say how the U.S. grant, which is destined for medical supplies, storage facilities and air and sea supply charters, will effect the situation with Guinea.

Planes that fly in food and medicine to the former Nigerian Eastern region used the airport at Santa Isabel, on the island of Fernando Po, the capital city of Equatorial Guinea.

"Suspension of the airlift means the distribution program for 850,000 persons has been effectively stopped," the Red Cross said. "The consequences will be tragic."

M.R. Saunders, First United Apostolic Church, in third place. He has 726,400 votes.

In fourth, and just under 700,000 votes, is the Rev. Seawood Blackstone, of Crowdenville A.M.E. Church, with 694,200 votes.

Rounding out the top five is the Rev. Rufus Robinson, of The True Vine Spiritual Church of God in Christ. He has 527,300 votes.

Balloting has become hot and heavy in the final weeks. Already the 169 congregations in the contest have turned in over 8,000,000 votes for their favorite ministers.

The top winner and Favorite Minister will pick up a cash prize of $700. Other prizes are: Second, $400; Third, $300; Fourth, $200; Fifth and Sixth, $50 each and 12 runner-up prizes of $25 each.

The final balloting should be exciting. All the votes you can muster (from page two of every edition of the AFRO) will help your favorite minister. Remember the last ballot is in today's paper and all votes must be in by Wednesday, Jan 15, before 5:30 p.m.

COLLEGE GRADUATES

New tuition-free teacher education program designed for College graduates who wish to teach in New York City elementary schools. Known as Operation TENET (training experiences for new elementary teachers), the program is sponsored by the New York City Board of Education in cooperation with the City College School of Education of the City University of New York.

Operation TENET offers a maximum of 12 semester hours in professional course work in the evenings, provides jobs for participants at a salary of $75 per week while studying and enables successful applicants to continue studying towards a Master's degree in the City College TEMPUS program.

Classes are scheduled to begin on February 4, 1969. Applications must be on file by January 20th.

If nothing worries you, you don't need a savings account.

Big, brave you. You'll never get sick. Need an operation. Lose a day of work. Or even retire. And what do you want? Not a new house. Or boat. Or furniture. And you'll never have wedding expenses for the kids! Fine. You don't need a savings account. So the worried ones are the ones we're after.

But even if you have everything you want right now—wouldn't be just a nice, safe, cozy, and secure feeling to know there's some spare cash handy? Put just a little away every payday. You'll be surprised how fast it grows. And how good it makes you feel.

Do as thousands of others do and open a savings account at any Maryland National Bank office. Then relax.

MUTE EVIDENCE — The fire-razed frame building at left is grim evidence of the death of four small children who died Tuesday night when flames raced through the four-apartment building. Arrows and broken line pinpoint the place of vision for Mrs. Ruth Fernell who was the last person to see the youngsters alive. Mrs. Purnell told the AFRO she was standing in the window at right (arrow) when flames engulfed the children who were standing helplessly in window at left (arrow).

engulfed the first and second floors.

The Fire Department's Investigation Division reported that while Mrs. Purnell was outside trying to reach the children — this is what had happened inside:

David Green, the eight-year-old son of Mrs. Mary I. Green, lit a piece of cardboard on the stove's pilot light and took it under the bed in search of a lost sock. The mattress caught fire.

Later Mrs. Elizabeth Barnes ran into the room along with her cousin and tried to put out the fire but already the room was in flames and the fire burst through the walls.

Mrs. Barnes led the three Green children to the street while her cousin attempted to rescue her children.

Two hours later Mrs. Barnes was in shock and being attended by a doctor and a priest when the body of her four children was brought from the smoldering building.

Kenneth Mumaw, owner of the destroyed building, said he learned about the tragedy on the 11 o'clock news.

"I almost fell out of the chair," he told the AFRO. "It's a nightmare!"

Mr. Mumaw is confident that he kept the building in "very good condition." "I did everything possible to keep the house free of hazards," he said.

Officials at the Department of Housing and Community Development reported that building inspectors gave the burned out building approval for safety at its last inspection in 1966. The Building Code also approved of the wooden fire escapes, they said.

Mr. Mumaw, however, doesn't remember whether or not he took out a permit to rent a multiple dwelling when he converted the once single-family house.

