Clean Block registration going strongly; sign-up

There is still time to register your block for the 34th annual AFRO Clean Block Campaign, Clean Block director said this week.

Unregistered blocks only have to fill in the application blank found on this page and mail it to the AFRO Clean Block office, 628 N. Eutaw St. or bring it to the office located on the first floor of the AFRO Building on the Druid Hill Ave. side, Mrs. Jeanette B. Leath, the director, explained.

Rules, regulations, registration blanks and window cards, captains flags and buttons are supplied all registrants.

Captains, advisors, or representatives from each block are urged to attend weekly meetings each Friday morning at the Crispus Attucks Recreation Center, Wilson St. at Madison Ave.

Here are some simple rules to follow in Clean Block organization:

1. Captain must get all persons interested in his block to sign up and send or bring their names to the Clean Block office. They may also be turned in at the Friday morning meetings.

2. He or she must call a meeting of adults and children and elect a president who will act as advisor.

3. Elect a secretary to record transactions at all meetings and send these reports to the Clean Block office.

4. Elect a block inspector, who will see that no trash accumulates in the block.

5. Elect a marshal who will call out the clean up crew at a definite time.

6. Do not whitewash trees or curbing. This is against the law.

7. Do not place flowers in beds of old tire casings on the sidewalk or the curbing. These may be placed next to the house, out of the path of pedestrians.

National College Queen wants 'responsible change'

By PATRICIA MCCORMACK

NEW YORK (UPI) — College students shaking the invied walls hate being treated like a number.

The new National College Queen, who says so, figures things would be a lot calmer if more persons in administration paid attention to the human element.

Valerie LaVerne Dickerson of Riverside, Calif., would like to see responsible college students having some say or at least a hearing in such matters as course content and teaching.

* * *

DURING HER stay in the San Jose State College journalism graduate hopes to keep in touch with other coeds who participated in the pageant, getting their ideas about conditions on campuses.

"The majority of college students feel change is necessary," she said. "Change with responsibility.

"Responsible students never criticize without offering alternatives. Ours is a misunderstood generation. We simply object to the way authority expresses itself."

* * *

MISS DICKERSON, who will study journalism at Columbia University next year, is the first colored college queen. She is the daughter of Lt. Col. and Mrs. William C. Dickerson.

Before her father retired from the army, she lived in England, France, Scotland, Hawaii, and Japan.

She said most students of her acquaintance are opposed to the money that's being spent on the Vietnam War while there is so much to do in the war poverty at home.

Miss Dickerson isn't sure how it happened but she isn't aware of either a generation or communications gap between herself and her parents.

"IF EVERYONE had parents like mine there would be no problem," she said. "They listen to me. When they make a point they give reasons and explain."

Miss Dickerson said her parents set up guidelines but never tried to force their opinions on her. She found it extremely helpful, in the formative years, to find them never volunteering controversial information to her.

She is as "NOW" as a mini skirt or body paint and she knows where she's going.

* * *

IN COMMON with many of her generation, she wants terribly to help the poor colored citizens. After graduate school, she hopes to head toward a news analyst's spot in radio or television.

When she makes a speech during her reign, she will skip the froth and touch on issues of a sociological nature.

"I am going to both political conventions," she said, "and will really look around. Then I will report back to the other girls who were in the pageant."

* * *

MARRIAGE? HER beau is going to aviation school and then faces a tour of military duty. By that time she expects to be set in her career and will be ready for marriage.

When they're apart, she carries in her heart lines he wrote to her once. The lines are her keys to popularity, as she sees it.

"Life is mostly froth and bubble; two things stand like stone — kindness in another's trouble and courage in our own."

VALERIE LAVERNE DICKERSON, new National College Queen, says college students rocking boats on campus hate being treated like a number. (UPI TELEPHOTO)

Embassy gala celebrates Somali Independence Day

By A. N. SAID

WASHINGTON — Ambassador and Mrs. Yusuf Azhari of the Somali Republic were hosts to about 400 guests July 1, at a colorful reception. In observance of Somalia's 8th Independence Day.

