board of directors of the Baltimore OIC Inc.; herewith give our president, the Rev. Sidney Daniels, a vote of confidence in his leadership.

"We further want it known by all concerned persons that the termination of Robert Holt, the former executive director, by the board, by unanimous vote of members present, and not an individual action.

"We further want it known that the board of directors is doing everything possible to revive and retain the Baltimore OIC and continue its program."

The statement was signed by the Rev. Winfield A. Showell, Edgar Reid, Harold A. Carter, James Moore, Charles R. Law and James A. Morton.

One of the demands listed by staff members was the reinstatement of Mr. Holt as executive director of OIC.

They contended that the Rev. Mr. Daniels "alone maneuvered the firing of Mr. Holt, and then announced an alleged decision of the board to close OIC as of Dec. 2."

In asking the minister to resign the staff delegation charged that as long as the Rev. Mr. Daniels remained as president of the board, OIC would receive no further monetary assistance from the business community.

They also charged that a proposed $1 million grant from the Model Cities Agency would not be forthcoming unless the Rev. Mr. Daniels resigned.

Edward M. Ewing, director of the Model Cities Agencies, refuted that point late Monday.

"We are not interested in board personalities or internal disputes," Mr. Ewing told the AFRO.

"We will not say a word about personalities. We are only concerned about the program (OIC's) and how it serves the needs of the people of the community."

Mr. Ewing referred the AFRO to Robert C. Lee, Manpower and Economic Development coordinator for Model Cities, who is responsible for the mechanics involved in the proposed transaction.

"The proposed grant is $850,000 and not $1,000,000," Mr. Lee explained. "It will be used for staff, facilities and other operational expenses."

Asked whether the internal dispute has any effect on the proposed grant which he said should be forthcoming sometime next month, Mr. Lee said:

"No. We maintain a hands-off policy as far as the internal affairs of OIC is concerned. The composition of the board has no bearing on what Model Cities does or does not do for the organization."

If the Policy Steering Committee of Model Cities approves the grant, it will be executed, Mr. Lee pointed out, adding that the policy making arm of Model Cities will consider the proposal this week.

That body, he added, "could raise questions as to the make-up of the board in terms of representation, but is currently favorable toward the grant," Mr Lee told the AFRO.

Alfred Ramsey, spokesman for the Volunteer Council, which is responsible for assistance given OIC from the business community, also denied the board dispute will kill funds from that source, as charged by the staff.

"The business community is impressed with the trainees coming from OIC. We do not dictate to the board. We hope that this matter can be cleared up promptly.

"The business community does not become involved in the internal operation of OIC," he answered when asked if the dispute was adversely affecting grants from that segment of the community.

Staff members, on the other hand, contend that they were told by representatives from the business community and Model Cities that the board membership had resulted in a freeze-up of funds.

"I suppose they don't want to say it for the Record, but that's exactly what we were told," one staff spokesman declared, and added:

Reacting to the two favorable developments, the Rev. Mr. Daniels told the AFRO.

"I am happy that this has occurred. I would hope that the staff members will now rededicate themselves to serving the poor."

"I see no such dedication now."

-Motown show

"Taking Care of Business," will be a strong contender for an Emmy award next spring.

The Motown show, staged in the final month of the year, may well become the first predominantly-colored undertaking to snatch off one of the annual TV citations.

Looking beneath the fabulous facade of the hour-long color special, one need not have seen the production credits to know that it had the indelible creative touch of Berry Gordy Jr., founder and president of Motown Record Corp.

There was convincing evidence that there was as much "Taking care of business," behind the cameras as there was before them.

This does not mean that we wish to take away any of the well-earned plaudits from Miss Ross and Supremes, — Mary Wilson, Temptation Eddie Kendricks, Paul Williams, Melvin Franklin, Otis Williams and Dennis Edwards.

It does seem however, that from an ethnic point of view, that rich black talent showed through "TCB," in the production efforts of creative consultant, Gordy, director Mark Warren, and choreographer Donald McKayle.

And speaking of choreography, the multi-talented Miss Ross was "black and beautiful," performing her Afro-Vogue dance routine.

Admittedly my taste in music is just plain, pure soul, untainted by pseudo-intellectual values. Therefore, my finger poping and foot stomping came while the Supremes were singing "Stop In The Name Of Love," "You Keep Me Hanging On," and "Baby Love."

I went to "Cloud Nine," with the Temptations "doing their thing" on "Ain't Too Proud To Beg" and "I'm Losing You."

Miss Ross, as usual touched my soul with her solo "Somewhere," and it was a rare treat to dig the Supremes and Temptation blending their wonder vocal chords in "The Way You Do The Thing You Do," and "Respect."

It was a thing of incomparable beauty when both groups ended the show with "Impossible Dream."

"TCB" proved beyond a doubt that Motown rates NBC Network and NBC knows where the talent is.

Just in case you were so unfortunate as to miss the season's best television special, write NBC and request a rerun. As me, I'm going write them anyway.

