Move to aid upgrading rights unit

A concentrated campaign is under way to develop to a more effective level, including increased staff and operational funds, the states's Commission on Human Relations.

This is the agency formerly known as the Commission on Interracial Problems and Relations.

The developing campaign was launched Saturday in Annapolis, with a conference sponsored by the Leadership Council for Fair Housing in Maryland.

At a result, 74 member groups, including the League of Women Voters, are initiating a drive to create more public and General Assembly interest in the commission, and to press for its needed reforms.

'Missing' man found in morgue

The Baltimore City Morgue reports that officials were able to contact the family of a man who had been pulled lifeless from the harbor several weeks ago through a story that appeared in Friday's AFRO.

The family of Willie Melvin Martin, 37, of the 1100 block Flag Ct., reported to the AFRO last week that Mr. Martin had been missing since Oct. 24, when he left the house "to see a friend" and said he would be back "shortly."

His wife, Mrs. Regina Martin, said the father of five children, had been depressed for a year or two after several deaths in the family.

Morgue spokesmen said the body had been pulled from the harbor in South Baltimore weeks ago, just days after his disappearance as reported in the article.

The body had been identified from fingerprints, a morgue official said, but efforts to establish an address for him or for his family were in vain until the link was provided by the story in the AFRO.

Museum show explores maturing of artists

The Baltimore Museum of Art's current exhibition "From El Greco to Pollack: Early and late Works by European and American Artists," which extends until Dec 8, includes works lent by almost all major museums in the U.S. and Canada.

In addition, paintings are European repositories as the Tate Gallery and the Victoria and Albert Museum of London as well as the Stedelijk Museum, Amsterdam.

Dealers and private collectors here and abroad have contributed some of their finest possessions to the show.

The exhibition will only be seen in Baltimore, a limitation imposed by the value and rarity of the material assembled.

Gertrude Rosenthal, chief curator of The Baltimore Museum of Art and organizer of the exhibit, has selected pairs of paintings by 70 masters to present one characteristic example of each artist's outstanding early work and one from toward the end of his or her career.

The problems of change and continuity of style are explored by displaying side-by-side the early and late work of each artist.

Dr. Rosenthal has conceived and organized the exhibition, which is to be her last major project before retiring as the museum's Chief curator this year.

Her introduction states the exhibit's purpose: "We have pondered the question how consistent the artist's style—his 'handwriting' — has remained from the beginning to the termination of his career."

Asbury Church in Annapolis observing 130th year

By ELOISE RICHARDSON

ANNAPOLIS — Members of historic Asbury United Methodist Church on West St. one of the oldest landmarks in the state of Maryland of which the Rev. Hilton A. Parker is the pastor, are observing the 130th anniversary of the church this week. The celebration continues through Nov. 24.

The church is an outgrowth of separatism led by a lay group which had been attending the old First Methodist Episcopal Church here, now known as the Calvary United Methodist Church.

The racial policies which existed at that time hymied the progress of participation in the worship services. The group was forced to sit in a gallery which they entered by a separate door.

As a solution to this dilemma, this nucleus group of the present congregation was organized in 1838 as Asbury Methodist Episcopal Church.

Ground for the building of a separate church was donated by two members of the group, Mr. and Mrs. Smith Price.

THE REV Job Gess, pastor of the First Church, which was affiliated with the old Baltimore Conference of Methodist Episcopal Churches, and the Rev. Alfred Griffin, presiding elder-set up the new congregation and became the first official leaders.

They were assisted by the first local preachers, the Revs. Harry Price and Benjamin Drummond, who visited sick members and conducted funerals.

However, the administering of Holy Communion, an integral part of most church worship services, and the keeping of records and business leadership was under the jurisdiction of the First Church.

This created further unrest.

As a result, in 1862 a number of the original group removed themselves under the leadership of the Rev. John F. Lane. They organized themselves into another body, the nucleus of the present con-

TB rate highest

No city in the U.S. is free from tuberculosis, and Baltimore City has the highest rate of all. Diseases of the respiratory system ranked first as a reason for contacting doctors in 1967. Deaths from emphysema and bronchitis have almost doubled every five years since 1950, officials of the Tuberculosis Association aid.

These are a few of the facts about respiratory diseases in this country brought out in the Annual Report of the National Tuberculosis and Respiratory Disease Association, issued last week at the opening of the 1968 Christmas Seal Campaign.

The association, oldest of the national voluntary health organizations (established in 1904), last February changed its name from National Tuberculosis Association to National Tuberculosis and Respiratory Disease Association.

