cause he allegedly misused congressional funds, said he has received messages from Vice President Humphrey, Rep. Hale Boggs, D-La., a House Democratic leader, and "many members of the House congratulating me and hoping that I'll be back."

The congressman-elect, dressed in a black blazer, black slacks, a black-and-white striped shirt and a white tie, was flanked at the news conference by two of his lawyers, William Kunstler and Henry Williams.

KUNSTLER SAID he had 45 days to file a brief supporting his case, and he expected the case to be argued next February.

Powell said he didn't know whether a favorable Supreme Court decision would restore his seniority, and said he was willing to return this year as a freshman.

But he expressed the hope that a favorite ruling would give him more than $65,000 he lost while being barred. He said he has been earning a minimum of $1,750 per speech on a college speaking tour.

Powell said he hoped that the allegations concerning him and other House members and the censure of Sen. Thomas J. Dodd, D-Conn., would cause Congress to pass a code of ethics.

funds be halted until the local program be brought into compliance.

The announced intention of OEO to probe the controversy surrounding the rejection of Mr. Carter and other complaints represents a reversal of the agency's original position.

In a Nov. 7 letter to Dr. Oakley Saunders, spokesman for the dissidents, Mr. Chapin said OEO lacked jurisdiction.

"Your recent telegram to Secretary of the Department of Labor Willard Wirtz concerning action by the Baltimore City Council regarding the selection of an executive director for CAA has been forwarded to this office," Mr. Chapin wrote.

"We have investigated this matter and found that the Department of Labor provides no Federal funds to the CAA and therefore lacks jurisdiction in this matter.

"However, OEO and the Department of Housing and Urban Development are providing Federal funds and do have responsibilities in this matter.

"We have requested these agencies to take appropriate action."

IN A Nov. 13 telegram, Mr. Chapin gave the unhappy commissioners this reassurance:

"Please disregard my letter to you of Nov. 7. The Department of Labor is providing Federal assistance to CAA. I have ordered an immediate investigation of CAA operations regarding your complaint.

"Will contact you further when the investigation is completed."

In the event OEO findings substantiate their charges, Dr. Saunders said, City Council will be compelled to revise its handling of CAA affairs or lose Federal funds for CAA projects and the $80 million Model Cities Project.

with every possible legal and vocal weapon.

Leading the protest fight were members of the Mt. Holly Improvement Association, Inc. with Richard M. Campbell, president.

Also present and helping in the cause were Father George W. Giese of the St. Cecilia Parish Serving as legal counsel was A. Heaten Nash of the law firm of Cross, Shriver, Bright and Washburn.

Plans were set up to meet with the highest officials in city and state government to help in better understanding the immediate problems of the Walbrook-Forest Park-Ashburton-Windsor Hills*Area and the impact a business of this type would have on the community.

THE PARTICIPANTS agreed that an enterprise of this nature would:

1. Help further to deteriorate an area already plagued with insurmountable problems and add nothing to the community.

2. The Establishment of this type will be too close to the new Walbrook Junior Senior High School.

3. Drive-ins have a long record of misconduct, congesting traffic, and gang hangouts.

4. The drive-In would create an unsafe atmosphere for the new medical center at Gwynn Falls Parkway and Garrison Blvd.

5. It is known that unfeasible practice are being carried on in the Junction (dope, prostitution, etc.) and the presence of a business of this type would only compound these problems.

Also attending was the president of the Walbrook Merchants Association, a business group with shops in the Junction Area. He concluded that a drive-In was not a good business to have in the Area.

THE GROUP further decided to have a voice in saying what businesses could come to their neighborhoods. Contributions were given in lieu of the mass publication and legal expenses involved.

Interested persons are asked to send contributions for the "Junction Drive" to the Mt. Holly Improvement Assn. Inc. Walbrook P. O.

A second special Community Townhall Meeting will take place at the same address on November 25, at 7:30 P.M.

Respective Committees are to report back at the next meeting with their findings.

All interested persons from all of the Improvement Associations are asked to join the fight for better neighborhood and community involvement.

-Police shootings disputed

man —I had never seen him before — came over to me and asked me my name and address. I didn't give him the information.

"Mr. Berry told me I didn't have to give anybody my name and address. He and the man had some words and then I told Mr. Berry 'let's go.'

He began walking out of the place.

"That's when this big man — later identified as Patrolman Bey — rushed over as if he was trying to catch Mr. Berry before he got out of the door. When I looked, the big man had drawn his pistol and was shooting.

"He didn't say who he was or why he was shooting Mr. Berry.

"Mr. Berry tried to pull his gun when the big man drew, but he was shot down before he could get it out of his belt.

