ON TV — The Young Saints, a group of 20 singers, dancers and musicians, will be seen on "The Jonathan Winters Show" Wednesday, Nov. 13 at 10 p.m. Embracing youths of every ethnic, cultural and economic background, the group was founded 12 years ago by former singers Tommy Roberts and Evelyn Freeman as an organization to provide training and direction for youths eyeing careers in the entertainment field. As was the case originally, the majority of its members come from the economically-depressed districts of Los Angeles.

Adoption conference set here Nov. 13-15

Kenneth W. Watson, director of Foster Care and Adoption for the Chicago Child Care Society, will be the keynote speaker for the Maryland Adoption Conference, Nov. 13-25 at the Sheraton Belvedere Hotel.

The Conference, sponsored by the Maryland State Department of Social Services, will bring together administrations and personnel of public and private adoption agencies.

Raleigh C. Hobson, director of the State Department, will welcome Conference participants at the opening session.

Carl Schoenberg, associate director of Louise Wise Services in New York City, will lead a work group on: "A Conceptual Framework for Services to Unmarried Parents."

"Innovations in Bringing Children and New Parents together in Adoption of Needs and Capacities of Children, and Abilities of Adoptive Parents" is the topic for a work group lead by Mrs. Muriel B. McCrea, executive director of the Children Center, Montreal, Canada.

Conference participants will have the opportunity to question Mr. Watson, Mrs. McCrea and Mr. Schoenberg, on innovations in the adoption field, when they appear as panelists at the Wednesday evening "town Hall Meeting."

Mr Clara J. Swan, director of the Adoption resource Exchange of North America (AREN), will lead a discussion at the closing session on "A Glimpse of Tomorrow: Its Meaning for Today."

Sponsored by the Child Welfare League of America, ARENA started in the summer of 1968 and provides a roster of adoptive parents and children for adoption, supplied by public and private agencies in North America.

Eclipse Club

At the Wednesday meeting of the Eclipse Club, first prize was won by Mrs. Mergery Cole.

Other prizes were won by Mesdames Annie Willis, 2nd and Marjorie Short, 3rd.

Mrs. Myrtle Dennis was hostess for the meeting.

Mrs. Esther Thomas is president; and Mrs. Mary Smith, recording secretary.

Education is week's theme at Lombard

"America Has A Good Thing Going — Its Schools," the theme for American Education Week Nov. 10-16, is being illustrated in various activities at the Lombard Junior High School during the week's celebration.

The highlight of the week's celebration will be a special Open House Day today (Tuesday).

During the day a PTA Meeting and Coffee Hour is being held from 2:30 to 4:30 p.m. In the morning a special presentation was given by the Music Department communications system under the direction of Miss Jean Williams.

Three special grade assemblies will also be held during the week. The seventh and eighth grade classes will view an original film made under the direction of William Jessups, head of the Art Department. Ninth graders will be introduced to this year's "Project GO" sponsored by the Guidance Department on an assembly program on Thursday.

Other activities include morning announcements of the theme for daily emphasis, a display of pupils' work from each department in the school, Open House from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. each day, special letters of invitation written in the English classes inviting parents to visit the school and a general emphasis on education in classes.

Mrs. Barbara J. Anderson served as chairman and Miss JoAnsley Bridge as co-chairman of American Education Week Activities. Mrs. Mildred J. Seaborne is the principal of the school.

EDUCATION WEEK — Druid Hill Elementary School 137 sponsored a panel discussion for American Education Week Nov. 10-16 Sunday afternoon. Included among the panelists were (from left) Mrs. Theodore Wilson, Mrs. Susan Nasdor, Alfred Gross, David Johnson and City Councilwoman, Mrs. Victorine Q. Adams.

Youths must pay school for damage

Judge Albert Sklar said in Criminal Court Friday he was at loss to know why young people wish to damage their schools, where they receive the education they will find is necessary in later life.

After giving a lecture to six teenage boys, he released them on probation before verdict for vandalism done to Columbus Elementary School, North Ave. and Washington St. on May 16.

However, the jurist required each youth to pay one-sixth of the costs of the damage, $280 each, a total of $1,560. They must also pay through probation equal shares of total court costs of $248.75, he stated.

Police officers testified the school was entered through a window forced open by a crow bar. Inside doors were also pryed open with the instrument, they testified. This plus other damages required about $500 in repairs, the court was told.

Also according to testimony, over $800 worth of equipment was taken from the school.

Youth course is offered

Fellowship House, 3200 N. Hilton St., is offering a course for training women to teach human relations to children's groups.

The sessions of the "Course in Children's Techniques" are held each Thursday from 1 to 3 p.m. at Fellowship House.

Pre-schoolers are welcomed along with their mothers.

There is no charge.

This Thursday, Nov. 14, the group will do a demonstration at the Ruxton Elementary School at 10:30 a.m. For information call Mrs. Edith Grice, VA. 3-3336.
