International Day here for Girl Scout visitors

Seventeen-year-old Merab Okech is a Girl Scout in Kenya. Recently, she and fourteen other Girl Scouts from various cities in the United States, Canada, South America, and Europe visited Baltimore's Echo House, 1705 W. Fayette St.

The Girl Scouts are in Maryland attending an international conference on "Citizenship and Service" being held in Potomac, Md.

Their Echo House visit was part of a guided tour of local landmarks and neighborhoods.

The AFRO talked with Okech from Kenya.

Does scouting in Kenya differ very much from scouting in the U.S.?

"No", says Merab, "they are very much alike except that we are called Ranger Guides instead of Girl Scouts."

According to Merab the Guides are divided into three classifications. They are Brownies, Guides, and Ranger Guides.

"As a Ranger Guide, I do a lot of camping," she said. "Also I teach the elderly of my tribe and make clothes for the young or children.

Merab earns her merit badges for such chores as sewing and cooking.

The second eldest of six children, Merab has been a Ranger Guide for three years. Her father, now retired, was formerly an agricultural officer with the Kenyan government.

Teens in summer career programs

Among some 19 area teenagers participating in a summer career program in mental health are Misses Marjean Davis of 3819 Callaway Ave.; Lola Jackson 221 North Fremont Ave.; Ethel M. McFadden, 1617 Elamont St. and Ann Savon Shofed 1638 North Fulton Ave.

Miss Davis, 16, a senior at Northwestern High, is active in her school Latin Club, Dramatic Club, and Student Council, and is a member of the yearbook staff.

She and Miss McFadden, 17, a senior at Douglass High, have been assigned to Rosewood State Hospital for the six-week program. Ethel's school interests include Furture Nurses Club and Furture Teachers of America.

ALSO FROM Douglass, Miss Jackson is one of two students assigned to the Inner-City Community Mental Health Center at the University of Maryland Psychiatric Clinic. Miss Jackson, 17, is a member of the Douglass French Club and student council.

Miss Shofed, a senior at Forest Park High School, is working at Spring Grove. She has worked previously as a recreation leader and instructor of modern dance.

Her school activities include secretary of the drama club and membership in the Future Teachers of America.

The students were selected for their particular interest in the mental health fields by the Metropolitan Baltimore Association for Mental Health now in its sixth year of offering this summer program.

Ecompassing a six weeks period ending in late August the program is designed to emphasize learning while working and to [illegible] considering careers related to mental helath.

Under supervision, the students are serving at Hampton, Rosewood and Spring Grove State hospitals and at the Inner-City Community Mental Health Center.

They are working as aides in recreation projects, arts and crafts, music and occupational therapy, and as assistants to hospital ward personnel. Each will receive a $150 stipend for his participation in the program.

WEEKLY CONFERENCES are scheduled throughout the project for a steady exchange of ideas between students and professional staff. In a number of cases the young people are living on the hospital grounds during the six week period.

Clark L. Mock, president of the Metropolitan Baltimore Association for Mental Health, has noted the far-reaching possibilities of this brief person-to-person encounter with mental illness.

"These young people are of the highest caliber and emotionally well-adjusted individuals," Mr. Mock said. "Everyone of them is excellently qualified to go into a career in psychiatry, psychology, psychiatric social work and other fields related to mental health."

Metropolitan Baltimore Association for Mental Health is a subdivision of the Maryland and National Association for Mental Health, and a member agency of CICHA.

Black lawyers overlooked for judgeships

RICHMOND

Richmond's 12 judges of record last week ignored the plea for black representation of the city's bench and appointed Lawrence A. Belcher as judge of Civil Court, Part II, and Max O. Laster as associate Juvenile and Domestic Relations Court judge.

The predominantly black Old Dominion Bar Association had recommended that its president, attorney Roland D. Raley, be named to one of the judicial openings.

ANOTHER COLORED attorney, Colston Lewis, was passed for a judgeship by Del. W. Ferguson Reid and Sen. J. Sergeant Reynolds 1968.

Mitchell

proposed "to rectify a few of the more flagrant abuses in the current administration of the draft" include:

1. Establishment of a free draft counseling service for draftees to advise them of their rights.

2. Assurances of full legal assistance through every step of appeals of draft board decisions on classifications and exemptions.

