Dr. Martin Jenkins honored the sorority for its services on the campus and community, civic and national service, including giving 16 hours per week to handicapped children.

DEMONSTRATION SCENE — This is how the gathering looked at Bond and Federal Sts. at 6:30 p.m. Saturday, as CORE began a second straight night of demonstration outside the Ritter's Tavern in protests to its segregated policies. Arrow points to Danny Gant, CORE field representative, sitting atop an auto talking to the crowd through a loudspeaker. The crowd swelled to several hundred shortly after the AFRO recorded this scene. Debris in street is from previous night of demonstrating.

"direction and programs for Baltimore to eradicate racial disturbances," according to Mr. Gant.

CORE's National Director Floyd McKissick and other members of national CORE are scheduled to attend the session, Mr. Gant added.

NINE ARRESTS resulted Saturday from disturbances outside Ritters located at Federal and Bond Sts. in East Baltimore, growing out of CORE attempts to gain signatures for the petition protesting policies of the tavern.

Twelve arrests had been made Friday night— many of them CORE members—after a similar, though smaller disturbance outside the bar.

Most of those arrested Friday were released, and one of the nine arrested Saturday was given a 30-day jail sentence by Municipal Court Judge Robert B. Watts.

Sitting in Eastern District court, Judge Watts said remarks attributed to Leonard B. Sutton, 17, of the 1000 block N. Eden St., "were inflammatory and could have incited a riot."

MR. GANT, hotly criticized police Saturday and demanded the firing of Police Commissioner Donald D. Pomerleau.

He said police made "improper" arrests, failed to barricade the streets in the vicinity of the bar and patrolled a predominantly colored neighborhood with white officers.

Mr. Gant suggested that William A. Harris, director of the Police Community Relations Division, be made commissioner.

Maj. Harris had no comment Monday, on Gant's suggestion.

Liquor Board Chairman David Shay also announced he would give "strong consideration" to revoking the tavern's license because the weekend commotion there constituted "a hazard to the public health and safety."

Mr. Shap predicted quick action Monday, but Joseph Van Collom, executive secretary of the board, told the AFRO Monday afternoon the board would consider action on the bar later this week, since a board member was out of town.

CORE PETITION contained 105 signatures on 10 sheets. Ten signatures are enough to register a formal protest with the board, according to law.

In still another development, owner of the tavern, William J. Ritter Sr., was quoted as saying he is willing to close the controversial bar.

Mr. Van Collom added that CORE asked that "since so many complaints were to be heard" that a special evening sessions in the neighborhood be scheduled.

This would break Liquor Board tradition which now has meetings in the Board of Estimates conference room at City Hall.

Mr. Van Collom would not comment on the changes of such hearings, nor the possibilities of Ritter's license being lifted.

There was no charge the bar refused colored patrons, Mr. Van Collom said.

Concerning the petition, Mr. Van Collom said CORE's petition listed four complaints against Ritter's Tavern:

1. "A black man's boy's finger was shot off" in 1965.

2. "A person was shot with complete disregard for the safety of women and children in the area" in the summer of 1966.

3. "Abusive language was used to colored patrons and women and children.

4. A "contempt for black customers" and service "lacking the proper respect" for colored patrons was evident.

DISORDERLY CROWDS were quelled twice Saturday night outside the bar, whose front pane glass window was shattered.

No serious injuries were reported, although four patrolmen were treated for minor injuries at Mercy Hospital.

About 100 policemen wearing riot helmets and carrying night sticks dispersed a crowd estimated at about 200 about 8 p.m.

Two arrests were made. Later a crowd of about 75 persons returned about 9:30 and took up the brick and bottle throwing again.

An extra detail of police were summoned and this crowd was also dispersed, seven more arrests were made.

Police remained in the area Saturday night, walking in twos and threes.

ing of the crime and therefore had nothing to say.

She said she was present when Det. Corbin "hauled off" and slapped her son and shoved him down into a chair. "Don't get smart with me," she quoted the detective as telling her son.

JUDGE SODARO said he had no difficulty in finding Wiggins guilty and referred to the testimony several of his youthful friends who claimed they had knowledge of the case.

Antonio Vega, 13, said he served as a "look-out" during the crime. Jerome Wells, 13, testified Wiggins told him he and accomplices "beat up two old ladies."

Another, Albert Wells, 14, said Wiggins told him while they were playing marbles that he and other youths "beat up some old ladies on North Ave. with brass knuckles."

Still another, Eugene Golden, 13, said Wiggins told him that he, Wiggins and others, "made a hustle" after forcing their way into the victims' home.

