Mr. LeBlanc said the theatre can use many volunteers to help build the structure of the performing area and to assist in the plays.

The scope of the theatre, he said, will be "to give multi-racial plays concerned with people living together."

Mr. LeBlanc stresses that it will be an "equal opportunity theatre." But perhaps the theatre will at first be black-oriented, because the founder does not "want to give the idea that this is just another white thing that we are attached to."

The main needs of the theatre now are "money and participation," he says.

The group in its outline notes it is "presently funded solely by box office receipts and the personal investment, of both time and money, by the members of the (non-profit) corporation.

But it "plans to attract public and private foundation support in order to increase the scope of its activities."

The "learning experience" of the performing arts, the founders feel, "can replace potentially anti-social activity with productive potentially constructive activities."

A benefit performance by the Elizabeth Walton Dance Company is the first scheduled activity for the theatre early in February.

Plays to be performed early in March will be chosen from "The Dutchman" and "The Slave," both by Lerol Jones, and a threatrical adaptation of the Kerner Report, "Why Did It Happen?" which has been performed successfully on the West Coast.

Another performance by the dance company will follow in April, with a play by Baltimore playwright, Doris Smalls, Bright "Deathwatch: Days May Come, Days May Go," scheduled for May.

The group also plans on opening up the theatre every eight weeks "for whoever wants to perform," Mr. LeBlanc said.

Mr. LeBlanc is also in the first stages of working a reciprical arrangement for the local plays and the newest work being done in black repertory companies in New York.

The local group boasts a formidable staff. Larb Ltd., the incorporated company includes attorney Charles P. Howard along with Mr. and Mrs. LeBlanc.

Teachers and directors include the two founders and: Adrienne Britt, Altredine Brown, C. Richard Gillespie, Shirley Gillespie, Miriam Hughes and Ruth Rymland.

Mrs. LeBlanc's dance experience is extensive. She studied with Martha Graham and Robert Joffery, among others, taught at Center Stage in Baltimore and danced with the Paul Taylor Company for six years and toured Europe and South America. She choreographed the dance movements for the Center Stage production of "The Balcony."

Mr. LeBlanc, before coming to Towson, taught at Antioch College, Lincoln University and Howard University and has a large number of credits in designing, acting and directing plays.

YWCA sets race seminar

An eight-week seminar on "The Black American and Urban Problems" will be conducted by the Western Branch of the YMCA of the Greater Baltimore Area beginning Wednesday, Jan. 15.

The series of discussions, on Wednesday evenings from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. at the Catonsville Community College, will deal with some of the important issues that confront persons living in the metropolitan Baltimore area, according to James J. Linksz, chairman.

Topics to be covered include "The History of our Problems," "Education and the Urban Problem," Housing and the Black American," the "Law," and "The Baltimore Riots."

For additional information and registration materials, call the Western YMCA at 747-8411.

Last year the 166 Veterans Administration hospitals accomodated 726,626 patients, 12,000 more than during the previous year.

Burkett-Chapman nuptial plans top post - holiday social slate

LULA SHEFFEY

(Substituting for Lula Jones Garrett who is on vacation).

The engagement of June Woolridge Burkett, daughter of Mrs. Robert M. Burkett of Elkridge, Md. and the late Mr. Burkett, to Joseph Cornelius Chapman, son of Mrs. Henry Davis of Baltimore and the late Mr. Chapman Sr., was announced this week.

A February wedding is planned:

Both Miss Burkett and her fiance attended Morgan State College.

Miss Burkett is an English teacher at William H. Lemmel Junior High and is pursuing graduate courses at Morgan State.

Mr. Chapman is an agent with the local branch of a national insurance firm and is taking correlated courses at Coppin State.

Mrs. Glynnia K. Hill of Liberty Heights Ave. hostel a gala luncheon for former co-workers at her home during the holidays.

Mrs. Beatrice Hines was her very able co-hostess.

Guests included Mesdames Lillie P. Strauthers, Angela Gray, Inez Bowyer, Janet Felton and Sadie Roberts.

