Streisand, Poitier get awards

SAN FRANCISCO — Barbra Streisand and Sidney Poitier received the NATO Star of the Year Awards here Thursday night at the convention of the National Association of Theatre Owners.

Julian S. Rifkin, president of NATO, said Miss Streisand was "uniquely qualified" for the award on the basis of her sensational motion picture debut this year in "Funny Girl" for Columbia Pictures and Rastar Productions.

POITER WAS cited for his succession of hit films: "Guess Who's Coming to Dinner," "To Sir, With Love," "In the Heat of the Night" and "For Love of Ivy."

Miss Streisand and Poitier were presented with the awards at the President's Banquet, the closing event of the convention.

LUCKY COLT FAN — This Colt fan (circled head) was doubly lucky Sunday. Like 60,000-plus other Colt fanatics, he whooped it up as the Hosses moved closer to a division championship by beating the Minnesota Vikings 21 to 9. He can also collect $5 if he brings this picture into the AFRO office before 5 p.m. Friday.

The cost of a tonsillectomy averaged $53 in 1955, adds $90 in 1967 — an increase of nearly 70 percent.

Supremes' own TV spot forecasts gala evening

HOLLYWOOD — Diana Ross and the Supremes will star in their own television special, Monday (December 9) at 8 p.m., EST.

The special will be aired on NBC television network, preempting Rowan and Martin's "Laugh-In."

It is another glittering first in the career of the world's number-one female vocal group. The hour-long production is appropriately called: "TCB," which, in the vernacular of soul, means "Taking Care of Business."

JOINING the multi-talented Miss Ross and the Supremes (Mary Wilson and Cindy Birdsong) in TCBing are their fellow Motown artists, the Temptin' Temptations, Paul Williams, Eddie Kendricks, Otis Williams, Melvin Franklin and Dennis Edwards.

Already, critics are hailing "TCB" as being "the first major black television special in history."

"TCB" IS staged as a gala musical. However, in one entire segment, Miss Ross, singer extraordinary, doesn't sing a note!

Instead, Diana goes completely ethnic and performs a series of African dances against a background of flashing stills. An exciting over-all performance by Diana leaves no doubt that she is headed for a new pinnacle of stardom in television.

Both the Supremes and the Temptations are cast in some of the television industry's most brilliantly-staged and beautifully-costumes song-and-dance sequences.

"TCB" IS the first television venture of Motown Productions, Inc., the newest subsidiary of Motown Record Corp., in association with George Schlatter-Ed Friendly Productions. Berry Gordy, Jr., Motown's founder and president, served as creative consultant for the production.

"TCB," is directed by one of television's freshest talents, Mike Warren, who also directed the all-black "Soul" special aired on NBC last month.

Morgan hears Miss Hinderas

BALTIMORE — Music lovers of this city will receive a rare treat on Monday, when world renown pianist, Natalie Hinderas performs before the student body, faculty and guests at Morgan State College.

Miss Hinderas has performed in Europe, Asia, Africa and in every section of the United States, and is regarded by leading critics as a concert pianist with command, insight and compelling imagination.

MISS HINDERAS has often traveled for months on special assignment for the State Department carrying out missions of goodwill.

The recital at Morgan State College marks the sixth stop on a tour that takes the pianist through southern colleges this fall and winter.

Report issued on transplant organs

The Study Committee on Transplanted Organs, established by Attorney General Francis B. Burch, has resumed its attempts to provide all the necessary legal safeguards in this relatively new medical field.

Last year the committee drafted a bill establishing the procedures by which transplants may be authorized in Maryland. This bill, sponsored by Sen. Julian Lapides, was passed at the 1968 session of the General Assembly, and is known as the "Anatomical Gift Act."

A subcommittee is now preparing a donor card to be carried by citizens, indicating their approval of the use of portions of their bodies for transplants after their death.

Another subcommittee is working on legal problems related to blood, tissue and bone banks and questions of legal liability for transplantation of diseased organs.

A third subcommittee is seeking an acceptable legal definition of death, according to Mr. Burch.

THE SUBCOMMITTEE on Definition of Death met Friday in the office of Attorney General Burch.

