4-day A&T workshop on non-white history

GREENSBORO, N.C. — Richard B. Harrison Auditorium at A and T University here will be the scene of the greatest workshop on the history of colored people in memory when authorities, scholars, and experts converge on Greensboro beginning Thursday, October 12 through Sunday, October 15.

According to Dr. Charles H. Wesley, retired president of Central State College and executive director of the Association for the Study of Negro Life and History, this 52nd anniversary meeting will assemble scholars from Howard University, North Carolina College, University of Massachusetts, University of North Carolina, Morgan State College, Norfolk State College, St. Mary's College, Florida State University, Virginia State College, Bethune Cookman College, Northwestern University, Texas Southern University, Sir George Williams University, Bradford College, and Kent State University.

Periods of black history will be covered from the "Rise and Fall of the Ovo Empire" up to "American Negro History" to "Booker T. Washington" to the present involvement with the proposed elimination of double standards in teaching history to American school children.

Black nationalism and Africanism, slavery in Latin America, teaching of colored history in the schools, and non-white political behavior will be the highlights of this unprecedented conference.

Delegates to the conference will be welcomed by Dr. Lewis C. Dowdy, president, A and T State University. Dr. J. Reuben Sheeler will respond. Sheeler is president of the Association for the Study of Negro Life and History.

Short-term riot steps due early

WASHINGTON — (UPI) — The President's Advisory Commission on Civil Disorders hopes to suggest by the end of the year some short-term steps that might be useful in heading off racial violence next summer, Illinois Gov. Otto Kerner, chairman of the panel, said Friday the interim report would contain preliminary measures that private industry, state and local governments could take to meet the threat of rioting in big city ghettos.

The interim report had been scheduled for release in March 1968, but Kerner said, "We are hoping to issue our interim report by the end of the year or as soon thereafter as possible."

The basis for the speed-up was that a March report might not give policy planners at every government level sufficient time to move on new or expanded programs before the summer of 1968 was upon them.

READY TO VOTE at Sardis Baptist Church, Rep. Carl Stokes and wife, Shirley, talk with election workers near ballot boxes. The Stokes' children, Iarl Jr., 8, and Cordi, 6, were kept out of limelight.

BOLD MOVE — With nomination acceptance speech in hand Carl Stokes answered questions from newsmen whose only available election return figures showed Stokes losing to Mayor Ralph Locher.

Mixed school board sought

ELIZABETH CITY, N.C. — Mayor J. Holland Webster urged appointment to fill the unexpired term of a member who quit in August. "Colored people have many children in our schools and deserve representation, Webster said.

Webster appointed two councilmen to nominate someone in November. There are no colored people on the school board presently.

Drugs field told to end job bias

WASHINGTON — The booming American drug industry has been put on notice by the federal government to end widespread hiring discrimination voluntarily or face government force to end it.

The ultimatum was issued Friday after the U. S. Equal Employment Opportunity Commission released results of a survey which cited rampant racial bias in the drugs industry.

The commission made the report public after a commission aide and Dr. James L. Goddard, U.S. Commissioner of Food and Drugs, met with 24 industry executives representing firms doing more than 70 percent of the nation's drug business.

• • •

THE EEOC spokesman told the executives either they voluntarily will recruit more colored workers and institute training programs for them and other minorities or the Government will take necessary steps to force them into such an effort.

The drug officials were reminded in the report that the industry has enjoyed high levels of economic activity and has benefited from Federal restrictions on importation of foreign products.

To document its bias charge, the EEOC report noted:

1. Colored people constitute 5.3 percent of drug industry employes, despite the fact that in many large metropolitan areas where such plants are located they represent more than 12.3 percent of the population.

2. Colored people hold 1.8 percent of drug industry white-collar jobs and sixtenths of one percent of sales positions.

3. Colored people hold only 2.1 percent of clerical jobs, despite the fact that such positions do not require advanced education and specialized training.

4. A colored blue-collar worker has only a one-ten chance of becoming a foreman or craftsman, while a similar white worker has a one-four chance.