Among the well-wishers who came to the lovely Samali Embassy were members of the Diplomatic Corps, State Department officials, newsmen, Somali students in D.C., and other friends.

The elegantly attired guests munched on lamb, baked rice, salmon and exotic Somali dishes as they chatted with Ambassador Azhari and his wife.

Every one present had a good time despite the hot and humid Washington weather.

* * *

SOMALIA WHICH became independent on July 1, 1960 is situated in East Africa — bordered on the west by Kenya and Ethiopia, on the northwest by French Somaliland, on the north by the Gulf of Aden and on east and south by the Indian Ocean.

The Republic was formed following a union between the former British and Italian Somalilands. It has a population close to three million and its capital city is Mogadiscio.

* * *

SOMALIA WAS in the news here early this year when its newly elected Prime Minister Mohamed Ibrahim Egal paid a state visit to the United States. His visit followed a similar visit to Somalia made earlier by Vice President Hubert Humphrey.

A recent discovery of large deposits of uranium in the southern part of the country has kept Somalia's name on the columns of international news media.

A democratic and progressing nation, Somalia has come a way since the 1960 independence. Now with the discovery of uranium and prospects for oil, the country is entering its eighth year of self-rule with a very promising future, according to Afbassador Azhari.

AMBASSADOR AND MRS. YUSUF AZHARI (Host and hostess at Embassy party)

BRIDE-TO-BE — The engagement of Miss Sara Elizabeth Howell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Pinkney Howell of Mohawk Ave., Baltimore, to Eugene Joseph Smalley, son of Mrs. Ethel Smalley of Paulsboro, N.J., and the late Rev. Rodger F. Smalley has been announced by her parents. The bride-elect is a graduate of Morgan State College. Mr. Smalley, is also a Morgan graduate, and is studying for his master's degree at Towson State College. An August 17 wedding is planned.

Links urged into civil rights arena

OAKLAND, Calif. — National President, Vivian Beaman, of Cincinnati, Ohio, opened the 16th General Assembly of National Links, Inc., in Oakland-Berkeley, California, June 23 through July 1, with the challenge that Links develop new innovations in an era of dynamic dimensions.

The keynote address by Link Julia Smith, President of the Oakland Bay Area Chapter, gave the clarion call to action through a diagnosis of the words "innovation", "dynamic" and "dimensions", and equating them with "restlessness" "coldness", "a sense of reaching out" and "searching ourselves".

Links were urged into the arena of civil rights where the battle is thickest and no retreat until the battle is won.

* * *

DR. JOHN DAVIS, Director of the Educational and Leagal Defense Fund, expressed unbounded appreciation to the Links and pointed out that they have an unfinished task in that "no American is free, secure, adequately housed, receiver of justice in the courts until all receive the same."

He characterized the Links as women, blessed by time and circumstances, to play a kital role in bridging the gap between the races as well as bridging the gap with the colored community.

In the sacrificial spirit expressing the mood of the present crisis and implementation of civil rights, the Links felt that the times demand that the fulfilled pledge of $75,000 to the Legal Defense Fund of the NAACP — actually achieving $85,000 — should round itself out to $100,000. This would be done on a chapter membership voluntary basis during the biennium 1968-1970.

* * *

THE BANQUET speaker, The Hon. Yvonne Brathwaite, California State Legislator from Los Angelas; expounded upon the continuing theme that the crisis in race relations in heavily colored metropolitan areas, was her paramount concern for women of enlightened leadership. Her hope was that they not sit on the periphery of the action, but become totally involved in effecting a new identity with new solutions.

Link Margaret Hough, Cincinnati, Ohio, Director of Freedom Through the Arts, reported that chapters were strenuously engaged in promoting fine arts and the performing arts in their communities, and to this end that the major concerns are being realized.

These concerns are involving those who create the arts, those who interpret and disseminate the arts, and those who are recipients of the arts.

Links are dedicated to meet the special needs of the people, in our cultural system on a person to person basis.