At the conclusion of the meeting, the following statement was issued by Subcommittee Chairman Robert F. Sweeney:

"The laws of this State do not now contain a precise definition of death, and our initial research has failed to disclose any definition of death in the statutes of the other 49 States.

"We are not prepared at this time to say that our laws must provide any such definition. Certainly, this subcommittee has not had any instance brought to its attention of medical abuse resulting from the omission of a definition of death in our law.

"It appears obious to us that our studies of this question must continue for a considerable period of time.

"It is our intention to thoroughly examine all pertinent laws in other jurisdictions, within and without this Country, and to make a continuing evaluation of the medical discussions relating to this problem.

"We are conscious of the many medical, legal, and religious ramifications implict in this study, and we will consult with all available, responsible sources before making our report to the Study Committee on Transplanted Organs, for presentation to the General Assembly.

"We approach our study of this problem with the thought that the thing most to be feared is some precipitious legal action which may arbitrarily or illogically prevent further advances in the field of medical transplantation.

"Or which, on the other hand, might permit such transplants to be undertaken without sufficient deliberation, or proper safeguards for the life of the donor."

The Subcommittee on Definition of Death will meet again on Dec. 19.

Pressman blasts Agnew for delay in resigning

By MAX JOHNSON

Hyman A. Pressman, Baltimore comptroller, leveled a scathing attack today (Tuesday) on Gov. Spiro T. Agnew for delay in announcing for his resign

Mr. Pressman termed Vice President-elect Agnew's delay "most unfair to the people of Maryland."

He pointed out that a special session of the General Assembly should be called immediately to name a new governor, and that the new governor must have ample time to work on the state budget and his legislative program.

Mr. Pressman charged that the Agnew delay of action until he is confirmed by the electoral college "preposterous."

THE CITY comptroller, incidentally, is one of the few key democrats who is not making a bid for successor to Gov. Agnew.

The field now includes:

William S. James, president of the Senate; Marvin Mandel, Speaker of the House of Delegates; Harry R. Hughes, Senate majority floor leader Thomas H. Lowe, Democratic House leader;

Louis L. Goldstein, state comptroller; Carlton R. Sickles, former congressman; Dale Anderson, Baltimore County executive, and Francis X. Gallagher, prominent Baltimore attorney and former state legislator.

General consensus of opinion is that the General Assembly will name one of its own members to succeed Gov. Agnew.

Odd-makers are giving Mr. Mandel the edge at this point, by virtue of his firm control over the House of Delegates and its 142 members, along with his status as chairman of the Democratic State Central Committee.

The public's only role in the choice of a new governor can come through whatever influence can be exerted on Assembly members.

MR. PRESSMAN leveled his charges to Gov. Agnew in a letter to the Vice President-elect on Monday.

Here is the text of that letter:

"I urge you to announce forthwith the date of your resignation as governor, and to call a special session of the Legislature to elect a successor.

"Your delay in resigning is most unfair to the people of Maryland. The new governor should have time to work on the budget, the green bag and his legislative program.

"Your contention that you want to wait and make sure you are elected Vice President by waiting until the electoral college acts, is preposterous.

"The chances of your not being elected by the electoral college are so remote, that your delay shows extraordinary selfishness and a lack of regard for the public welfare.

"It will take a few days for the legislature to come into session, and it may take considerable time for the legislators to reach a decision.

"Therefore, the announcement of the date of your resignation and the date of a special session is long overdue. If the ship of state is left without a rudder for a critical period of time, it will be your fault."

• • •

ASKED BY the AFRO whether he was in mind a Christmas present for Vice President-elect Agnew, Mr. Pressman said:

"Gee, I hadn't given it much thought. But maybe a foot-remover would be just the thing —something to help him keep his foot out of his mouth."

Out of jail after decade, goes back for shoplifting

A man who stated in open court that he had recently completed a decade behind bars was sentenced to one year's imprisonment Wednesday, for shoplifting.

Robert Tyler Jr., 43, 2200 block Forest Glen Rd., told Judge Albert H. Blum in Central Municipal Court that the ten-year sentence had been imposed for a narcotics violation.

The judge found the defendant guilty of removing four pairs of pajamas, valued at $18.68, from a W. Lexington St. store.

The convicted man offered no defense.