A spokesman for the agency told the AFRO that while Mr. Mumaw was given approval for the work done in the house, he did not obtain a permit to rent the house as a multiple dwelling.

That means, the spokesman said that the owner was in violation of the housing code by allowing 14 people to live in that house" without a multiple dwelling permit.

Mr. Mumaw said, "I didn't know all those children were living there."

Deputy Fire Chief Frank Turner, in view of the tragic deaths of the four children, issues this bit of advice to parents in the Baltimore area:

"Do not under any circumstances leave small children unless they are attended by an adult or competent teenage supervision."

Westinghouse aids jobless

The Westinghouse Defense and Space Center, Aerospace Division, at Friendship Airport will hire and train 50 area hard-core unemployed persons in the Job Opportunities in the program, Secretary of Labor Willard Wirtz announced today.

The disadvantaged jobless will be trained as assemblers, hand and machine coil winders, and cable makers.

The JOBS program is a joint effort of the U. S. Department of Labor and the National Alliance of Businessmen to find jobs for 500,000 disadvantaged and unemployed persons in the Nation's 50 largest cities by June 1971.

The two-year Westinghouse JOBS training proposal calls for hiring and training 50 hard-core jobless persons.

They will be selected through Baltimore Area Concentrated Employment Program (CEP) agencies with the assistance of Maryland State Employment Service offices.

After training, they will have permanent full-time jobs and earn from $2.57 to $2.65 per hour.

The Labor Department has approved $127,300 in Federal funds for this training proposal, averaging $2,546 per trainee.

The funds will help the company offset the added costs of recruiting, remedial education, counseling, and on-the-job training and provide other necessary supportive services.

This program will be under the general direction of Richard C. Gittings, Space Center, Aerospace Division.

licensed by the state.

2. Outlaw virtually all discrimination in housing, except some cases involving "Mrs. Murphy's boarding house."

3. Give enforcement powers and authority to initiate complaints to Maryland's Human Relations Commission, including jurisdiction over cases of discrimination in state employment.

Though the Governor's Advisory Committee on Human Rights, headed by William H. Adkins 2nd, went out of office with Mr. Agnew, Gov. Mandel has indicated he will set it up again, possibly under a different name.

Also facing the new governor are four pending vacancies on the Human Relations Commission, including expiring terms of veterans William C. Rogers Sr. and Rabbi Israel M. Goldman, chairman and vice dman, chairman and vice chairman, respectively.

Edward N. Wilson's term expires this year, and he does not want to be named. William M. Plummer, another member, has resigned.

This commission has been under considerable fire in recent months from community eaders who charge it is out of step with the needs of the times.

In naming Sen. Lee as the new secretary of state, the new governor has given indication of how he pans to reorganize the executive setup.

Mr. Lee, he announced, will be given duties to expand the $12,000 per year post to a full time one, with authority to serve in a capacity similar to that of a lieutenant governor.

The new state budget presently calls for no hike in taxes, under a revised financial plan worked out by Louis L. Goldstein and revamped by Francis B. Burch, attorney general.

In the midst of all his activities, Gov. Mandel has found time to move his family from his 5th District home in Baltimore to the Governor's Mansion.

He told newsmen after he was sworn in office Tuesday afternoon: "I will get down to work tomorrow morning."

Gov. Mandel has done just that.

was "gunning" for the former.

The latest episode of gunplay in the 1500 block of Pennsylvania Ave., dubbed "Death alley" several years ago because of frequent flare-ups of violence and death, has been linked with the aborted assassination of Mr. Burman last August.

A man awaiting court action on that and a long list of other charges, was identified by police as a friend of Mr. Jackson

Briefly describing the event which resulted in his being shot several times, the victim had this to say

"Charlie was in a club when I went down on the Avenue. I saw him and spoke. He spoke to me. Nothing else was said.

When I came out to the street I met a guy who asked me to do him a favor. I told him I wasn't in shape to do it.

"Then I saw Charlie coming up the street and I asked him if he could take care of the mater. That's when the shooting started."

Mr. Jackson was taken to Provident Hospital in a public car by an unknown person.

He was treated for multiple gunshot wounds and a stab wound. Hospital personnel describe his condition as "fair."

Mr. Burman surendered to detectives Monday afternoon. He has been released on $1,000 bail to await a hearing in Central Municipal Court scheduled for Feb. 6.
