JOHN MACKEY'S VIEW:

'Like all the others, Skins wanted badly to beat us'

To John Mackey, the Baltimore Colts all-pro tight end, the toughness of their game with the Washington Redskins in D.C. Stadium Sunday, was not surprising. In fact, it was typical that Baltimore had to come from behind and be all out to win the 17-13 decision.

"Like all the other teams, the Skins wanted badly to beat us," declared Mackey. "It wasn't exactly a surprise to me. As I see it, it was a typical game.

* * *

"I'M SURE all the guys on our club felt the same way I did. We know the Redskins have a good team, much better than the record shows. It stood to reason that they'd be gunning for us, coming off two bad games as we were, and themselves carping from the constant mention of our long winning streak against them.

"Moreover, they went against us with several of their key players out with injuries. This has a tendency to make everybody put out a little more. We know all about that from the time when we had both our quarterbacks hurt.

"All these contributed to the realization that it figured to be a tough game for us.

* * *

"THEN, TOO," John went on, "there was that little matter of playing against the Colts. For some reason, everybody wants to beat us.

"I've been in the National Football League for five years now. I've played in 79 games during that time, and every one of them was hard.

"It just made sense that the Redskins, under the circumstances, would be the same."

* * *

WHAT IS Mackey's view about the upcoming game with the Green Bay Packers?

"Of course, that's going to be another rough one.

"It seems that every team we get ready to play, begins to improve as our game approaches. It was true of the Rams, the Vikings and the Skins.

"THE PACKERS are no different," John moaned. "They were down early, but now they've started to get back to the kind of football they're capable of playing. Bart Starr's back and apparently healthy, and their running game is clicking again.

"But I think we have the horses to win.

"We are burning to win this one — not necessarily because we're unbeaten to date, or because they've beaten us so often in the past. We want to beat Green Bay because they are the best team on our schedule, and there's a certain feeling you get when you beat the best" . . . SAM LACY.

KNEE SURGERY — Ari Powell, long the premier pass receiver of the American Football League, has been lost to the Buffalo Bills for four to six weeks. Powell, who had scored four of Buffalo's nine TD's this season, underwent surgery late last week for a torn right knee cartilage.

EX-TUSKEGEE FLASH:

He can find path to TD's but doesn't know way home

HOUSTON (UPI) — Zeke Moore can find his way through kickoff defensive units better than any other American Football League player, but ask him how to get to his own apartment from downtown and he's stumped.

Moore, a 6-2, 189-pound rookie with the Houston Oilers, picked his way through the Kansas City Chiefs' kickoff team for 92 yards and a touchdown last Sunday to take over the AFL lead in returns. It was the longest kickoff return of the season.

But ask Moore how to get to his apartment and he stumbles through something like: "Well, that's a hard question. I don't exactly know. I guess you come out Cullen Street to that big grocery store, turn and go to the little TV shop and turn again and . . . oh, I don't know. I can't tell you."

* * *

RETURNING kickoffs and punts is easier. He's been doing it nine years, since his freshman year in high school at Tuskegee, Ala.

Until this year, he'd been doing it pretty much anonymously, at Tuskegee and at Lincoln University in Jefferson City, Mo. The only thing he'd ever led was the Mid-western Conference.

He'd be leading the AFL in both kickoff returns and punt returns if he could only make the Oilers' No. 1 punt return team. His average on kickoff returns is 30.6, topping little Nolan Smith of the Chiefs, who dropped to second this week with a 29.2 average.

* * *

MOORE was leading the league in punt returns until this week, but now he doesn't have enough returns to qualify. He lost his job three weeks ago when he dropped two punts against San Diego and the Chargers recovered both of them.

He was moved to the first unit again last Sunday in place of Bobby Janick, who was injured in practice, but he didn't get to field a punt.

* * *

MOORE, the Oilers' fifth round draft choice, said the biggest difference between college and pro is catching the ball.

"It's a whole lot different because most of the time you have time to catch the ball in college," he said. "They don't punt as high and as long as the pros. And the men don't get down as fast.

Moore, a 9.7 sprinter, has wanted to play pro football since he was in high school. He was the baby of a family of six, including three boys, but he was the only one to play football.

Livingstone aerials win 27-6

SALISBURY, N.C. — Sophomore quarterback Scott Perkins and All-SIAA end Sylvester Sutton combined to lead the Livingstone College Bears to a 27-6 victory over St. Paul's Saturday afternoon before a large high school Senior Day crowd in Ahumni Memorial Stadium.