The change was made to fit the name to activities of the association conducted

Beer blamed for youth's rampage at Lombard

In Juvenile Court Friday, a 14-year-old Lombard Junior High School pupil was sent to Boys Village for an indefinite stay, "until he learns how to behave."

According to the youth's own admission, the offenses of which he was accused started with a quart of beer consumed before 8:45 a.m. school time on Oct. 16.

He and three companions shared the beer in an impromptu drinking party near the Chick Webb Center, he told the court.

"Then things began happening," he testified.

Juvenile Court Master Bernard McDermott presided at the 10 a.m. trial.

The teenager, who resides in the 400 block N. Chester St. with his widowed mother and teenaged sister and brother, came before the court charged with illegally being on school grounds.

It was testified he had been suspended Sept. 26 for cutting classes, sparring with girls, overturning desks, leaving class without permission, showing disrespect for teachers.

* * *

ACCORDING TO William Hays, 800 block N. Monroe St., special assistant to the principal, the teenager was not expected to be present at school since the suspension was "indefinite."

The 14-year-old was also charged with fighting in the school cafeteria and refusing to leave when ordered by school authorities.

Mr. Hays testified that he had known the youth two years and had taken special interest to help him try to mend his ways previous to the Oct. 16 incidents.

However, Mr. Hays told the court, he noted a faint odor of alcohol the morning of the incident and when he asked the youth to leave the school, found his conduct "strange."

Mr. Hays testified, "In the past I was usually able to get him to respond to me, but this time he was belligerent, loud, kind of wild and more aggressive than ever before."

The school administrator testified when he asked the teenager to leave, he re-

Free diabetes test today and Wednesday at Armory

Are you always hungry? Have you lost weight? Do you tire easily?

If so, you might have diabetes. These are some of the symptoms.

Check yourself out at the free diabetic center now open at Fifth Regiment Armory today (Tuesday) and Wednesday, from 12:30 p.m. to 8 p.m.

An hour before you go for the free test eat 1½ jelly sandwiches or two bars of candy.

* * *

USUAL SYMPTOMS OF diabetes are: excessive thirst, constant hunger, frequent urination, loss of weight, slow healing of cuts and wounds, easy tiring and changes in vision.

Persons likely to be diabetic are those who are overweight, over 40 years old, related to a diabetic and women over 45.

In addition to the diabetes tests, the dietetic center offers vision tests and chest X-rays.

500 teachers examine black history, culture

Dr. Hugh Davis Graham, assistant director of The Johns Hopkins University Institute of Southern History, will speak in "The Period of Reconstruction in American History" to some 500 Baltimore public school teachers this Thursday.

Dr. Graham will present his talk as part of a black "History and Culture Institute," a bi-weekly staff development series conducted by the Baltimore City Public Schools during the first semester of the current school year.

This sixth session will be held in the auditorium of the Herring Run Junior High School, 5001 Sinclair Lane, beginning at 12:45 p.m.

An associate professor of history at The Hopkins University, Dr. Graham previously taught at San Jose State College and Stanford University.

He has published articles on black history, desegregation, and black power in such professional journals as the "Tennessee Historical Quarterly," the "Virginia Quarterly Review" and in the "Johns Hopkins Magazine."

In addition to Dr. Graham's talk, the program will provide the showing of two films, "What Color Are You?" and one on the black American in history. An exhibit of art work created by school children and arranged by Mrs. Elizabeth Walton, art education specialist, will be on display in the lobby.

The purpose of the staff development institute is to provide teachers with better backgrounds so that they may better teach American history more accurately especially as it concerns minority groups.

Cellar Tomb Hides 'Missing' Son

Father confesses to 'ice box raid' slaying in home

When Albert Purnell walked casually into the Eastern District Police Station 10 a.m. Sunday he gave little indication that he is bothered by his advanced years.

He is 75.

Solicitous officers were anxious to assist him, thinking he had come to lodge a complaint against something of somebody in the neighborhood surrounding his 800 block N. Wolfe St. home.

Mr. Purnell didn't have a complaint. He had a report. When police heard it they made no effort to conceal their skepticism.

That is, until they followed Mr. Purnell's suggestion and returned to his home.

There they found evidence that the "old man," as they referred to him is not bothered by a lot of things.

* * *

MR. PURNELL'S 44-year-old son, George Pierson, was found in a makeshift tomb in the cellar of the two-story house.

The younger Mr. Purnell, Eastern District and Homicide Squad investigators said, had been beaten to death and nailed into a one-time storage bin two days earlier.

As calmly as he had walked into the station, the elder Mr. Purnell told police he had killed his son during an argument which followed the latter's attempt to raid the ice box.

