Wansley appeals latest rape ruling

RICHMOND, Va. (UPI) — The Virginia Supreme Court was asked Thursday to free a colored man convicted in Lynchburg of raping a white woman.

Attorneys for Thomas Charlton Wansley said the jury had been prejudiced, the judge was obviously racially conscious which caused him to commit several errors, and that officials made statements inferring Wansley was guilty before the trial.

Wansley was arrested in 1962 and charged with raping a white woman, a Japanese woman, and with attempted rape of a white woman. The latter charge was later dropped.

He was convicted of raping the white woman and the Japanese woman. He was also convicted of robbing the white woman. He was sentenced to two death sentences for the rape convictions and 20 years imprisonment for the robbery conviction.

After conviction, the State Supreme Court reversed the convictions and ordered a new trial, at which a second conviction occurred. Both trials were held in Lynchburg. Wansley's hometown and the city where the crimes took place. A second trial on the charge of raping the Japanese woman was not held as she refused to return from Hawaii for the proceedings.

Thursday's petition asked either that the conviction be dismissed or that Wansley be allowed bond and the site changed for a new trial.

Attorneys for Wansley, said officials' statements after Wansley's arrest, blared news stories in Lynchburg's press and the "openly improper" conduct of trial judge O. Raymond Cundiff, were grounds for dismissal.

Wansley said prospective jurors admitted having been influenced by the newspapers on the case and on the character of one of his defense attorneys, William H. Kunstler of New York. The newspapers referred to Kunstler as having been affiliated with Communist front groups, giving the impression the effort to free Wansley was part of a leftist plot.

CARTER GLASS III, general manager of the Lynchburg News and the Lynchburg Advance, testified that he derived information on Kunstler from a personal "subversive file."

Wansley also complained that officials made statements after his arrest commending the Police Department for apprehending the person responsible for two rapes and an attempted rape.

Included in the long list of reasons given for dismissal were:

The indictment by the grand jury was invalid because it was based on an improper confession which was not even signed;

The grand jury, made up of six white men and one colored man, did not represent a cross-section of the community;

THE COURT erred in disqualifying jurors who opposed capital punishment;

The prosecution was permitted to introduce evidence for the sole purpose of inflaming the jurors;

Wansley was denied legal assistance until five days after the arrest;

The arrest was made without a warrant; an improper psychiatric examination was given to Wansley, a "mental defective" according to IQ tests but pronounced legally sane;

And police took pictures of everyone attending the trial which intimidated non-whites who may have wanted to be spectators therefore preventing a constitutionally guaranteed public trial.

Police chief kills unarmed N. C. man

GIFTON, N.C. — An unarmed Greensboro man was shot and killed by Police Chief Luther Lewis after the dead man's ex-wife complained to police of being assaulted by her former husband.

Chief Lewis said he shot Monroe Lee Westmoreland during a struggle in an open field. Westmoreland was under court order to stay away from his ex-wife.

Tan residents topping 50% in St. Louis

ST. LOUIS, Mo. — The colored population will be in the majority in the City of St. Louis by 1976, unless current trends are reversed, a study by the Model City Agency here shows.

The shift could come sooner, the report says, because the estimate is based on 30 years of back census data which the agency believes tended to undercount colored people.

The agency predicted that St. Louis will be the home for 63 percent of the state's colored population by 1980 under current trends, even though Missouri will have only 11.5 percent colored population statewide.

Police labeled 'trigger happy'

NYACK, N.Y. — Arrests of a model student and football star and three white newsmen here has sparked fresh cries of 'trigger happy cops' in this usually peaceful neighborhood.

The arrests were made when policemen swooped down on the area after a rock was thrown at cruising police car. The student, George Asnew Jr., failed to move on from the scene of the incident, police said.

The 17-year-old Nyack High school senior and football co-captain was among seven youths arrested in the crowd which gathered in the rock-throwing incident. His principal describes him as model student in deportment.

THE THREE newsmen arrested were charged also with failing to move on.

Community leaders charged later that the arrests indicate just how "trigger happy" police here have become in the last few months.

Realty firm cited for racism

PHILADELPHIA

The operators of a prominent center city realty concern have been formally ordered to cease racial discrimination in their rental practices, Clarence Farmer, executive director, Commission on Human Relations, announced Thursday.

A seven-page order was served on Jules Goldberg, president, and Samuel Elgart, secretary, of Barrington Management, Inc., the firm for the ten-story "400" Apartments at 15th and Pine Streets.

In August, Elgart and Goldberg were also in trouble with the Commission over another case. The Commission sought, and obtained an injunction barring another firm which they head, Chase and Walker Co., from renting a third floor efficiency unit at 1600 Locust St.

In the "400" case, 17 white tenants at public hearings earlier this year testified before the Commission that Goldberg or Elgart had made anti-colored statements, or otherwise indicated that they would not lease apartments at the "400" to non-white.
