Rites held for funeral director

GREENVILLE, S.C. — Funeral services were held for Sullivan Conway Franks, 74, well known funeral director here, who died suddenly recently. He was born in Laurens County and came here early in his youth.

Mr. Franks formerly was associated with the North Carolina Mutual Life Insurance Company and later with the E. W. Biggs Mortuary in Greenville, before establishing his own business in 1935. His funeral home in Greenville is the oldest colored mortuary in the city. He also had branches at Liberty and Pickens.

He was a member of Springfield Baptist Church where he served as a trustee; a member of District 4 Morticians Association, treasurer of the South Carolina Morticians Association and board member of the National Funeral Directors and Morticians Association.

Services held at Springfield Baptist Church were conducted by Rev. D.C. Francis. Burial was in Rest Haven Memorial Gardens.

New Tel Aviv U. program attracts 192 from America

By ELIAV SIMON

TEL AVIV (UPI) —The colored girl from Brooklyn, N.Y., the Jewish girl from Hawaii, the Vietnam War veteran, all have one thing in common —they are pioneering an international education adventure in Israel.

They are among 192 American students enrolled at Tel Aviv University, the forerunners of foreign students the school hopes will be drawn from all over the world by an interest in Israel and the creation of 10,000 scolarships. The grants will be distributed at the rate of 2,500 a year over a four-year period.

The scholarships pay one-third of the $1,800 tuition, room and partboard annual expenses.

The American group gives the University a head start toward its international aim. While most of its members are Jewish, some are not. The U.S. group includes teen-agers fresh from high school as well as graduate students, young people from small towns as well as from big cities.

* * *

IRENE PAUL, 18, of (31 Sterling Place) Brooklyn, is a Freshman and she said: "My year here is part of the special program of Westbury State College. But I have personal reasons for coming, too. I plan to study sociology and I'm interested in the growth patterns of Israel as a nation.

"I'm interested in the Kibbutz movement and I want to find out about the communities of the Arab minorities here." Miss Paul has special interest in minorities because she is a colored student. She does not share the view of some black activists that the plight of the American colored person is allied to that of the Arabs.

"No," she said, "I see no similarity whatsoever between the colored people and the Arab positions. The important thing is to translate the idea that colored people must realize that they must work for themselves."

The American in Tel Aviv was asked what she thought of the student accommodations in a small seaside hotel which the University has leased until new dormitories are completed. "So far" she said, "the setting is too snug and secure for me."

She will get her chance to view a less secure way of life this month when the Americans have an opportunity to visit Kibbutzim (collective farms) before the fall term begins in October.

Tuel spent the summer months in a crash-course in Hebrew, arising at 7:30 a.m. and traveling from their hotel at Herzlia on the Mediterranean to the University at 8:30 a.m. in three trucks.

They will remain housed at the hotel until December when the new segment of Tel Aviv University is scheduled for completion. The school now has 17 buildings, with five under way, and a student enrollment of between 8,000 and 9,000, being taught by 1,150 teachers. Expansion plans call for a future enrollment of 12,000 students, hopefully including a substantial number of Israeli Arabs on scholarships.

* * *

THE UNIVERSITY has put special emphasis on recruiting American students directly from high schools, teen-agers who might want to spend their entire college careers in Israel.

The presentations were made in high school auditoriums throughout the United States just as any other college might make its pitch.

Rabbi Mayer Abramowitz, formerly of Miami Beach, Fla., now special assistant to the university's president and head of American student affairs, explained why the unviersity was not using Jewish organizations to recruit students for the Liberal Arts program.

"These organizations are quite efficient as is," he said, "and do not need us. He wanted those youngsters that generally have no ties with a Synagogue, a Jewish club or youth movement. They are a great reservoir of potential which should not be ignored."

One such student lured to Isreal is Debora Shapiro, 17, of (2026 Kalanianaole St.) Hilo, Hawaii. She said she knew little of traditional Jewish life at home and added:

"I was quite worried about coming here because I thought everybody would be awfully religious." She has discovered differently however and sums it up by saying: Jewish, yes; religious, not necessarily."

Another Jewish student who probably could never have becin reached through traditional Jewish circles is Stephen Weiss, 20 of (1351 Delano St.) Van Nuys, Calif. He said:

"I'm not religious and I decided when I was 11 that I didn't want a Bar Mitzvah (confirmation). But since I've been here, I've changed my mind. So I'm going to celebrate my Bar Mitzvah at the Western Wall in Jerusalem."

* * *

WHILE THE UNIVERSITY hopes that the Americans — and later the other foreign students — will decide to stay on in Tel Aviv to complete their education, they are leaving the doors open for the students to choose freely.

The Americans are taking only English-language courses based on the American credit system in a program specially designed to fit into U.S. college curricula in case students wish to return home.

That is the perfect situation for Americans in Tel Aviv such as Harvey Grossman, 21, of (16830 NE. 8th Court) Miaimi Beach, Fla., who studied psychology for two years at Miami University.

"I've been wanting to come here (Israel) for a long time," he said. "It's too early to say, of course, but I'd be very happy to graduate from university here.

Asked about whether he would miss the student activism of the American campus, he answered: "I think most of the riots are a waste of time. True, I was never a 'campus activist.' I'm quite sure I'm not going to miss a thing."

HHH calls for equal justice, attack on crime

WASHINGTON, D.C. Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey Monday called for massive federal programs to provide effective police community relations and equal justice in eliminating crime and disorder in ghettoes throughout the nation.

The report, prepared by the Vice President's task force on order and justice, emphasized "that the chief victims of crime and violence are the disadvantaged groups of our society—the urban poor, white and black.

"The most frequent victims of the crimes are persons, who because of economic necessity or racial discrimination, have limited choices as to where to live," the study states.