* * *

ACCORDING TO Murder Squad" experts, the "Old Man" gave this unsolicited account of the grizzly evidence found in the basement of the quiet home:

George Purnell, according to the father, came home around 4:30 a.m. Friday and announced he wanted food from the ice box.

The senior Mr. Purnell said he objected and an argument ensued.

His son, Mr. Purnell told police, told him that he was going to the cellar and get a club with which he planned to kill him (the father).

That's when, the father told police, "I went to the living room and got the ash rake."

An ash rake is a tool used to stoke fires in fireplaces.

Sheldon set to act after 'last straw' gripe by parents

ELIZABETH M. OLIVER

Last Friday after a 9th Grade Rock Glen Junior High School girl was molested in the auditorium by an unknown man, parents took the opportunity to call for an investigation "of the whole school."

Terming the 11 a.m. incident (which has been confirmed by the Superintendent of Schools) as "the last straw," the parents report shocking instances of discrimination; reference to race of pupils through frequent name-calling; efforts to "hide what's going on" by Rock Glen administrators and teachers.

They stated that the attack on a white pupil by a white man is unrelated to the other complaints but it nevertheless shows up the fact that "something is wrong at the school."

The interracial group of parents who phoned the AFRO included a white father who charged a teacher with "ruining his son's vocabulary and mind by uttering the word 'N——' and implanting racial hate through her acts of discrimination."

Terming such teachers as "old die-hards that ought to be put out of there," the father added, "I'm burned up.

"If they're going to teach, well, teach! Don't go around ruining a child's whole future."

* * *

WHEN CONTACTED by the AFRO late Friday evening, Dr. Thomas D. Sheldon, superintendent, said if true, the situation at Rock Glen or any other school will be corrected.

Dr. Sheldon also said that parents having complaints about discrimination against teachers, administrators or any other matters concerning pupil welfare will receive prompt attention.

"We will take action," he stated and added assurance that "neither parents nor their children will have to fear reprisals from anyone."

The number to call is HO. 7-4000. Ask for Dr. Sheldon's office.

Dr. Sheldon also said "Tell the complainants to be prepared to give names so we will know whom we are to investigate. This is necessary."

6 ministers have over 100,000

Six ministers in the AFRO's Favorite Minister contest, have now topped the magic mark of 100,000 votes.

Newest additions to this charmed circle are: the Rev. Roscoe Williams, of Orchard Street Methodist Church, with 102,400 votes, and Bishop M. R. Saunders, of First United Apostolic Church, just 100 votes behind with 103,300 votes.

They are in fifth and sixth places.

The Rev. Lewis Conway, of First Mount Pleasant Baptist Church, continues to hold first place with 138,200 votes.

In second, the Rev. W. P. Mitchell, Payne Memorial A.M.E. Church, has 131,800 votes.

The Rev. Seawood Blackstone, Crowdenville AME Church, has 108,000 votes for third place.

And close on his heels is the Rev. Rufus Robinson, of the True Vine Spiritual Church of God in Christ, in fourth with 106,900 votes.

Ballots worth 100 votes for your favorite minister are printed on page two of each edition of the AFRO.

Just clip and send as many of them as you can collect to the AFRO at 628 N. Eutaw St., Baltimore, Md. 21203.

You will be helping your favorite minister in the way to some of the $2,000 in prize money that will be awarded our winners when the contest closes the second week in January. Last

City workers make union choice in 3-way election

Election day has passed for most Baltimoreans, but blue-collar employees of the Department of Public Works and all white-collar city employees are going to the polls again today.

They are voting in separate elections to decide which organizations, if any, will represent them in collective bargaining with the city.

Over 3,500 blue-collar DPW employees will decide between Local 44 of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees (AFSCME) AFL-CIO, Local 1231 of the Laborers International Union, and the Classified Municipal Employees Association (CMEA).

This three-way bid for support from city workers will be repeated Dec. 5 for the votes of over 1,100 City Hospitals employees and 70 City Jail correctional officers, maintenance men, and food-service employees.

A third election involving the three organizations is scheduled for Dec. 10, when approximately 3,800 blue-collar employees of the Department of Education will decide which union it wants as their agent.

At Local 44 headquarters, 305 W. Monument St., AFSCME field staff director P. J. Champa expressed

Author predicts 'camps' for Nixon

HEMPSTEAD, N.Y. (UPI) — Author Louis Lomax told a Hofstra University audience Friday he expected to be in a concentration camp somewhere in the United States by the 1972 presidential election.

Furthermore, said the award-winning writer, it was entirely possible there would be 10,000 civil rights leaders in the camp with him.

Lomax, who began his talk on a lighthearted note, startled his audience when he told them he expected President-elect Richard M. Nixon to turn to martial law to keep law and order in the cities during his administration.

