parts are so silly and the agencies don't want to insult them by casting them in that light . . . And in my opinion, the NAACP is better off forgetting about TV commercials until they can appear in them as mature, rational persons with something to sell besides fear of bad breath, body odor, tattletale-gray clothes or a spotty kitchen sink.

"The people chosen for these roles," Humphrey adds, "generally are unappealing and common looking, and aren't creating the kind of image colored people need about now."

Where've they been?

It is gratifying to know that this young man is concerned about our image . . . I'm sure, however, that he is not the only individual who feels we should avoid becoming involved in such a demeaning occupation as trying to raise the colored economy . . . The big wonder here, though, is where were the Humphreys and the Nunnally Johnsons during the more than 100 years that the white man was doing everything in his power to make us look ridiculous . . . It seems to me that "little Black Sambo" and grinning "Aunt Jemima" were created by that same advertising medium which Humphrey suggests may be trying now to protect us.

It could be that Humphrey missed the entire point of the Legal Defense and Educational Fund undertaking . . . If he didn't miss it, how can he suppose that Mickey Mantle doesn't lower his dignity when he comes on screen to sell a product, but Willie Mays would if he appeared trying to sell the same thing? . . . Why is it all right for Brooks Robinson and not for Frank? . . . for Fran Tarkenton and not Gale Sayers? . . . for John Unitas and not Jim Parker or Lennie Lyles? . . . for Jerry West and not Elgin Baylor or Oscar Robertson?

Flies and roaches

When he asks what colored people have done to "deserve playing those silly roles," the inevitable answer is another question: what have they done to deserve being deprived the opportunity to pick up a tiny share of the millions of dollars being spent in the creation of those roles?

. . . And when Nunnally Johnson professes that he is disturbed by his daughter's misspent effort to "make colored people eat at a dime store" counter, it is clearly obvious that he believes they'd be better off eating in the traditional Southern atmosphere, in back along with the flies and cockroaches.

Then there is the young columnist's position regarding the choice of people for these TV commercials . . . "They are," Humphrey asserts, "generally unappealing and common looking" . . . Now, the next time that common looking, unappealing individual invades your living room trying to talk you into buying that auto parts service, you'll get an idea of just how asinine is his whole argument . . . Zsa Zsa Gabor will give it to you.

Colts come clean

It is to the credit of the Baltimore Colts football management that it moved without hesitance or delay last week to reassure colored sports fans that it will tolerate no playing around with the race issue . . . The National Football League opening in Baltimore last Sunday (17th) was marred by the appearance of a local musical unit with Confederate flags . . . The halftime show staged by the Yankee Rebel aggregation of the Hamilton Post, American Legion, consisted of march formations that featured ten flags —nine Confederate and one American.

Immediately after the game, Harry Hulmes, general manager of the Colts, was told quietly in a pressbox conference that some resentment was felt by colored spectators over the appearance of Dixie influence at a Colts' game.

It was explained to Hulmes that colored citizens accept the flying of Rebel flags from automobiles as expression of the owners' civil rights, and the use of Confederate accessories on auto tags as personal taste . . . But here was an exhibition before a captive audience which had paid for the privilege of being insulted . . . Surely, he must be able to appreciate how any colored fan would feel upon being required to sit in a $5 or $6 seat and watch flaunted before him the symbol of the bloody war that was fought to keep him in bondage.

The Bullets, too

Within 48 hours, Hulmes — backed by owner Carroll Rosenbloom —had notified the producer of the halftime show, the director of the musical unit, the local newspapers and the national wire services that the Colts will do everything in their power to prevent a recurrence of such an incident.

At the same time that the football club was making its stand clear, the professional basketball Bullets were taking steps to forestall a similar misadventure . . . Joe Aro, in charge of Bullet halftime entertainment, notified the Hamilton Post aggregation that its scheduled appearance at the Wednesday night pre-game exhibition at Civic Center would be cancelled unless the unit performed without the flags . . . it did.

Nino wants Tiger, if he beats Emile

NEW YORK (UPI) — If Nino Benvenuti gets by Emile Griffith in their middleweight title fight at Shea Stadium Thursday night, the big Italian champion is looking forward to a meeting with Dick Tiger for the light-heavyweight crown.

