Atlanta minister to portray Christ

ATLANTA —The Rev. Dr. William Holmes Borders, pastor of the Wheat Street Baptist Church, has been chosen to portray Christ in the upcoming dramatization of the life of Christ "Behold the Man" at the Atlanta Stadium Sept. 15.

Director Frank Roughton, who himself has portrayed Christ over 1,000 times, had said that the man chosen must have an "Impeccable past, be dedicated, talented, well-educated and theologically knowledgeable —preferably a minister."

At a press conference called last week the Rev. Borders appeared in a beige and orange robe, barefooted and wearing a reddish beard and shoulder length hair. His face was sculptured with actors putty and he raised his hands, looked upward and repeated the Lord's Prayer.

HE LOOKED amazingly like Christ has been pictured.

The minister greeted the press with the words, "I only wish I were what I'm trying to be. I'm going to do my best in portraying this part."

Dr. Broders will lead a cast of 500 with a choir of 2,000 in the $70,000 production which is being underwritten by Atlanta businessmen and sponsored by the Christian Council of Metropolitan Atlanta, the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce and the City of Atlanta.

Scholarship Fund started in memory of flier Martin

NEW YORK — A scholarship fund in memory of Captain August Martin, colored pioneer in commercial aviation, who lost his life in a crash while flying emergency relief supplies for the International Red Cross into beleaguered Biafra, has been established by the Seaboard World Airlines.

Captain Martin had been with the Seaboard World Airlines since 1955, when he became the first colored pilot flying a scheduled United States carrier.

A veteran of World War II, Captain Martin had considerable flying experience before managing to obtain a pilot's post with the Seaboard World Airlines. Several independent companies made use of his services and he made many flights to Israel on important missions.

AT THE time of his death, he had taken a vacation from his regular job to fly the mercy mission. With him was his wife, Gladys, also an aviator, serving as co-pilot of the chartered Thomas J. Brown, a Rhodesian.

All three were killed as Captain Martin tried to bring the heavily loaded plane down on a roadway lighted only by lanterns.

Oddly enough, Captain Martin's sister, Mrs. Marguerite Martin Kennedy, formerly secretary to the executive director of the Harlem Branch YMCA, and Captain Martin's only living relative, died in California a short time previously. She lived there with her husband a psychiatrist and their young daughter.

As planned, the scholarship will provide schooling for a colored student or students to be selected by the Independent Schools Talent Search.

Blair Academy in Blairstown, N.J., has been selected by the Search organization as a participating school to handle the Martin scholarship winners.

UNITED NATIONS REPORT

Embargo against Rhodesia was just a political charade

By CHARLES P. HOWARD
UN Correspondent
UNITED NATIONS — The game's big white nations play with the freedom of black Africans is best illustrated by how well pledges have been kept regarding the United Nations sanction against South Rhodesia.

Howard

If you look closely behind the scenes and read carefully between the lines, judging from the shenanigans now going on between Ian Smith of Southern Rhodesia and Prime Minister Harold Wilson of Great Britain, the "kith and kin" crowd are about to get together at the expense and tragedy of the black people of Southern Rhodesia.

You will remember that Ian Smith announced his illegal rebellion against Britain in the interest of the white minority on Nov. 11, 1965. At the time, Prime Minister Harod Wilson announced imposition of sanctions against the Smith regime, saying that virtually all imports from Southern Rhodesia would be halted. Wilson also said all banking transactions between Britain and Southern Rhodesia would cease.

AFRICAN LEADERS, of course, called for direct force to be used against the rebellious Smith and the 220,000 whites he was leading. Only the use of force, they argued, could lift from the black Rhodesians, numbering more than four millions, the white racist dictatorship Britain had helped foist upon them.

There was brave talk then in London about the Smith regime falling "in a matter of weeks." To make the promise sound good, President Lyndon B. Johnson endorsed the embargo, and, with typical hypocrisy, United States planes were sent to Africa to ferry oil to landlocked Zambia, whose main suppy route had run through Southern Rhodesia. That was in December, 1965.

