BUMPER TO BUMPER — This was the scene as police cars arrived on 14th Street when looting and burning broke out following the shooting of two women by a white officer. Glover photo.

POLICE POWER — Police moved enmasse to the troubled area on 14th St. when violence erupted Saturday. Pedestrians were searched as heavily equipped and armed officers cleared the area. Glover photo.

Quiet returns to 14th St.

month ago at 14th and U Sts., was also similarly put on an administrative leave with pay.

Officer Snow was responding to a citizen complaint that Miss Haskins was publicly disrobing on the porch of her apartment.

THE SHOOTING occurred, according to the police version, when Miss Haskins, mentally sick, of the 2500 block 14th St., NW, chased the officer with a butcher knife.

According to some witnesses, it was only after the policeman tried to disarm the woman that she started chasing him with the knife to 14th and Euclid, where he stumbled and fired two shots at Miss Haskins. One shot hit her in the abdomen while a rebound from the second shot hit Miss Walker in the chest.

A wild rumor spread among the residents along 14th St., and adjacent areas that two women were killed by police. Another false story that got currency among angry youths was that a 7-year-old boy was shot.

Bands of angry mobs, mostly of teens and youths poured into street corners and indulged in pelting stones, bottles and other missiles at passing auto and patrol cars. White motorists who were the prime targets of the angry mobs, ran through red lights and made illegal U-turns, only to be caught in the vortex of furious mobs in the next blocks.

AT LEAST three autos were burned. Five persons, including three motorists pulled out from their cars, were beaten by mobs. In two incidents, the white victims said they were rescued by black men from the mob. All the three white men lost their wallets with money.

SAMUEL COURTNEY, a photographer of a local daily newspaper was beaten and his camera was taken away by a band of young men, who warned him against taking pictures of the violent scenes.

Miss Adrienne Manns, reporter for the AFRO, sustained a leg injury from the shell.

Altogether 13 victims of street violence were treated at various city hospitals. Police reported 22 arrests on charges of disorderly conduct and flouting police orders to clear the streets.

Police were deployed in the troubled areas and by Saturday evening every available member of the 3,100-member force, was called in for duty. A total of 1,000 police were called for emergency duty.

By Sunday, more than 100 members of the Civil Disturbance Unit and two National Guard Military police units were held on standby.

FROM FLORIDA AVE. north to Park Rd. on 14th St., a heavy fog of tear gas hovered from the continual shelling of tear-gas canisters since afternoon.

Shortly after 6 o'clock Saturday evening, Mayor Walter E. Washington issued a statement reading:

"Since around noon today, I have given my individual undivided attention to the series of events which have arisen along 14th and Euclid St. as a result of the occurrences which began at 2500 14th St., earlier today.

"Rumors regarding the incident have run wild.

"Please stop false rumors. A full report of the true facts will be released as promptly as possible.

"Every section of our community — the religious, civic and business and officials of government, have been called upon and have responded in an effort to relieve tension and assure safety for all our citizens.

"We urge witnesses to come forward. We urge all citizens to cooperate in our common goal of assuring a safe community for all people," the Mayor's appeal concluded.

SHORTLY AFTER Saturday midnight, about 50 Washington policemen confronted more than 100 Howard University students in front of the Cook Hall dormitory. The students complained that the police teargassed the front of the dorm without any reason.

The police and the students faced each other for a few moments, poised for action. But the timely intervention of some student leaders who went into consultation with U.S. Marshal Luke Moore and Insp. Tilmon E. O'Bryant resulted in the withdrawal of the police from the campus.