* * *

LINK FOUNDER, Sarah Scott, Director of Services for Youth, reported that Negro youth in disadvantaged areas can project a dark future or a bright one since they started on the crest of indecision today as to their role. Link chapters presented creative programs with new creative innovations for the realization of the goals of high motivation, racial pride and a sense of personal achievement.

Link Bessie Hill, of Newark, New Jersey, Director of Trends and Services, reported that the chapters in each of the state reaffirmed their interest and responsibility in rendering pragmatic civic services to the task of building a greater nation.

* * *

LINKS, INC. establishes its public position at the Sixteenth Assembly of Links to the effect that: "National Links deplore the sensational coverage of civil disorders by the nation's mass news media and urges that they meet their responsibility in less inflamatory reporting;

They urge that the Federal Government change the policy in food distribution to the needy to the end that hunger is abated and starvation eliminated;

They look with strong disfavor upon any dogma or ism which advocates separatism in any facet of American life;

That adequate housing be provided for low income and marginal families;

That colored citizens' art, history and literature become a curricular facet in all stages of the school system;

That adequate Day Care Centers be established in order to return welfare mothers to the labor force.

AT FREEDOM LUNCHEON held during the National Links California Assembly in Oakland were, left to right, seated, Minne Gaston, Birmingham, Ala., national treasurer; Aileen Hernandez, Los Angeles, Calif.; and Anna J. Julian, Chicago, Ill., national vice president. Standing, Rev. A. S. Jackson, Oakland; Dr. Whitney Young, Urban League director and Freedom Lunch speaker; Perch Stéele, San Francisco Urban League director; Joshua Rose, Oakland City councilman; and A. Slacovitch, Berkeley School administrative assistant.

Officials at North Carolina College, Durham, N. C., have uncovered a startling fact and although the scholarly sleuths find it hard to believe the conclusion is inescapable. The dean of women reads mystery novels.

Miss Louise M. Latham, who retires at the end of this month after nearly 20 years at the College is a voracious reader and like many such readers, she can satisfy her constant appetite for written materials only with mysteries. Her thirst for such reading materials is not to be taken lightly, though, another reader with a hearty literary appetite read James Bond stories. He was John F. Kennedy.

It is somewhat doubtful though whether Miss Latham will have much time in her "retirement" to read her favorite type of mystery stories — "too gory" — because she is still considering the offer of a position which will require travel around the country. A tempting offer for a woman who has visited eight European countries already and has expressed her desire to visit Hawaii" as soon as possible."

* * *

IF SHE does not accept the traveling job, Dean Latham will make her home in Raleigh, N.C. where she was born and where she taught history at the old Washington High School.

Dean Latham is also a theatre buff. "If I were a woman of means," she said recently, "I'd be a first nighter."

She also enjoys volunteer service in the community too, and "would not like to be cut off" from that work.

* * *

THE YWCA, National Association of College Women and American Association of University Women have all benefited from Dean Latham's volunteer services. In addition she has worked with the United Fund and was a member of the Durham Human Relations Committee.

She recalls her election as president of the North Carolina Association of Women Deans and Counselors as her subsequent election as recording secretary of the National Association of Women Deans and Counselors as two of her greatest honors.

* * *

HIGH AMONG her favorite memories of her work at North Carolina College she lists counseling sessions with students.

"One of the hazards of counseling when you are dean of women is that students will be a little hesitant about counseling when you're in a position of authority," she recalled. "But I have enjoyed the counseling I was able to do."

Prior to coming to NCC, Miss Latham had been a teacher of history and dean of girls at Washington High School, Raleigh; a special counselor for youth with the U.S. Employment Service in Durham; assistant dean of women and acting dean of women at Howard University, Washington, D.C.

She holds a B.A. degree from Shaw University and an M.A. from Boston University.

DEAN LOUISE LATHAM (Retires this year)

ETHEL HODGE (Jarvis Charmer)

MRS. A. T. MORRIS JR. (Wed in Hawaii)

* * *

AMONG those listed as Jarvis Charmers at Jarvis Christian College, Hawkins, Tex. is Miss Ethel Pearl Hodge, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Quenten A. Hodge of Littlefield, Tex.