Federal troops would be called out, said Lomax, and many arrests made. He predicted young people would be the first to be arrested in droves and sent to

OIC halts operation; eyes staff

The Opportunities Industrialization Center will conclude operations on Dec. 2.

OIC Concentrated Employment Program (OIC-CEP) will remain and as many staff members as possible will be retained.

The first of the year, a drive will be conducted to refinance and restructure OIC.

The above facts came from the Rev. Sidney Daniels, president of the board of directors of OIC on Monday.

According to the Rev. Mr. Daniels, the termination of OIC came as a result of the Monday 11 a.m. meeting of the board at his church, Emmaniel Christian Community Church at Lanvale St. and Carrollton Ave.

The minister said in addition to himself, all members of the 10-member board were present except John L. Berry.

The group which also affirmed the firing of the OIC director, Robert Holt, Nov. 21, includes:

The Rev. Harold Carter, vice-president; Fr. John Hoffman, secretary; the Rev. Edgar Reid, treasurer, and members Eugene Moore, James Morton Jr., Charles Law, the Rev.

Westcott free, $10,000 bail

James T. Westcott, 32, 2500 Block Edgecomb Circle North, waived extradition Friday in Detroit, Mich. and was taken to Cleveland, Ohio.

According to the Federal Bureau of Narcotics and Dangerous Drugs, Westcott, a familiar Pennsylvania Ave. figure here, was then charged in Cleveland with conspiracy.

Cleveland authorities have linked Westcott with a Baltimore parochial school teacher-aide and charged the two conspired to possess and sell narcotics.

Westcott, was arrested Nov. 15 in Detroit. The teacher, Miss Margaret Thompson, 28, 2400 block Loyola Northway was arrested Nov. 14 in Cleveland.

Arresting officers said they found cocaine in a secret compartment in her purse worth $80,000 on the wholesale market.

* * *

BOTH MISS THOMPSON and Westcott were traced from Friendship International Airport here and were apprehended when they arrived at the airport in Cleveland and Detroit.

The attractive teacher-aide is also free under $10,000 bail.

Local authorities said both she and Westcott are free to return to Baltimore until their trials begin in Cleveland.

Gang leader, 11 cohorts snatch $750 G — police

MIAMI —A former $2.28 an hour garbage collector with a third grade education has been tabbed by police as leader of a gang of 11 gunmen who over a five-year span hit 250 to 300 places for $750,000.

Daniel West, 26, 225 NW 20th Ter., the suspect identified as gang leader by Metro Det. Sgts. William Williams and David Green, is now in a Dougherty County, Ga. jail cell charged with armed robbery and assault to kill there.

Dade County has filed 50 robbery charges against West.

According to police the bulk of the robberies took place in Florida in Dade County, Tampa, Jacksonville, Avon Park, Lake Placid and Brevard and Broward Counties.

The gang hit places such as liquor stores, loan offices, drug stores and convenience stores.

Senate prepares Panthers probe

WASHINGTON — A Senate subcommittee is planning an investigation of the Black Panthers in California, sources here confirmed last week.

A San Francisco grand jury declined a broad investigation of the organization Thursday when it indicted Willie L. Brent, a Panther captain, on a charge of assault to murder a policeman.

Jerome Adlerman, chief counsel to Arkansas Sen. John J. McClellan's Permanent Investigations subcommittee, would not comment on any probe, but committee aides were in San Francisco last week.

San Francisco Mayor Joseph Alioto asked the grand jury to see if there was a conspiracy to kill police officers; the judge in charge of the jury, however, reportedly thought this was improper.

First policeman indicted on a brutality complaint

CHICAGO, Ill. (UPI)—A white police officer, who is the center of a brutality investigation involving the death of a 40-year-old colored Chicagoan, was indicted last Monday by a federal grand jury in a landmark decision.

Joseph D. Fine, 26, of 100 W. 111th Pl., was charged with violating the civil rights of Eldridge Gaston, of 7041 S. Bennett Ave., after Gaston died following an altercation with Fine and another police officer, John Smith.

Fine pleaded not guilty when arraigned in a surrendering to federal authorities.

Gaston was stopped for an alleged traffic violation at 76th St. and S. Stony Island Ave. on July 23. He died July 25 following the fracas with the officers.

A coroner's jury ruled his death was "accidental," Sept. 11, though the coroner's pathologist said Gaston died as the result of a severe blow on the head.

* * *

THE INDICTMENT was returned before Chief Judge William Campbell, of the Northern District of Illinois, in the Federal Building here.

It charges that Fine, while acting as a policeman, struck Gaston on the head causing his death.

It further states that this was done with the intent to deprive Gaston of his rights