The Win-Ash Garden club held an indoor Christmas picnic, at the Powhatan Ave. home of its president, Mrs. Naomi Camper, instead of the traditional Round Robin during the holiday season.

Mrs. Camper's home was gaily decorated from club cellar to roof with Christmas trimmings.

Guests were dressed in minis, pant sets and just plain as you wish clothes.

Cocktails were served from 7:30 'til dinner at 8:30.

The menu was arranged and pepared by Inez Kent, Naomi Camper and Madeline Harding.

Gifts were cleverly given to the president who was surprised. You see she thought the gifts were for all but as each gift card was read, her name appeared on each card.

Carol singing, original dances, games and good talk sparsed the evening.

Those present were:

Dr. and Mrs. Martin Rodney, Dr. and Mrs. Albert LaForrest, Dr. and Mrs. Ivan Higgins, Dr. and Mrs. Douglass Camper, Dr. and Mrs. Herbert Frisby.

Messrs. and Mesdames Leslie Bell, Clarence Gross, George Harding, James Crowner.

Mesdames Rosalie McGuire, Ada Veney, Inez Kent, Nellie Buchanan, Carrie Johnson and Olga Chambers.

Looking ahead to the post holiday season is the Provident Hospital Auxiliary which will present its fourth annual formal cabaret at the Eastwind on Friday, Jan. 24.

Music will be provided by Sherman Lewis and his band, and for those who think that the drive might be a little far, bus service from the hospital will be available.

Mrs. Pinnie Ross, chairman for the dance and her committee composed of Mesdames Joyce Agero, Maggie Watkins, Shirley Quillen and Virgie Mone are expecting a festive group for this between season charity affair.

All proceeds go to support auxiliary sponsored activities.

A number of early reservations have been received. Why not make yours now?

The Baltimore Eppies, local chapter of National Epicureans, ushered in the Christmas season with a unique gathering, formerly called a regular meeting, at the beautifully decorated (Christmas) home of Merita Stokes, hostess.

The hostess and her cohostess, Doris Wallace, planned a humorous afternoin with singing and word games that resulted in the awarding of gifts as prizes.

For being the first guests to arrive, prizes were given to the following:

Charistine Moore, Miriam Brown, Miriam Burns, Frances Henderson, Bea Wright and Elaine Davis.

Anita Watson was awarded a prize for being the last guest to arrive.

Clocktails were served throughout the afternoon, in addition to a luscious luncheon.

Gifts were exchanged among the Eppies, and each guest was presented with a gift from her hostes.

The ladies were most attractive in their bright and cheerful Christmas colors, and fashioned every possible type of knit from the one-piece dress to the three-piece ensemble.

Eppies present were:

Mesdames Merita Stokes, Doris Wallace, Gladys Daniels, Bettye Morton, Gardine Blount, Sadie Jenkins, Bernadine Harrison, Elsie Clarke, Nikki Randolph, Gwen Parker, Barbara Bennett, Annabel Rawlings, Audrey Pinderhughes and Eula Edwards.

Guests included:

Kay Carter, Ruth Jennifer, Louise Robinson, Christine Moore, Vera Carrington, Elaine Davis, Anita Watson, Anethia Williams, Miriam Brown, Miriam Burns; Beatrice Wright, Ruth Tonkins, Doris Cole, Frances Henderson, Parker Simmons and Edwin Burke.

The affair was only one in a series of events tentatively recommended by the Eppies Program committee (Anabel Rawlings, Sylvia Henry, Merita Stokes, Dot Johnston and Sadie Jenkins).

ENGAGED — Miss June Woolridge Burkett, who will become Mrs. Joseph C. Chapman in February.

The theme for the club year is "The Total Woman," which will include fashions, hair styles, make-up sessions and many other areas to become a part of the group's regular monthly meetings.

The Big Sisters-Little Sisters, Inc. utilized the holidays as another time to join together with their friends for gaiety and good "sisterhood."