"After he had fallen the big man kept shooting. That's when I began beginh him not to shoot anymore."

Capt. Hickey said his office is investigating the "possibility" that Mr. Berry's gun misfired.

PATROLMAN BEY, 35, is a nine-year veteran of the County Police Department and is assigned to the Dundalk Station, Capt. Hickey said.

Capt. Hickey declined to say whether the patrolman has ever been involved in a fatal shooting before and added that he does not know whether the officer has ever been involved in other incidents which have created such conflicting versions.

The captain declined to release the name of the man involved in the initial dispute.

The witness said when she heard the patrolman not to shoot anymore, he ordered her to "get away."

Mr. Berry was the husband of Mrs. Ruby Berry, a housewife, and operated an auto repair shop in East Baltimore.

Capt. Hickey said he will complete the investigation "as soon as possible." He added that a preliminary hearing will be held in Towson later this week.

Meantime funeral arrangements were not complete at presstime.

Eastern District commander, said that the officer told him and demonstrated to him that the shot was fired as the youth faced the officer with the knife.

Patrolman Hooper, a member of the police department since August 1967, raced across E. Lanvale St. after the shooting and grabbed another of the four suspects, he said.

With the second suspect, a 17-year-old juvenile, the officer said he walked to the 1600 block of N. Washington St., where the wounded youth lay on the sidewalk.

"The boy was rushed to Johns Hopkins Hospital by ambulance, but was dead when he arrived, at 10:48 p.m.

Attendants found a four-inch pen knife under the victim as they placed him in the ambulance, police report.

An investigation was made of the car abandoned on N. Castle St., and it was identified by serial number as having been stolen recently, according to police.

Dr. Edward Wilson of the city medical examiner's staff stated Monday that there was "no doubt" that the bullet had entered the youth's back. The bullet exited from the boy's left chest, the doctor added.

The youth's aunt, Mrs. Ruth Halliburton, 1600 block N. Wolfe St., told the AFRO that she and her family were sitting in their home when a shot was heard, about 10:30 p.m.

A neighborhood youth appeared at their door and told them of the shooting, she said.

Mrs. Alice Feaster, the youth's grandmother and guardian, who has reared him since infancy, was at the 1800 block N. Chapel residence at the time of the shooting.

When told of the death, she required treatment for shock, the family said.

Members of the family said Monday that the boy had suffered since childhood from a rheumatic heart.

The disease, which had struck the boy at the age of six, had left him with little physical stamina, Mrs. Halliburton said.

"He was never the same after that first illness," Mrs. Feaster said hesitatingly.

Recurring illness had prevented the boy from attending school, relatives said. A tutor had been provided to give him what education he received.

After a weekend spent mostly in bed, the 5 foot four inch youth, who had been "in and out of hospitals all of his life," was picked up at the Park Hts. Ave. residence of a cousin by a boy known to the family only as "Blackjack" and driven to the East Baltimore section where the auto chase and shooting occurred, the family said. He was employed as a sanitation worker, relatives said.

Other survivors include the youth's mother, Mrs. Mary H. Williams, 1900 block N. Patterson Park Ave.; his father, Morris McCready, 2300 block E. Chase; and nine brothers and sisters.

Funeral services are to be held at the Wilson Funeral Home, 2004 Orleans St., at 1 p.m. Thursday, followed by burial at the Mt. Calvary Cemtery.

—$90,000 dope haul

St. Peter Claver Catholic School, Miss Thompson is accused of transporting $90,000 worth of cocaine (expensive dope) from Baltimore to Cleveland.

She is facing a total of three charges:

1. Possessing a narcotic.
2. Possession with intent to sell the narcotic.
3. Conspiring to violate Ohio Narcotics laws.

If convicted Miss Thompson can be sentenced to from 2 to 45 years in prison.

The above reaction came from a woman who identified herself as Mrs. Chester who talked with reporters from the West Baltimore home of their mother.

"The mother, the sister told reporters, was "not saying anything about it (the case)."

FEDERAL AGENTS reported Miss Thompson was kept under surveillance by narcotics agents until she boarded a plane at Friendship International Airport.

She was 'received' by agents of the Cleveland office of Federal Bureau of Narcotics and Dangerous Drugs after her plane landed at the Cleveland Hopkins International Airport.

According to agents Miss Thompson is known as "Square Jane" in dope traffic circles.

A "Square Jane" was described by agents as one who can be trusted to carry dope and who is not known to police.

The attractive teacher's helper shared an apartment with two college co-eds on Loyola Northway.

Baltimore-based Federal agents and local police report that she is not known to be an addict.

According to James S. Bailey, special agent in charge of the Bureau of Narcotics and Dangerous Drugs in Cleveland, Miss Thompson is employed by one of the largest drug rings on the Eastern Seaboard south of New York.