Portions of Mr. Mitchell's statement follow:

The composition of our draft boards is a matter for concern. On any draft board, most of the members are white. This is the fact whether the board functions in a mainly white or a mainly black area.

"The practice is widespread of appointing draft board members who do not live in the same area as the men who will be drafted. There is a special force for potential draftees who live in the inner city.

"Part of the American tradition is that a man will be tried by a jury of his peers. I am convinced that the decision whether a man should be drafted or exempted should also be made by his peers.

"It should not be made by people who know little or nothing of his life and his circumstances and his hopes and his chances.

"Draft Board No. 16, for example, in Maryland's 7th Congressional District, has only one member who is a resident of the area in which Board No. 16 functions.

"Board No. 20 has no members at all who live in its area.

"Board No. 22 has members who live in the Board's area. Board No. and Board No. 22 are both in the 7th Congressional District.

"Board No. 22, in a largely black area, has no black members.

"Colored members of draft boards are scarce anywhere in the 7th Congressional District, although the District has several thousand black families.

"Such non-white members as do serve on these draft boards have in all cases been appointed only within the past few weeks."

Joe Howard

wrong" with a system that restricts the average prison sentence of a black man convicted of raping a black woman to a little over two years but allows a sentence of well over 16 years imprisonment when a black man rapes a white woman.

Continuing, Mr. Howard noted the system has almost exclusively restricted the death penalty to black men who rape white women.

He said there is something wrong with a system of justice which deals with superficial symptoms without regard to critical causes.

Mr. Howard also charged the sitting judge's principle has failed to protect two of the three colored judges in the last two judicial elections.

And he pointed out that it has only been able to produce three colored judges out of over 200 in our state.

Mr. Howard charged that such a principle prostitutes the word "integration" by tokenism and gives the governor of this state absentee ownership of the city bench.

WITH RESPECT to qualifications, Mr. Howard contended that he has had more trial experience than the majority of his opponents put together. With his three academic degrees, and his attendance at five major colleges, he stated that he has had more academic training than any of his opponents.

By virtue of his experience as assistant city solicitor, prosecutor, defense counsel, and chief of the trial section of the State's Attorney's Office, he has had more diversity than any of his opponents.

Finally, he charged, that if one of the jobs of a judge was to protect minority opinion and minority rights no sitting judge or candidate has done anything publicly about the dual standard of justice which has continued to exist in the city of Baltimore, State of Maryland.

Hopkins schedules 'Rock Oratorio'

"Word Rock," a verbal-musical Kaleidoscope focusing on the generation gap, civil rights, Vietnam and the question of religious faith, will be presented the last weekend in July.

There will be three performances:

Friday evening, July 26 at Levering Hall on the Johns Hopkins University Homewood campus;

Saturday evening, July 27 at the Douglas Memorial Community Church, Lafayette and Madison Ave.

Sunday evening, July 28 in Slayton House, Wilde Lake Village Green, Columbia City. All performances will be at 8 p.m.

The production will be directed by Dr. C. Richard Gillespie, professor of drama at Towson State College.

THE SCRIPT, written by Dr. Chester L. Wickwire, will be read by solo voices and a speech choir to the accompaniement of the "New Apocalypse" band, directed by Gregory J. Novik.

AThe conclusion of each performance, the audience will be encouraged to participate in a "talk-in" regarding the issues emphasized in the script.

"Word Rock" is sponsored by the Johns Hopkins University as a part of the Jeffrey Lecture Series of the greater Baltimore YMCA.

New prison at Jessups by '72

Plans are being formed for a new maximum security prison to go up at Jessups to replace the Penitentiary now located in Baltimore.

According to State Commissioner of Correction Joseph G. Cannon, the new prison will house 300 or 400 inmates and should be ready by July, 1972.

When the Jessups prison is completed the Pen will become a reception and diagnostic center, Mr. Cannon states.

Building costs may run about $25,000 per inmate bed or an estimated total of from $7,500,000 to $10 million the commissioner said.

Some money about $350,000 was appropriated in 1966 to buy land and start planning for the new prison. Jessups has been designated by the Department of Correctional Services as the location. The land is state-owned.

Situated near the House of Correction for Women, Patuxent, the correctional camps center, the new facility will be better able to utilize professional staff and other personnel available in the area already in the area.

The Legislature will be asked for the funds.

The Pen with a capacity of only 560 persons now has a population of more than 800 prisoners.