He also said he knew that Wiggins had a night stick, brass knuckles, and a gun. He added that at one time after Oct. 4, 1966, he saw him with $10, $5, and $1 bills.

Mrs. Pearl Starling, 1300 block W. North Ave., a neighbor across the street from the DiPaula sisters, told the court she had seen a man about 20 years old in the sisters' vestibule shortly before the crime was committed.

—Cambridge marchers

erick St. Clair.

LATER IN the evening, about 40 marchers were halted by State troopers after they had staged a 30-minute singing procession through the Second Ward. When the group reached Glasgow and High Sts., five troopers blocked the street and halted the march.

The march broke up peacefully and the marchers returned to the rally at the garage.

A HERO of the rally was the Rev. Ernest Dupred, pastor of the Church of God in Christ, who had planned to host the gathering until his bishop, James Leonard Eure of Salisbury, came in Friday and padlocked the church door.

"I talked to my bishop last night and he told me he did not send me here to preach civil rights . . . I'm sticking my neck out. I'm going to stand by my convictions if it cost me my life," the Rev. Mr. Dupree declared to thunderous applause.

"If I can't stand by my convictions I'm less than a preacher. Either I feel like we ought to have justice or I don't. Like I told my bishop, you can put me out of my building but you can't put me out of town," he said.

The Rev. Mr. Dupree said his bishop felt the church has a responsibility to the community but it was his view "the community has a responsibility to me as a citizen" also.

THE RALLY was aimed at a wide-ranging list of some areas including housing, education and jobs.

Among the job requests were ones for a meter maid and a member of the liquor board.

A major gripe throughout was that when barriers to new opportunities were beaten down, the "white power structure" handpicked people who were not true representatives of the ghetto residents.

Mrs. Dandridge bitterly assailed Gov. Agnew, contending he continues to ask for specifics of what people want when he knew six weeks before Rap Brown visited Cambridge.

"Only white people hold the answer to whether there will be peace in the future," she said, adding, "In '68 the battle truly may be joined."

CIG's Dino asked the crowd if it has ever heard of sabotage and "guerilla warfare." He also urged the elimination of Uncle Toms.

In a prepared text, Mr. Brown said "the philosophy and practice of non-violence and passive resistance fly in the face of all human experience and history."

Cambridge churches faced the prospects of pickets on Sunday because the militant leaders said that they had not stood with them in their fight to improve things.

which became effective Oct.

Signed into law by the President Aug. 31, 1967, PL 90-27, made many more widows eligible for benefits by reducing the marriage duration requirement from five years to one year.

According to Rufus H. Wilson, manager of the Baltimore Veterans Administration Regional Office, a veteran's widow may qualify for benefits if a child was born to the couple either before or after the marriage.

ELIGIBILITY FOR death pensions on a basis of need was extended to widows of veterans who served during the Vietnam era — since Aug. 5, 1964. Death pensions are for widows of veterans who survived their service period, but die later for reasons not related to their military service.

Widows on the current pension rolls will receive cost-of-living increases of $6, $3 and $2 a month, depending on their current income, with the largest increases (about 8½ per cent) going to those with the greatest need, Wilson said.

A $1 monthly increase will be paid to each child in the custody of a veteran's widow.

Where there is no widow, children on the current pension rolls will receive increases at the rate of $5 monthly for the first child and $1 a month for each additional child.

A special monthly pension of $50 (in addition to benefits they are receiving) was created for widow pensioners of all wars if they are patients in a nursing home, and if the Veterans Administration determines they are in need of regular aid and attendance.

Wilson said widows of Spanish - American war veterans, currently receiving pensions of $65 a month, will receive $70 a month.

THE NEW law provides additional income exclusions for purposes of determining a widow's need for a pension. Previously a widow could exclude from her current income the amount she paid for the last illness and burial of her veteran husband.

She may now exclude the additional amounts she paid for the veteran's last illness before she was widowed. She may also exclude any amounts she paid as wife or widow for the last illness of the veteran's child.

Widows of Vietnam era veterans (who served on or after August 5, 1964) are now entitled to receive a burial and funeral allowance of up to $250.

Burial allowances will be paid by the VA on receipt of proof of entitlement and the proper application, which must be made within two years from the enactment date of the new law, August 31, 1967, or within two years of the veteran's death.

Pension increases for the month of October will be included in checks received in November.

These increases as well as others under the new law will be paid automatically to persons already receiving such benefits. No applications will be necessary.

Information about eligibility for benefits in specific cases and assistance in applying for benefits may be obtained at any VA office, Wilson pointed out.