AGENTS HERE declined to comment on the progress of their investigation. It is known however that they have secured warrants for the arrest of a suspected dealer who is a dominant figure on Pennsylvania Ave.

Investigators said the suspected dealer returned from a trip to Cleveland recently and they are operating on the theory that he is connected with the investigation.

Baltimore police who were brought into the case by Federal agents are keeping a close watch on known dope "hot spots" for repercussions to the arrest.

"There will be panic in the streets," said one veteran dope investigator, who pointed that the arrest had caused dealers peddlers to "freeze."

He reported at press time that "a gang of addicts were walking around in a daze because their supply had been cut off temporarily."

-CAA merger

existing welfare set-up had come from Albert Bertsey, former Community Action Commission chairman, as early as July.

Walter P. Carter, chief Model Cities community organizer, said that the rumored proposal "makes me sick all over again." Mr. Carter had been nominated by Mayor D'Alesandro to fill Mr. Mitchell's post, but was turned down by the City Council.

Mr. Carter, who is critical of the welfare organization, said that "we would have social surveillance not social security. The welfare approach is maternalistic and it wouldn't do his community any good. It would agitate them."

The Model Cities organizer called the rumored plan a "manifest absurdity" and said that "it would not be more than a modern version of colonialism."

Peter N. Angelas, a member of the mayor's staff, flatly denied that any such plan was under serious consideration.

Mr. Blount Monday scored talk of the merger as "an attempt to take the agency from the control of black people. It's another way of depriving black people of a voice in government."

"In an age when we are talking about home rule for Washington, D.C., community control of schools and the current trend is toward decentralization," he said, the move would go against that trend.

"The agency has its own problems," he continued. "Merger means bigger problems." He added that he does not anticipate the city administration's support for any such merger.

Textile mills sued for bias

The federal government has charged Kayby Mills of North Carolina, Inc. with employment discrimination against colored people.

Attorney General Ramsey Clark said the Department of Justice filed a civil suit against the firm in United States District Court in Greensboro, North Carolina.

It was the Department's 33rd suit under the employment section of the 1964 Civil Rights Act, and the 23rd this year.

Kayby is a manufacturer and seller of textile products in Thomasville, North Carolina. It employs some 570 white persons and 20 Negroes.

"law and order with justice." Mr. Clark succeeded Nicholas deB. Katzenback as the nation's chief legal officer, a post once held by the late Sen. Robert F. Kennedy.

Text of the citation reads:

"For superior leadership and courageous persistence in calling for the protection of civil rights and the just enforcement of the law which has given the nation landmark legislation from Congress and impressive victories in the courts, which protect the oppressed and punish wrongdoers who seek to deprive their fellow citizens of their Constitutional rights."

Mr. Goode will address the topic, "Who Will Answer?"

Dr. Jackson said leaders in government, education, religion, and the community will take part in the celebration which marks another highly successful membership drive.

Trial of actor gets under way

NEW YORK — The trial of Actor William Anthony Maynard which was postponed last week is scheduled to open here.

Maynard is accused of murdering Michael E. Kroll, a Marine, in October 1967. He had pleaded not guilty and had been held since under a $10,000 bail awaiting trial.

If cleared of the charge, Maynard has a big contract awaiting him to play the leading role in a new film to be named "The Other Way Around."

Your face is your fortune...

How many folks do you have on your Christmas shopping list this year? Ten? Fifteen? Twenty? Well, don't worry about being short on cash . . . with Union Trust's new Supercheck, you can get by on your good looks.

That's right! Supercheck is a unique new banking service at Union Trust that backs up your checking account with an extra credit reserve and also guarantees you instant cash when you need it. It's unique because you get a Supercheck Guarantee Card with your picture on it in living color. And behind the card is a credit reserve of up to $5,000, depending on your application. A reserve that you can draw on as though it were right in your own checking account.

To make a purchase for any amount, up to your reserve limit, all you have to do is write a check . . . regardless of your actual checking balance. That not only turns Christmas shopping into a delight, but also means you'll be able to meet sudden emergencies and take advantage of unexpected good buys anytime.

You'll also have an easier time cashing your checks with your Supercheck Guarantee Card. Because your face is on the card, Baltimore area merchants can be sure that Union Trust will back your check up to $100. After watching you write the check, all they have to do is follow the simple instructions on the back of the Guarantee Card.

So stop by soon at any of Union Trust's convenient offices and take advantage of that fortune in your face. When you apply for Supercheck, we'll take your picture and put it on your personalized guarantee card. If you apply right now, you'll be able to get out and do that Christmas shopping early. And compound your pleasure by beating the crowds.