One wound have thought that President Johnson's endorsement of the British embargo meant the United States wood not trade with the white rebels. But in 1966, according to official statistics issued by the United Nations, the United States imported from Southern Rhodesia $9,359,000 worth of goods.

MORE THAN one-half of this amount went to purchase chrome, metals and asbestos, the commodities stressed by Britain as being the most important exports to the Southern Rhodesian economy.

But the U.S. aid to the white racist rebels was even more, because the 1966 U.S. exports to them amounted to $2 million less than the imports, thus giving the racists a favorable trade balance.

One could say that this trade with the outlaw racists was an oversight, that the U.S. had not had time to put its trading house in order so as to aid Britain against Ian Smith. But this was not the case, as we shall see.

ON DEC. 16, 1966, a year after the British embargo was announced, the United Nations Security Council, at the insistance of Britain, with U.S. support, adopted a resolution having the weight of international law requiring all member states to embargo all imports of "asbestos, iron ore, chrome, pig iron, sugar, tobacco, meat and meat products and hides, skins and leather originating in Southern Rhodesia." The U.S. representative on the Security Council voted for the resolution and pledged the U.S. to honor its provisions.

Lyndon B. Johnson, President of the United States, in an Executive Order (No. 11322) dated Jan. 13, 1967, "prohibited, effective immediately, notwithstanding any contracts entered into or licenses granted before the date of this order" the importation from Southern Rhodesia of any items on the United Nations banned list.

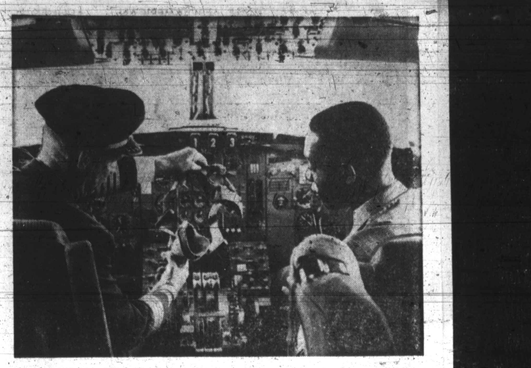
The Executive Order designated the Secretary of State, Secretary of the Treasury, and the Secretary of Commerce to see to it that the order was obeyed and gave "full effect" to the Security Council resolution (No. 232).

NOW THIS Executive Order certainly could be taken for a commitment; it sounded like one. But, like the promises of freedom made to black Americans for more than 100 years, the order proved to be only the acting out of a political charade; the projection of an "image."

The record contained in official statistics for 1967 shows that the U.S. imported from Southern Rhodesia last year $6,561,000 worth of goods. More than one-half of this went for chrome, and nearly one million dollars purchased asbestos — two of Smith's most important exports.

It is more than clear that one, or all three, of the Secretaries to whom President Johnson gave responsibility for enforcing the anti-racist embargo is guilty of nonfeasance. I wonder what would have happened to these same Secretaries if they had been as "negligent" in enforcing the United States embargo against China or Cuba?

IS THE UNITED STATES performance in enforcing the embargo against the racist ragime in Southern Rhodesia a demonstration on an international scale of the pre-Civil War precept of Mr. Justice Roger Taney that "a black man has no rights a white man is bound to respect?"



PRECEDENT SETTER — A veteran Northeast Airlines pilot left, is shown putting Craig Flowers through his paces. Mr. Flowers has just been hired as a pilot by Northeast Airlines and becomes the first person of color to hold this position with the company.

Northeast training 1st Bahamian pilot

Bahamian Craig Flowers has been hired as a pilot for Northeast Airlines.

He is presently attending a three-month training course and is expected to begin flying the Boston-Montreal run in about three months.

Mr. Flowers who is the first of his race to hold such a position with Northeast said that he was "thrilled" with the new appointment.

"NORTHEAST IS a relatively young company employing only about 500 pilots.

"It will be a great help to me that I will begin working for them at this early stage as it will give me a chance to develop with the company," he said yesterday.

As a second officer, the 26-year-old Flowers will begin flying Boeing 727 aircraft.

Originally trained as a diesel engineer, he first got interested in flying while working as a maintenance man or Bahamas Airways at Windsor Field.