A sophomore majoring in business edecation and minoring in English, Ethel sings in the choir and hopes someday to become a teacher.

* * *

MR. AND MRS. Charles E. Jorgensen of Washington, D.C., have announced the engagement of their daughter, Karen Lee, to Randall Collins Morgan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Randall C. Morgan of Gary, Inc.

A December wedding is being planned.

* * *

MISS BARBARA ANN SEARS, daughter of the Rev. Mr. and Mrs. B. T. Sears Sr. of Spartanburg, S.C. became the bride of Capt. Ausker Theodore Morris Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Ausker T. Morris Sr. of Pacolet, S.C., in a June 14 ceremony at the Fort Shaffer Chapel in Honolulu, Hawaii.

Chaplain Wesley V. Geary officiated.

Witnessing the ceremony were Major and Mrs. C. E. Carr and the Rev. Mr. Sears.

Following a brief honeymoon in Waikiki the bridegroom returned to active duty in Vietnam and the bride to her home in Atlanta, Ga.

Upon Capt. Morris' return from Vietnam, a reception will be given for the couple by the bride's parents.

* * *

MRS. JOSEPHINE BRIDGES of Memphis, Tenn., is the new president of JUGS Inc., a group of business and professional women with chapters in three states and the District of Columbia.

She took office during the organization's recent meeting in Memphis and succeeds Mrs. Marie Bradford, also of Memphis who has become editor of the line, the group's newsletter.

Other officers are: Mrs. Eugenia Meyers, Washington, D.C., vice president; Mrs. Nedra E. Smith, Memphis, Tenn., corresponding recording secretary; Mrs. Mattie Washington, Baltimore, Md., financial secretary and Mrs. Hester Miller, Memphis, treasurer.

Also Mrs. Bonnie Kirk, Detroit, Mich., business manager; Mrs. Winifred Ashby, Baltimore, Md., chaplain; Mrs. Sarah Chandler, Memphis, historian; and Mrs. Millie Jones, Detroit, reporter.

* * *

"I HAVE a little work to do, you know," said Mrs. Marie Carl of Miami, Fla. —the most likely choice to head that city's Economic Opportunity Program (EOPI) — when she made reference to getting black young people to trust her.

"I'm a representative of the power structure," said the 45-year-old mother of a teenager, "and therefore I have to work to win their faith."

Mrs. Carl came to Miami in March from Atlanta where she was an executive in the regional office of the Federal Office of Economic Opportunity to become deputy executive director of the EOPI.

* * *

MRS. CARL brought with her a capacity for work and an optimism which should stand her in good stead if she is appointed to the position which was vacated last week by the resignation of Richard Weatherley.

She is a graduate of Clark College in Atlanta, holds a master's degree in philosophy from the University of Michigan and a law degree from Yale. Incidently, she graduated from Yale in the same class as New York Mayor, John Lindsay.

Before entering the war on poverty in 1965 Mrs. Carl worked for the Superior Court in Los Angeles as a referee, was an assistant to a California congressman, served as a Detroit policewoman and as a member of the WACS in World War II.

* * *

HIGHLIGHT OF the Assembly's presentations in terms of Links' national commitment was portrayed through the address of Whitney M. Young, Executive Director of the National Urban League, at the Freedom Luncheon.

The Urban League Director reminded middle class Negroes that they can no longer be separated from the problems, frustrations and anxieties of the disinherited people of America and that there can be no further delay in prompt and immediate answers which will establish rapport between those who are affluent and those who are less affluent.

He stated that "The sands in the hour glass of time are swiftly passing and any delay is dangerous to the American way of life".

* * *

NEWLY ELECTED officers for the Jennifer Hill of Newark, N.J., vice president; Mrs. Ruth McCants, Wilberforce, Ohio, financial secretary; and Mrs. Madeline Haskins, Sacramento, Calif., recording secretary.

Links will convene in 1970 in Cincinnati, Ohio.