They opened the season with an afternoon tour of the Christmas Display in the Conservatory at Druid Hill Park . . . proceeded to 2201 Maryland Ave. (office) to complete tree trimming, ritual, sang carols, crafts, refreshments and fun... and ended the holidays back at the office to share holiday experiences; there games and dancing and the sad task of taking the decorations down.

Those who shared in the rich experience included:

Velma, Cynthia and Drucella Springfield, Laverne Novak, Debrah Vernon, Diane Davies, Doreen Byrd, Willie Newton, Sherry Strader, Etheline Collins;

Ernestine Smith, Grace Black, Ruth Fauntleroy, Marie Berry, Josephine Hurt, Clara Colona, Janice Marrow, Alleyne Peters, Mary Grier, Alma Brown Wilnetta Sutton, Minnie Miller, Myrtle Koger, and Mary Carter Smith, president of the Big Sisters-Little Sisters.

The Big Sisters-Little Sisters will send representatives to the 16th annual Dinner Meeting of the Big Brothers of Baltimore, Inc. on January 13.

Those attending include: Ruth Fauntleroy, Alleyne Peters, Ernestine Smith, Janice Marrow, Marie Berry and Mary Carter Smith.

Charles E. Moylan Jr., Baltimore state's attorney, will be the guest speaker.

WEEK'S BEST BUYS:

Economics, supply key aids in improved diets

VIRGINIA McLUCKIE, Food Economist Baltimore Office of the Department Markets University of Maryland

Many families start the New Year by making a firm resolution to spend their food money wisely and improve the family diets.

To make this resolve work it takes understanding of the economics outlook and food supply says Virginia McLuckie, Food Economist, Baltimore Office, Department of Markets, University of Maryland.

In resolving to improve diets get a copy of the basic four food group guide to follow. The recommended number of servings from each group will provide an adequate well rounded diet.

Once you ingest the quota of servings from the four groups of foods then eat all the other foods you desire. Check particularly to be certain each family member gets adequate amounts of vitamin C and Calcium.

• • •

As we look ahead into the new year, in total, retail prices for all food may undergo some small increase between now and mid year. But food price gains should trail those for prices of most other consumer items.

Food prices in grocery stores this winter probably will average around current levels. Large supplies of many farm products now in prospect and an easing in the growth rate of consumer demand likely will combine to put downward pressure on farmer's prices. Prices for food in restaurants likely will keep rising.

In 1968 we had an over all increase in food prices of 3½ percent. The food we ate at home increased only 3 percent while the cost of food in restaurants increased 5 percent.

Despite the increase in cost the national average of money spent, after taxes, amounted to 17.2 percent down slightly from 1967. This average downward trend possibly will continue in 1969. Food remains a bargain.

• • •

Compared to last year we can expect to pay about the same prices for beef, cereal and bakery products, sugar, tea and coffee. Prices likely will be higher for eggs, dairy products, chocolate products and soft drinks. Because of increased supplies shoppers can expect lower prices for many fruit products, fresh and processed vegetables, pork, fats and oil products.

During the first half of the year we are expected to increase consumption for red meat, broiler-fryer chickens, citrus and non-citrus fruits and fresh and processed vegetables. A decline in consumption is anticipated for turkey, veal, lamb and eggs.

If these changes occur, the levels of ascorbic acid which is vitamin C, iron and thiamine In the average diet will improve. With decreases in consumption of whole milk an edge downward in calcium in the diet will occur.

We are willing to appply for many services to be performed in processing and preparing foods for us, with a minimum of work at home. We are eating more snacks and more meals away from home. Major food consumption changes are slow but evident.

DEVILED MACARONI AND CHEESE

One can (15 oz.) macaroni in chese sauce, two small (or 1 large) cans deviled ham, one teaspoon parsley flakes, one teaspoon instant minced onion, one-half teaspoon dry mustard, one-third cup packaged seasoned bread dressing, two tablespoons bhtter, or margarine.

Combine macaroni in cheese sauce, deviled ham and seasonings; put in a baking dish. Mix bread dressing and melted butter; sprinkle over macaroni. Bake in a hot oven (400 degrees) about 20 minutes. Three servings.
