THE REV. FRANK MADISON REID, JR. of Washington, and Mrs. Irene Bennett Schmoke, Baltimore city social work supervisor, were married in Bethel A.M.E. Church, Baltimore, Saturday.

Public broadcasting conference set here

Business leaders, representatives of various civic interests, and educators will attend a statewide Governor's Conference on Public Broadcasting, under the sponsorship of Gov. Spiro T. Agnew.

The conference will be held in Baltimore Oct. 9 to discuss the potential of non-commercial television in Maryland.

The meeting is the joint responsibility of the Maryland Educational-Cultural Broadcasting Commission, the Division of Instructional television of the State Department of Education, and the Maryland Council for Educational Television.

L. Mercer Smith is honorary chairman, and mayor Thomas J. D'Alesandro, will keynote the meeting.

• • •

DISCUSSIONS PANNELS, each with a morning and an afternoon session, will concern the role of public broadcasting in the business community, its application in easing urban problems, and its value in the classroom.

Other panel topics will be public broadcasting and the performing arts, and general programming for children and audits.

More that 300 persons are expected to attend the conference which will have as its theme, "Community Service through Public Broadcasting."

The conference will point up the importance of Maryland Center for Public Broadcasting to business, civic, and profesional interests in the state.

The Center, now under construction near Owings Mills, will be headquarters for the seven-station Maryland public television system.

• • •

IN ADDITION to the Baltimore transmitter, to be located at the Center, there are to be transmitters at Annapolic, Cumberland, Frederick, Hagerstown, Salisbury, and Waldorf.

The Baltimore station has been assigned the call letters WMPB. It will carry non-commercial general programming through most of the boradcast day, and instructional programming during normal school hours.

WMPB will boradcast in black-and-white and color on UHF Channel 67, beginning next year.

Someday you'll see electric cars move out —powered by the energy of progress.

Electricity is the energy of progress. And you can see it sparking new ideas for the future—like the experimental electric cars that may one day transport you within cities, and possibly between them.

You can see it in the planning, the construction, the research sponsored by the people of the investor-owned electric light and power industry.

You can see it in all they do to make electricity even more plentiful and dependable, and to keep it low in price. Here and across America.