As for me, I'm going out and stand in line to purchase the Motown album, "TCB," the original sound track from the show See you in line.

—Pool parlor bill than five tables to 16-year-olds until 2 a.m., stayed on third reader and was amended by its chief champion Second District Councilman Joseph V. Mach

"Young people have opportunities to spend too much time there already. Consider the character of the establishment in my community," Second District Councilman Robert L. Douglass said in trying to return the bill to committee for further public hearings.

"We should be doing something to change the dropout rate rather than help it."

Fourth District Councilman Emerson R. Julian said that he was disturbed by the "reversal" of the Police Department opinion on the bill.

"If you want to kill the ordinance let's kill it now," Mr. Mach said.

"The bill will put kids under supervision. Instead of hanging around street corners they'll be in pool rooms," countered First District Councilman Dominic DiPietro.

Fifth District Councilman Jacob Edelman, acting as president of the council in the absence of W. Donald Schaefer, said that defeat of the measure would "do harm" to fancy pool parlors.

First District Councilman James J. Duffy stated that "it's a police matter, a neighborhood concern." If pool halls cause trouble in the community, and therefore not a concern for the council.

Mr. Mach then said that "social do-gooders who object to this ordinance" could well direct their efforts to another bill that would regulate coin-operated pool tables.

In other excitement at the city council, controversial ordinance 190 concerning changing of zoning in the Cold Spring La. and Greenspring Ave. area was kept on third reader, delaying action on the widely opposed measure.

Third District Councilman Frank X. Gallagher again brought up School Superintendant Thomas D. Sheldon's salary by saying that "through bad administration and bad administrative appointment we are giving our Baltimore County neighbors a bad impression."

He suggested that Dr. Sheldon's $50,000 salary was too excorbitant, and that the figure was an "embarrassment" to the mayor.

Dr. Sheldon had been in the corridors of City Hall earlier after attending a hearing at which he asked for more state aid.

"The state should give special consideration to children with cultural-economic handicaps," the school superintendant told reporters.

He also said "we are not satisfied with integration" progress and that the new building program would "alleviate the pressure."

Powell grand jury bound by ruling?

BULLETIN

After an 18-month investigation, the U.S. Grand Jury failed to bring in a criminal indictment against Adam Clayton Powell.

Attorneys for the Justice Department went before the U.S. District Court grand jury Monday seeking an indictment against former Congressman Adam C. Powell on charges that he misused public money during his term of service in the House of Representatives.

These same charges were the accusations which led Powell's unseating in 1966. He has been re-elected twice since then, but has so far remained, more or less, in exile in Bimini. Since his last election on Nov. 5 there are indications that he will be seated, but without his seniority.

The grand jury that heard the Justice Department's arguments Monday morning may not bring in a ruling because of a new law that calls for a "broader" selection of grand jurors.

The new law goes into effect Dec. 26 and Monday was the deadline for evidence in pending cases.

-Coppin students boycott

Chambers noted a "change in semantics" in telling 600 students, faculty, and administration of the demands at the meeting in Pullen Gymnasium on the campus yesterday.

Miss Stokes announced plans for a student-run school during the boycott by saying that "we are not boycotting education, we are boycotting campus facilities."

Plans have bees made to continue classes starting tomorrow (Wednesday) at St. Cecilia's Church on Windsor Ave. at Hilton St.

Mr. Chambers said that the boycott will continue "until we get what we want and deserve. If we decide not to have class for a month, we won't."

Dr. Moore said that he would have to study the demands and meet with representatives of the faculty before he could act.

Spokesmen for the students said that they would await the answer of the administration and decide on future plans at another general meeting tentatively scheduled for 1 p.m. next Monday.

The lengthy and precise list of demands are divided into the areas of academics, security, personnel, and buildings.

The demands include clarification of admissions requirements, abolishment of the College Level Examination, identification cards, the immediate hiring of eight additional security guards (only three are employed now); the immediate hiring of a public relations officer, recruitment official, director of Student Activities, and an admissions director, the replacement of the current registrar, and demands for new buildings, enlargements, and repairs on existing buildings.

The demands also list student representation on the Recruitment Committee and on any planning that is done for an auditorium.

Dr. Moore said that out of a list of 42 demands presented last April, about 8 have been acted upon.

He said that "the students are dissatisfied with the State Board of Trustees" but that "their method is questionable in some ways" in view of the time it takes for budget requests.

The state-run higher educational system in Maryland has been under attack since last spring when 293 Bowie State College students were arrested after a sit-in at the state Capitol in Annapolis.

Predominantly black colleges, such as Coppin State, have been ignored, according to student leaders who have been protesting the lack of money available to state schools.

Noting that "positive action doesn't mean that the problem has been resolved," Dr. Moore said that budget requests for library and gym improvements have been submitted to the State Board of Trustees. "The need is real," Dr. Moore stated.

"We think the demands are reasonable, we don't see why they shouldn't be met," S.G.A. president Chambers told the AFRO at the meeting yesterday.