Tiger, a slow-moving 38-year-old Nigerian, seems made to order for the clever, quick-stepping Benvenuti, but two things stand in the way of a meeting between them.

* * *

BENVENUTI MUST beat Griffits, and Tiger must defend his title against Roger Rouse in Las Vegas, During November.

"I saw Tiger fight Griffith last year," said Benvenuti. "I'm not worried about Tiger, but before I make any plans I want to beat Griffith.

"I don't think he'll change his style much from the last time we fought. If our fight were two years ago, yes, maybe he could change his style, but not in five months."

* * *

THE 29-YEAR-OLD Griffith, who held the welterweight title three times before beating Tiger for the middleweight crown last year, said he is looking for a knockout again.

"I got no excuses for that fight," Griffthe said, "but I tell you this much, it's going to be different this time. I should have knocked him out last time, but he won't get away in this fight."

2 CIAA hopefuls cut by Bullets

The Baltimore Bullets of the National Basketball Association have dropped five players from their roster.

Included among the cuts were two former CIAA players, rookies Jimmie Hall of Morgan State and Howard Ridgell of Winston-Salem.

Also cut were Vic Arwood of Carson-Newman; Mack Herndon of Bradley and Carl Head of West Virginia.

The Bullets' roster now has 14 players, two over the limit.

Elizabeth City trips Norfolk State

ELIZABETH CITY, N.C.—(UPI)—Elizabeth City State College squeaked past Norfolk State 14-12 here Saturday.

Norfolk State recovered a fumble on the Elizabeth City five-yard line with less than a minute to play—but ran out a minute to play but time ran out before they could score.

Elizabeth City's two touchdowns came on a two-yard sneak by quarterback Johnny Walton and 22-yard run by sophomore Rover Armstead.

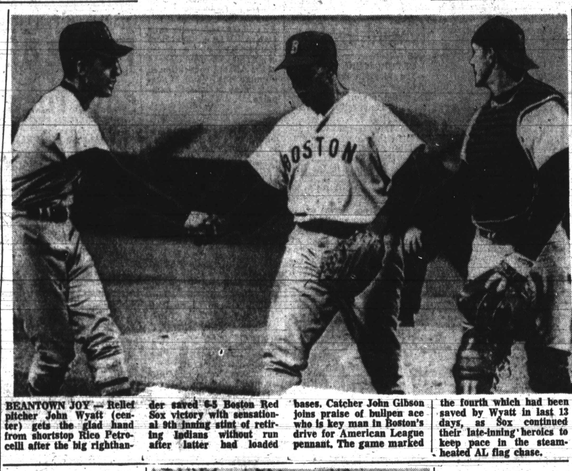
A pass from Walton to Charles Singleton was good for the two point conversion which decided the game's outcome.

Norfolk State scored two touchdowns—on a six-yard run by quarterback Hobie Dorsey, and a 55-yard pass interception by James Monar.

Tight squeeze

WACO, Texas — Alcorn A and M College's Braves beat the 1967 football season by eking out a 101-0 victory over the Paul Quinn College Tigers.

REF. OTIS PIKE (D., N.Y.): "I'm against long hair on boys, but I will defend to the death the 1967 football girls to wear short skirts."



BEANTOWN JOY — Relief pitcher John Wyatt (center) gets the glad hand from shortstop Rico Petrocelli after the big righthander saved 6-5 Boston Red Sox victory with sensational 8th inning stint of retiring Indians without run after latter had loaded bases. Catcher John Gibson joins praise of bullpen ace who is key man in Boston's drive for American League pennant. The game marked the fourth which had been saved by Wyatt in last 13 days, as Sox continued their late-inning heroics to keep pace in the steam-headed AL flag chase.

Race dispute hits San Jose football

SAN JOSE, CALIF. (UPI) — Officials of San Jose State College canceled the Spartans' home football opener last Saturday night, expressing fears that a campus dispute over discrimination charges might lead to "mass violence."

* * *

It was believed to be the first time a threat of racial trouble has resulted in the cancellation of a major collegiate football game in the United States.

* * *

THE SPARTANS had been scheduled to host the University of Texas in El Paso, but a former San Jose State basketball and track star warned that he and members of the United Black Students for Action would disrupt the games unless discrimination was ended at the school Friday.