Following an opening period in which neither team could muster any real gains, the Bears started the second quarter with a series of first downs which carried to the St. Paul's 23. Then Perkins faded back and threw to Sutton for the first tally with the play covering 23 yards.

AFTER the intermission Perkins passed to Sutton with the play covering 89 yards and carrying to the Tigers' 1-yard line, and Perkins sneaked over for the touchdown.

Near the end of the period, the Bears scored again when Johnny Jackson carried from the 18 into the end zone.

ST. PAUL'S scored in the third period with a play going from quarterback Ronald Blakeney to halfback Thompson, who threw to flanker John Watson, dashing down the sidelines.

The play covered 76 yards.

HARYOU chief in judge race

NEW YORK — In Manhattan, Attorney Andrew R. Tyler, president of HARYOU-ACT, the Harlem Anti-Poverty Organization, and recently chairman of the Bill of Rights Committee of the State Constitution Convention, has the Democrat-Liberal parties designations for a county-wide race for the Civil Court.

He is the lone non-white seeking elective office in next Tuesday's balloting in Manhattan, and has received overwhelming support in his campaign drive.

Dickey, Reese lead Tenn. over favored Southern, 27-16

By EARL S. CLANTON III

BATON ROUGE, La.—The passing of Eldridge Dickey and the running of Wayne Reese got Tennessee State even with the board at 3-3 for the season as they humbled Southern University, 27-16, before 13,500 fans under the lights in University Stadium, Saturday night.

Knotted 13-all at intermission, John Robinson, who was nursing an injured knee, caught a five-yard scoring pass from Dickey, capping a 90-yard drive initiated by Bill West's interception.

* * *

ROY MENEESE booted the extra point with 9:55 left in the third period, and the Big Blues kept the game out of Jaguar reach for the rest of the evening.

Southern rallied with a fourth-stanza drive, but had to settle for Mark Sample's 33-yard field goal as State's Claude Humphrey - led defenses bottled up the Jaguars 61-yard drive on his own GQTIM.

* * *

"I THOUGHT we had given another ball game away on mistakes and penalties during the first half," coach John A. Merritt chided after the game. "But the kids were tough when they had to be," he added.

"I thought Reese's running was especially good tonight," Merritt offered without checking the statistics to confirm that his leading ground gainer had really reach de a career high by churning up 109 yards and two touchdowns in 24 carries.

Quincy 'scores'

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Composer Quincy Jones will write the music and score for Richard Brooks' "In Cold Blood" at Columbia studios.

PLAYERS PICK STARS:

Bob Gibson, Mays bypassed; Cepeda, Aaron, Wynn named

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — The Sporting News has announced its all-star teams in the National and American leagues with three-game World Series winner Bob Gibson a loser, and Willie Mays for the first time in 11 years, failing to earn a berth on the National League team.

The NL team included three players from the Pittsburgh Pirates which finished sixth, one of them Roberto Clemente. The world champion St. Louis Cardinals and Chicago Cubs earned two berths, one of the latter being pitcher Ferguson Jenkins.

* * *

IN THE AL, the pennant-winning Boston Red Sox and Minnesota Twins each earned two berths, but the Detroit Tigers earned three places — pitcher Earl Wilson, outfielder Al Kaline and catcher Bill Freehan.

The all-star teams were selected by league players. First baseman Orlando Cepeda of St. Louis was a unanimous choice with a 189-vote total, highest among selections. Players on a club were not allowed to vote for their team members.

Hank Aaron of the Atlanta Braves, selected for the sixth time, garnered a total 119 votes, highest among outfielders.

ORLANDO CEPEDA unanimous choice

FRANK ROBINSON AL selection

* * *

FERGUSON JENKINS of the Cubs, was the alternate pitcher selected on the NL team which also included Bill Mazeroski, Roberto Clemente and Gene Alley of the Pirates; Ron Santo of the Cubs; Jim Wynn of the Houston Astros; and Tim McCarver of the Cardinals.

Gibson apparently was bypassed because of his failure to play a full season. Gibson suffered a broken ankle in mid-season and came around to pitch shortly before the end of the regular season.