Mr. Chambers said that the House General Assembly Speaker Marvin Mandel, Sen. Verda F. Welcome, and Fourth District Del. Troy Brailey "offered their assistance" when they met with administration and students at the start of the boycott Friday.

Mr. Chambers said that student leaders met with alumni of Coppin State Saturday.

"They told us to keep the thing non-violent and that they were behind us," Mr. Chambers said.

Isaac Brooks, president of the senior class, told cheering students yesterday that "as long as the students remain adamant about the existing conditions the halls will remain empty."

Plans for the classes to continue at St. Cecilia's Church tomorrow call for 20 upperclass instructors and ad many professors tally injured when he was struck by an oil truck at the intersection of North Ave. and Pulaski St.

TRAGIC ACCIDENT — Cesley Lamott Best was a popular member of the local Castells singing group. His singing career was abruptly cut short when he was killed in a freak traffic accident.

"He had been to the seafood place with some other boys. There was a crazy man in the area and he started chasing the boys. They started running across the street. They all got across except Marty," his mother explained.

Best was an eleventh grade student at Forest Park High School where he made the varsity team the first year.

He was active with the Bureau of Recreation's Easterwood Park Division.

It was at Easterwood that the Castell band composed of four singers and nine instrumentalists, was formed.

The group won first place in the Citywide Talent Hunt at the Civic Center sponsored by the Mayor's Youth Council and the Bureau of Recreation.

The group won a trip to New York for a recording date during the coming Christmas holidays.

Young Best sang second tenor with the group and had "looked forward" to the trip.

He liked sports, played football with the Police Boys Club; baseball with the James Mosher Little League; was life guard at center last summer.

He was a member of the YMCA and Christian Memorial Church. He was a member of the Castell Social Club, the Groove Phi Groove Fellowship.

Funeral services were held last Wednesday at the Arlington Phillips Funeral Home with the Rev. Mr. Wise and the Rev. Mr. Walton officiating. Burial was in Baltimore National Cemetery.

Floral bearers were members of the Castell Social Club. Pallbearers were members of the Castell band, including Thomas Jones, Allen Coles, James Scott, Michael Alexander, Odell Stewart and Marvin Walden.

Ushers were Joseph Mitchell and Byron Thomas, representing the Groove Phi Groove Fellowship.

In addition to his mother he is survived by his father, Cesley Leon Best American Sugar Refinery employee; and three sisters and two brothers.

They are: Walter, 22 recently discharged from the Air Force; Miss Brenda Best, 20, a Mount Providence student; Miss Cecelia Best, 19, a Morgan student; Reginald, 11, Mt. Royal fifth grader; and Stephanie 7, a School No. 29 second grader.

Other survivors include his grandparents, Mrs. Annie Stephens, Mrs. Lula Best and Pink Best, all of Whiteville, N.C. There are 17 aunts and uncles.

Atty. Hayes seriously ill

WASHINGTON

Veteran Attorney George E. C. Hayes was reported in poor condition Monday at the Washington Hospital Center which said only the family is permitted to visit him.

Mr. Hayes is a long time member of the board of trustees at Howard University, member of the Washington Board of Trade's board of directors and former chairman of the Public Utilities Commission.

center area of the building.

"The second one was in the center of the building between Madison Ave. and McCollough St. The third one was in the Science Department right on the Madison Ave. side."

"And," he concluded, shining his flashlight down on the hard tile floors and metal lockers, "there is nothing here that could be combustible."

John R. Hite, principal of the school would not speculate on what happened to the equipment in the Science Department.

"Our teachers are here making assessments on the equipment now," he told an AFRO reporter, "but until a complete investigation is made we won't know anything."

The current status of the building, is, according to Mr. Hite "Improving. The heating unit is working and if we can get the electricity functioning properly I hope to resume classes no later than Wednesday."

The middle section of the building where the third fire was "is closed off because the fire burned through the floor," Mr. Hite said, "but except for one room on this floor the other class rooms appear to be undamaged," the principal reported.

Also Mr. Hite said that at present he believes that the major damage was done to the History and Science Departments, a large hall closet, classroom No. 104, the first floor corridor and the corridor leading to the new building.

ership Conference founded by Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., is the first black appointment to Nixon's staff.

"We're not making any grandiose promises," Mr. Bown told a news conference, "But we want action."

He said he would solicit ideas from the black community on ways to develop capitalism and although the community failed to give Nixon a strong vote, Mr. Brown said he felt it would give the President-elect a chance to prove himself.

"The black people are citizens just like everybody else. I think he will have the respect from all segments of the people," Mr. Brown said.

Mr. Brown, a lifetime member of the NAACP, worked for various housing and urban renewal agencies and law enforcement agencies. He worked for the High Point, N.C. Police Department, the Treasury Department and the Treasury Department's Bureau of Narcotics. He is now president of B and C Associates, a High Point public relations and marketing firm.