Protests topic of fall seminar

ATLANTA, Ga. —"Students Protests 1968" is to be the subject of the first in a fall series of seminars under the Southern Regional Education Board Journalism Project at Vanderbilt University, Aug. 26-30.

Twenty - five representatives of the news media in Southern states have been selected to attend.

Representatives of the administrations, the faculties and students of Columbia and Howard Universities will present their views of the facts about the demonstrations staged at their institutions earlier this year.

Alpha Phi Alpha adopts statement on black power

DETROIT, Mich. —Alpha Phi Alpha Fraternity brought its 62nd anniversary Convention to a close here after adopting public statements on black power; civil rights and civil rights legislation; poverty and the Vietnam War.

Dr. Lionel H. Newsom of Atlanta, Ga., presided over the convention Aug. 5-8 at the Statler-Hilton Hotel. New Orlean civil rights lawyer and member of the Louisiana State Legislature, Attorney Ernest N. Morial, was chosen as president-elect. Morial will take over the office of president on January 1, 1969.

Newsom has served as president for the past four year and was praised for his dynamic leadership.

IN HIS annual message to the Convention, Dr. Newsom pointed out that the colored revolution is physically non-violent but mentally violent, and Alpha Phi Alpha Fraternity since its foundation in 1906 by seven colored students at Cornell University has had leadership in "the colored people's struggle for his freedom, dignity and equality."

He further claimed that in pile of this nation's pronouncements of equality and justice for all, colored Americans still constitute the largest proportion of the despised, the rejected, the poor, the illiterate, the economically yanidpd, pacefs the poor, the illiterate, the the occupationally unemployed and the politically disenfranchised.

Shifting his remarks to Black Power, Dr. Newsom said Alpha Phi Alpha was organized for the purpose of moving black people into every phase of American life, and it is "not opposed to black power as long as black power is militant and aggressive, but remains non-violent."

THE FRATERNITY statement further commended the work of the National Advisory Commission on Civil Disorders in identifying the basic causes of social unrest, racial tension and violence; and strongly urged the immediate implementation of the Commission's recommendations to reverse the trend toward a separatist society, and to assure the maintenance of a healthy, powerful and orderly society with the full participation of all people.

Poverty in America, the wealthiest nation in the world, is cruel, unjust and unnecessary, the nation's oldest Greek letter college fraternity organized by colored people declared. The statement called for immediate congressional action to alleviate the suffering of the more than 35 million poor people, 14 million of which are colored, in the United States. The statement also urged that government take every possible action to bring the war in Vietnam to a speedy conclusion.

A HIGHLIGHT of the convention was a memorial service for the late Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., who was a member of the fraternity.

The service was conducted by Dr. Martin Luther Harvey Jr., convention chaplain and dean of students at Southern University, Baton Rouge, La.

The Convention was dedicated to Dr. King. Judge Sidney A. Jones Jr. of Chicago, Ill., convention keynoter, said —"We are still saddened and grieved over the assassination of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. He was the greatest man of our day.

"He had a machless ability to win friends and influence people. At the age of 39 Brother King achieved what no other single colored-American had in a lifetime —he changed the face of the South and the nation in the field of civil rights and human freedom."

A PUBLIC meeting was held on Sunday prior to the official opening at the St. John's Presbyterian Church, with Dr. Wyatt T. Walker, former member of the staff of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., now pastor of Canaan Baptist Church of Christ and a special assistant on Urban Affairs, New York City, as the speaker.

Dr. Walker charged that the greatest crime of western civilization was the calculated and systematic exclusion of the colored people's contributions to this country's development by our historians and "unless the black man is included in our history and school studies we are lost."

Dr. Walker was cited by the fraternity for his work in the area of civil rights, and industrialist Henry G. Park, Jr. was cited for outstanding achievement in business. The wards were presented at the convention banquet by Arnold W. Wright, chairman of the award committee.

Other principle speakers included Percival R. Piper, who delivered the founders' address; Dr. Granville Sawyer, president, Texas Southern University, Houston; the fraternal address; and Ramon S. Scruggs, the banquet address.