"For example," it continues, "84 percent of assault victims and 70 percent of shown that urban slum dwellers consider crime murder victims in Washington, D.C. are black. And, every attitude survey of ghetto residents have one of their most serious problems."

FORMER ambassador to Luxembourg, Patricia Harris, now professor of Law at Howard University here, is a member of the task force which prepared the significant campaign document.

"This is a time for an honest, clear discussion of the issues—of crime, of its causes and control, of order, of justice," the Vice President said in releasing the 84 specific recommendations for combating, controlling and eliminating crime and improving justice.

The report, Vice President Humphrey said, recognizes three basic principles: (1) We urgently need vigorous federal support of state and local enforcement and the President must give decisive leadership to this national mobilization. (2) Action against crime must not jeopardize hard won liberties of our citizens or our tradition of state and local control of law enforcement. (3) We must not only prevent crime, but we must also aim at removing the economic and social conditions which contributes to it.

Brooke at odds with Nixon again

CLEVELAND — No sooner had Sen. Edward W. Brooke (R., Mass.) rejoined GOP candidate Richard Nixon's presidential campaign than he was forced to take exception again to a Nixon position on a key issue.

This time, the Senate's only colored member failed to agree with Nixon's attack on the government's "guidelines" on school desegregation and the use of funds to gain compliance.

Wooing Dixie voters in Charlotte, N.C. Thursday, Nixon declared:

"The freedom of choice plan is an extremely controversial issue. I think the use of power on the part of the federal government to carry out what a federal bureau might think as appropriate is very dangerous."

Nixon added that he tended to look "with great concern whenever I see federal agencies or whenever I see the courts attempting to become in effect local school boards. The decisions in the local areas should be made primarily by people who are more familiar with those problems."

AFTER BROOKE'S remarks, Nixon said, "Where the action of a local school board is a subterfuge for segregation it's perfectly proper for the federal government to act."

Nixon's statement was a slight modification of earlier positions in which he said the federal government should not withhold aid to school districts practicing segregation.

He said the Supreme Court's 1954 decision ruled there "cannot be legal segregation, but it does not talk about compulsory integration."

BROOKE, WHO is one of Nixon's advisors, said he would talk to the candidate to see exactly what the nominee has in mind as a substitute for withholding funds to implement the Supreme Court ruling.

So far, holding back funds has been the government's best weapon.

Earlier, Brooke had been at odds with Nixon publicly over such things as Nixon's criticism of Supreme Court

MISSING BANISTER — Second floor porch and missing section of banister mark spot from which Mrs. Anna Barnes reportedly fell last Wednesday. Pieces of wood indicate where Mrs. Barnes was discovered by neighbor. The victim was released from the hospital with lacerations, contusions, and sprains. City housing authorities are investigating the area for code violations.

Communists' candidate hits ban on fishing

SEATTLE — Mrs. Charlene Mitchell, Communist party presidential candidate, this week accused forestry officials and police in the state of Washington of "carrying out a policy of unbridled racism and sheer vindictiveness" in its handling of the controversy over fishing rights.

Mrs. Mitchell, in the area as part of a nationwide speaking tour, made the comment after meeting with people in the area who are concerned with the Indian struggle.

* * *

A GROUP of Indians and their supporters were arrested last week during a "fish-in" they were conducting to protest a ruling which says that the Indians may not trap fish in waters on their territory.

"What has a country become" Mrs. Mitchell asked, "that refuses to honor the rights of a people to fish as their fore-fathers before them have fished for centuries.

"What are we allowing ourselves to become when state officials can harass a handful of people for the 'crime' of trapping fish to eat?"

Biafra flights resumed at night

GENEVA (UPI) — The International Red Cross said Saturday it has resumed nightly relief flights into Biafra.

Officials said three Red Cross aircraft flew into Biafra Friday night with a total of 34 tons of food for starving refugees.

During the past 10 days the Red Cross has flown 525 tons of food and 73 medical personnel into Biafra during the night.

In Memoriam

CAMPBELL — In loving memory of my little daughter, DAWN PATRICE CAMPBELL who passed away September 16, 1965:
Before the throne of God,
Thousands of children stand;
Children, whose sins are all forgiven,
A holy, happy band;
Up there among the throng,
Our Little DAWN stands,
Waiting for me to join her
In that holy, happy land.
LOVING MOTHER,
KATHY CAMPBELL

ELY — In loving memory of EMILY B. who passed away September 17, 1967.
No one knows how much we miss you.
No one knows the bitter pain
We have suffered since we lost you
Life has never been the same.
In our hearts your memory lingers,
Sweetly, tender, fond and true.
There is not a day, dear mother
That we do not think of you.
THE DEVOTED FAMILY

GREER — In loving memory of my greer, who passed away September 16, 1965.
Today my heart is heavy,
My thoughts are all of thee.
Oh, how I miss you, CHARLIE dear,
None but God in Heaven can see.
Some say time heals an aching heart,
But, no, it isn't true.
For three long years have passed, dear,
And my heart still aches for you.
Devoted Wife CARRIE

JAMES — In loving memory of DOROTHY who passed away September 16, 1967.
Sad and sudden was the call
Of one so dearly loved by all;
A bitter grief, a shock severe,
It was to part with one so dear.
We often sit and think of you,
And speak of how you died.
To think you could not say good-bye
Before you closed your eyes.
For all of us you did your best.
Oh, God grant you eternal rest.
THE DEVOTED FAMILY

JOHNSON — In loving memory of my dear wife, INEZ C. JOHNSON, who passed away September 16, 1966:
My lips cannot tell how I miss her,
My heart cannot tell what to say;
God alone knows how I miss her
In a home that is lonesome today.
Husband,
EARL E. JOHNSON