Edwards claimed that colored athletes at San Jose State are segregated from white players in hotel rooms on athletic road trips.

Spartan athletic director Bob Bonzan said players were assigned rooms alphabetically, but a "conscious effort" would be made in the future to eliminate the suspicion of intent.

* * *

THE CANCELLATION was announced by San Jose State president Robert D. Clard, who said he considered "the action necessary to protect our students, their parents and friends from the possibility of violence. . ."

Clark emphasized that the danger was not from San Jose State students, but from the "possible involvement of off-campus persons and groups. . ."

Eddie Miles reports, escapes Piston fine

DETROIT (UPI) — Eddie Miles, given until Tuesday to report to camp before being fined, Monday reported to the Detroit Pistons.

Piston officials said Miles, who would incur fines of $100 per day if he had not appeared, has sought renegotiation of the second year of his two-year contract.

Clemente 'in breeze' for bat title

NEW YORK (UPI) — It's Roberto Clemente "in a breeze" for the National League batting title.

Going into the final week of the season, the Pittsburgh right fielder leads the league with a .355 average which Tony Gonzalez of Philadelphia, is a distant second with a .342 mark.

Gonzalez, though, is being pressed for the No. 2 spot by Rusty Staub of Houston, at .341, and Matty Alou of Pittsburgh, last year's champion, at .341.

ST. LOUIS Cardinal slugger Orlando Cepeda, the shoo-in for the MVP award, Hank Aaron leads in homers with 35, while Jimmy Wynn of Houston has 37. Cepeda is tops in RBIs with 108 while Clemente, Wynn and Aaron all have 105.

Felipe finished

ATLANTA (UPI) — Felipe Alou, the Atlanta Braves outfielder-first baseman, signed a new contract for the 1968 season Thursday. Then it was announced he will be out of the lineup for the rest of the season because of calcium deposits and bone chips in the right elbow.

BIRDTOWN GLOOM — On same day that pitcher John Wyatt was being toasted in Boston, Orlando Cepeda threw some alarm into the baseball world of the St. Louis Cardinals. Cepeda, virtual shoo-in for the National League's MVP award, suffered contusion of left wrist when struck by pitched ball. But trainer Bob Bauman later revealed injury was not serious and won't interfere with Cepeda's World Series participation.

Joe Strawder jumps back to the NBA

DETROIT (UPI) — Center Joe Strawder jumped back to the National Basketball Association from the American Basketball Association Friday, signing a two-year contract with the Detroit Pistons.

"Joe's return bolsters us tremendeously," said Pistons coach Dennis Butcher. Strawder was Detroit's regular center the past two seasons and averaged 9.5 points and 10 rebounds last season.

Strawder, a former Bradley University star, jumped to the Pittsburgh team of the ABA but said he "just decided that I should be playing with the Pistons and in the NBA."

The Pistons would up their training camp at Maryville, Mich., Friday and took off on a 12-game exhibition swing.

Cards don't care who wins, they just want AL champ

ST. LOUIS — How do the St. Louis Cardinals feel about their "mystery" opponent in the impending World Series?

The consensus: "wish we can find out the club we're going to play."

Manager Red Schoendienst put it this way: "We don't care who we play. . .the important thing is that we're in the World Series."

Schoendienst indicated that the Cardinals hold the same attitude, that "we've won the pennant. . .now let's find out the American League foe."

ONE SOURCE said, "It could be that the players would prefer a club with a bigger park. . .but that's the important thing."

Although the Redbirds clinched the National League pennant last Monday against the Philadelphia Phillies, Minnesota, Boston, Chicago and Detroit are battling for the American League pennant.

* * *

JAMES TOOMEY the Cardinal publicity director, apparently was under the greatest strain.

"Our concern right now is to plan the World Series program," Toomey declared. "We can't do it with four clubs still in the race."

Toomey said that "we're trying to put out a World Series program. We are trying to get information from four different clubs, whereas we're only going to use one club's information."

* * *

CARDINAL TRAVELING secretary Leo Ward also has a difficult problem in setting up preliminary arrangements for travel and lodging, for example, in four different cities.

But, Toomey said, "I suppose the worst problem is in manager Schoendienst's department."

Toomey said that Schoendienst "has planned the strategy" against the American League club.

"Looks like Red's planning four separate plans of operation," said Toomey smiling.
