Park dedicated to late King Cole

CHICAGO (NPI) —Dedicatory services were conducted by the Chicago Park District last Sunday formally re-designating Park 270 as the Nathaniel Cole (Nat "King" Cole, park, on the Southside of the city in the heart of the black community.

The park, named in memory of the late balladpop singing star who died of cancer on Feb. 15, 1965, is one of several memorials in his memory throughout the world.

* * *

HIGHLIGHT of the dedication ceremony was the playing of many of Cole's immortal hits by the "Red" Saunders orchestra. Some such tunes included "Mona Lisa," "Dance, Ballerina, Dance," "Don't Forget," and "Those Lazy, Hazy Crazy Days of Summer."

Groups of black singers, dancers, baton-twirlers and musicians were also featured on the program, as were leading black business and civic leaders.

Also attending the services were hundreds of children, who are participating in the city's summer recreational program called "Reach Out."

W. Va. youth wins Elks Region II oratorial contest

James Perkins, 17-year-old senior at Williamson High School, Williamson, West Virginia, is looking forward to making a bid for the Elks $1,000 Martin Luther King Jr. Scholarship.

Perkins, competing in the Regional II elimination contest in Washington last week, won the regional championship with his oration on "Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. and the U. S. Constitution." He defeated three other contestants who represented Maryland, Virginia and the District of Columbia. Delaware also in Region II was unrepresented.

Perkins will go to New York City on August 23 to compete in the Elks National Oratorical Contest, an annual feature of the Elks Convention. The winner there will receive the $1,000 scholarship.

THE 40TH oratorial contest was held last Sunday at the Canaan Baptist Church, 16th and Newton Sts., NW, under the auspices of the Elks Education Department. Judges for the regional contest were Dr. Theodore George, Mrs. Doris Haynes and Mrs. Dorothy Gasaway.

George B. Murphy presided at the affair and the Rev. Browning J. Payton, assistant pastor, Canaan Baptist, gave the invocation.

Remarks were given by Mrs. Jean Clore Jones, assistant grand directress of the Elks Education Department, and Joseph A. Beavers, regional director of Region II.

* * *

OTHERS WHO participated in the program included: Mrs. Audrey Buchner, John A. Shelton, State director of West Virginia; Past Grand Daughter Ruler Bertha Bragg, John A. Jones and Mrs. Alice Brown, State directors of Virginia; Mrs. Mary Holly, State directress of Maryland; Mrs. Phoebe Hall, State directress of West Virginia, and Willis F. Jackson, District deputy.

Members of the Washington executive committee of the Elks Education Department include Howard A. Walker, director; Mrs. Helen Harris, chairman; Mrs. Audrey Buckner, secretary; Mrs. Martha Harriet, treasurer.

Lawrence R. Franklin, Columbia Lodge; Mrs. Christine Stewart, Columbia Temple; Charles Beale, J. Finley Wilson Lodge; Chauncey Williams, Greater Deanwood Lodge; Mrs. Maggie Smith, Greater Deanwood Temple; Henderson Walker, National Capital Lodge, and Mrs. Irene Baker, National Capital Temple.

SULLIVAN GUESTS—Smokey Robinson and the Miracles will be featured guests of the Ed Sullivan TV Show, Sunday. Joining the Miracles on the program, a repeat of the March 31 show, are the Young Americans, comedians Wayne and Shirley Cohen, the Baranton Sisters and dancer Peter Genaro; also actor Charlton Heston and Frankie Laine.

SHOWCASE STARS—Joe Lee Wilson (right) and Janet Evans shared the spotlight Tuesday on the exciting "Showcase '68" television program. They, along with Archie Bell and the Drells, and the Cryan Shames, are part of a "new-faces" format which offered acts never previously seen on TV.

Lionel Hampton to urge music project for youth

By PATRICIA E. DAVIS

NEW YORK (UPI) — Lionel Hampton, the "King of the Vibes" says the youth of Harlem, "want to learn, not burn," and he's determined to help them get that learning.

Hampton's biggest interest, naturally, is in the field of music, and it is in this area that he hopes to aid the ghetto youngsters.

* * *

"YEARS AGO," the famed jazz musician says, "some of the greatest names in the world of music came out of Harlem, but I've found out that it's the complete opposite now."

Fewer and fewer are coming out of there now."

* * *

HAMPTON BLAMES this on "the lack of music instruction in Harlem schools."

"There's no inspiration for youth to learn music in Harlem — no place to study. Harlem hasn't produced anything in years like they used to."

* * *

BECAUSE of this, the 54-year-old Hampton has plunged into a project to give Harlem a "cultural center," with programs of instruction based on those of the Julliard School of Music.

The project is still in the fund raising and planning stages but Hampton has high hopes for it.

"The center, which I would like to name after Mayor Lindsay, would be a symbol of great strength and learning to Harlem," he says.

* * *

HAMPTON, who lives in Harlem but also has a home in Los Angeles, first became aware of the lack of musical advantages for Harlem youth when he worked on Lindsay's mayoralty campaign in 1965.

"Lindsay would get out into the streets of Harlem to campaign," Hampton recalls, "and I took my band along with him.

* * *

"WE FOUND out the youngsters seemed to enjoy this. So we thought we ought to keep doing it. We formed a Jazzmobile and toured the streets of Harlem and Brooklyn.

"We'd play for the kids, then sit and talk with them. And we found out that many, many of them wanted musical instruction, but they could find no place to go for it."

It was then that the idea for the cultural center was born, he says.

* * *

DESPITE HIS involvement with the Center planning and his hectic concert schedule — Hampton and his 17-man band work steadily about 40 weeks a the year, touring the country —he still find time to give neighborhood concerts.

"This year we plan to take the band to all 5 boroughs. We hope to television the concerts and we give the TV funds to the Neighborhood Youth Corps.

"That way we can help the ghetto children everywhere," he says.

Dentists, Coca-Cola Co. sponsor dentistry study

The National Dental Association has announced a pilot project known as "Dentistry as a Career" on inensified program of recruitment designed to encourage young people to enter the dental profession.

The project's first year operation covers four target areas: Atlanta, Ga.; Indianapolis, Ind.; Houston Tex. and Washington, D.C. Plans are new underway to expand the number of cities in the future.

"Dentistry as a Career" is sponsored by NDA — supported by Coca-Cola USA, a Division of The Coca-Cola Company. The program's direction is the responsibility of NDA's Dental Education, Research and Professional Advancement Committee.

—PROGRAM ACTIVITIES include career seminars in high schools, speakers' bureaus, consultation with parents and an essay contest for high school students.

In the joint announcement of the program with NDA, Harold Hamilton, Market Development Department, Coca-Cola USA said, "Increased population is already straining our nation's present health services and our manpower. There is a need not only for developing facilities in order to meet for the health needs of larger populations but also to work toward developing men and women to administer this care."