* * *

JIM LONBORG, who won two World Series games for the Red Sox, but dropped the third game to Gibson, was the top pitcher in the AL with Earl Wilson of the Tigers, alternate pitcher. Lonborg garnered 141 votes and Wilson 129.

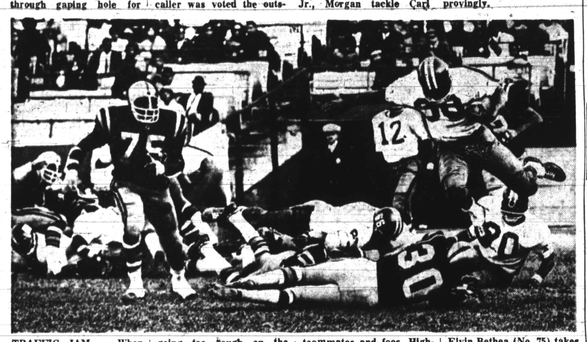
Other players on the AL team included Harmon Killebrew and Rod Carew of Minnesota; Brooks Robinson and Frank Robinson of Baltimore; and Jim Fregosi of the Angels.

Camera Captures Action, Pageantry At Morgan Homecoming

HOMECOMING ACTION—Morgan's Jeffrey Williams (No. 38) first panel takes hand-off from Quarterback Daryl Johnson and runs for daylight deep in his own territory. In center Morgan's Raymond Chester cups arms after ball, at left, fell through for an incompleted pass. A. and T. defender is making sure he doesn't have it. At right, Aggies fullback Thomas Blue wheels around corner on one of his long gainers which kept the Golden Bears subdue until the fourth quarter uprising to win their 23 consecutive game 27 to 20.

'GOLDEN BOY' — Morgan's quarterback Daryl Johnson (No. 12) hustles through gaping hole for tying touchdown when he found his receivers covered. The talented signal caller was voted the outstanding back of the game. In vain pursuit at left is A and T end Carmir Elmo Jr., Morgan tackle Carl Davis (No. 71) clears path for Johnson while Robert L. Smith (No. 62) looks on approvingly.

WARMING UP — Both the vocal chords and spirit of Bear rooters, held silent for three quarters by A and T University and chilly weather, burst into a chorus of "Mor—gen, Mor—gen," after quarterback Dryl Johnson drove his charges down the field for the clinching touchdown.



TRAFFIC JAM — When Morgan fullback Jeffrey Williams (No. 38) found the going too tough on the ground, he took to the air to avoid tangle of sprawled teammates and foes. Highly-touted A and T guard Elvin Bethea (No. 75) takes aim on leaping ball carrier.

PEP RALLY — Miss Aloha McCulloh leads a happy throng of Morgan alumni in a spirited pre-game rally on the school's campus before following their heroes to Memorial Stadium for a close Centennial Homecoming win over A and T State University.

REASON TO SMILE — These partisan rooters, who had little to root about for three quarters as the A and T Aggies led the Bears, began perking up when the men of Head Coach Earl C. Banks exploded in the final quarter to beat the visitors 20 to 27.

Garrett says he'll quit AFL to work with poor

NEW YORK — Mike Garrett, the Kansas City running back who spent most of his life in the melting pot of East Los Angeles, expects to give up pro football in three years and return to the ghetto — as a social worker.

"I love sports," Garrett says in the current issue of Look Magazine; "they've been part of all my life, and I love football. But there are more important things. I'd like to go and work among the poor."

GARRETT'S original five-year contract with the Chiefs has three years to run after this season. He expects to quit after this enlistment.

According to the articles, the road back to the ghetto is as obstacle-strewn as the one out. If Mike continues to dazzle coaches and fans, the money available at contract-renewal time will be hard to resist.

He also recognizes that the ghetto means class as well as race. "Growing up in Los Angeles near Watts, I could look at a guy and know just what he felt. But it's different today," he observed.

* * *

IN THE magazine piece, Mike recalls another time he almost quit football. It was after his first exhibition game in which he dropped a touchdown pass, fumbled a punt and missed his blocking assignments.

"Those guys from San Diego beat me up bad. They know how to hold you up so a couple of them could hit you. They hurt me so much that I wanted to cry.

"I called up my Mom and said I was packing my bags. She laughed."

BEAR HUG — Miss Paulette Holtsclaw, vice president of Morgan Student Government and Miss Tonya Golden exchange bear hugs with offensive guard Ronald Green in celebrating the Golden Bears 23 consecutive victory.