5. Only 1 colored white collar worker in 33 is an official or manager, while the figure for whites is 1 in 7.

Dorseys first sister-team to become air stewardesses

By LULA JONES GARRETT

The first sisters to fly as stewardesses for a major airline will be the Dorseys, Joan and Helen. They are the daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Lynn E. Dorsey of Flagstaff, Ariz.

Helen was graduated, two weeks back, from the American Airlines Stewardess College, Fort Worth, Texas, in the first class to receive the new "American Beauty" wardrobe of red, white and blue dresses. In place of the traditional dark blue suits, American stewardesses donned the dresses, white shoes, red, white and blue belts and hair bows, last week.

Joan has been an American stewardess since 1963 and earlier this year was promoted to stewardess supervisor in San Francisco. Both girls were graduated from Flagstaff High School. Helen majored in elementary education and marketing at the University of Arizona and Northern Arizona University. She worked for three years as a Bank of America teller in San Francisco.

Joan attended Arizona State, then graduated from the University of Arizona with a bachelor of arts degree in education. She started her flying from New York, and was a member of the crew of the chartered American Airlines Electra used by Vice President Hubert Humphrey during the presidential campaign of 1964.

AFFAIRE D'AMOUR: Patricia A. Phipps and David John Ruth will be married in St. Martins Episcopal Church, New York City, Saturday. The bride-elect is the daughter of Judge Kenneth M. Phipps of the New York City Criminal Court, and Mrs. Phipps. He served for several years in the New York State Assembly. Miss Phipps received a bachelor of arts degree from Emerson College, Boston, Mass. last June, having majored in psychology education.

Mr. Ruth, son of Mr. and Mrs. John P. Ruth of Amherst, Ohio, is presently an ensign in the United States Navy training in nuclear power school for submarine duty. He graduated from Harvard University in June. Upon completion of his service in the Navy, he is scheduled to begin an assistantship in social psychology for the doctoral program at the University of Michigan.

The Rev. John H. Johnson will officiate at the doublering ceremony on the 14th.

In Baltimore, Friday, Mr. and Mrs. Amanda S. Sanders announced the engagement of their daughter, Carolyn A. Jackson, to Jack Brown Jr.

Miss Jackson is a graduate of Maryland State College and currently a student of computer programming at Baltimore Business College. She also holds down a post as a social worker in the Adult Department of the City Department of Welfare.

Miss Jackson is a member of Alpha Kappa Alpha Sorority, the Baltimore Youth Guild, the Council of religious Education and the NAACP.

Mr. Brown, a graduate of Baltimore City College, is with Bethlehem Steel Corp.

A winter wedding is planned.

Albert A. Raby, who shared leadership of the Chicago Freedom Movement with Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., has married, Paula June Novick, instructor at Bogan Junior College. The two met a year ago at a civil rights conference. Mr. Raby recently resigned from the Coordinating Council of Community Organizations. He plans to do graduate study.

PEREGRINATORS: Mrs. Mary Brownley McKenney returned to the States, this week, after spending six weeks visiting her son, Dr. Edwin T. Brownley in Heidelburg, Germany. While abroad, Mrs. McKenney visited Luxemburg, France, Italy, Belgium, Holland and Spain.

Dr. Brownley received his medical degree from Heidelburg University Medical School in April and is doing a mandatory 14 months internship in German Hospitals. He plans to return to the States to practice early next year.

Two other sons of Mrs. McKenney and her former husband, the late Rev. Thomas H. Brownley, are supervising engineers. Thomas Jr. is with the Old Carbon Company in Brooklyn, N.Y., and Gene is with the UNIVAV Computer Division of Sperry Rand Corporation.

Mrs. McKenney is now the wife of Mervin A. McKenney Sr., and their son, Mervin Jr., is a field engineer for Sperry Rand Corp. of Wilmington, Del. Mr. McKenney is head of the Vocational Education Department of Thomas Hunter High School in Mathews, Va.

Dr. Jerome H. Holland, president of Hampton Institute, will be in New York, on Thursday to present the 1967 Margaret Sanger Award in World Leadership to John D. Rockefeller 3rd, at a luncheon in Hotel Roosevelt. The luncheon will be a part of Planned Parenthood's five-day conference. Mr. Rockefeller will be cited for the leadership he has given family planning over the past two decades. Dr. Holland is a former recipient of the Sanger Award.
