—Fire guts Cornerstone

Cornerstone is people.

"We'll come closer to each other now since we have to grow together again," he said quietly.

Cornerstone, onetime headquarters for the hundreds of civil rights activists who descended on Maryland in the early'60s, was insured, Dr. Kearse said, "but the insurance is not adequate."

He estimates that it will cost between $1 and 1½ million to rebuild the once-handsome structure in the upper region of fashionable Bolton Hill.

All that is left of the one-time well-appointed edifice are grey walls, scarred and singed by the blazing inferno which held more than 150 firemen and the bulk of the city's sophisticated fire-fighting equipment at bay for more than an hour.

The fire, which appeared to engulf the building instantaneously, began in the rear on the first floor, arson investigators theorized Thursday.

Cause of the flame, which illuminated the darkened sky in the early chill of Wednesday night, is unknown.

Dr. Kearse and fire investigators reported that no one was in the building. The doors were secured when the first equipment arrived at the scene shortly before 6:30 p.m., officials added.

Before the second alarm was sounded, billowing flames boiled from the roof, windows, and doors of the building.

While hundreds of spectators gazed at the flames in awe, the Rev. Dr. Kearse, was comforted by the Rev. Stuart Turner, Mrs. Myrtle Owens, and Tyrone Griffin, the latter two members, wept openly.

"My church, my church, my beautiful church," the minister repeated as hungry flames encircled the edifice.

Impact of the tragedy was sharpened since it followed by one night another flame which snuffed out the lives of four young children.

"Oh my God, that's my church," said one woman, whose round face, like that of the pastor's, was ringed in tears.

The Rev. Marion C. Bascom, member, board of Fire Commissioners and close friend of the pastor, also consoled Dr. Kearse and wondered aloud, "How in the world could this happen?"

An aged woman who gazed at the gutted structure early Thursday, shook her head sadly and said to no one in particular.

"First the children, now the church. This is more than I can stand."

Many in the crowd of spectators agreed with her. .... G.W.C.

—Maryland to note

the MSTA. Representative Assembly a resolution was adopted which urged the Governor of Maryland to set aside one day each year to focus on the importance of human rights.

The resolution adopted by MSTA was suggested by the Maryland Delegation to the National Education Association Convention in Dallas last summer.

The Proclamation signed by the Vice President-elect states that "all citizens should recognize the many stresses that tend to divide our Nation" and that "a full understanding of the rights of individuals and the prerogatives of society in seeking to promote the general welfare must be developed through educational activities".

plained adding "there are many qualified potentials."

"I am not making a judgment on Gov. Mandel until I've had a chance to see him in action."

The senator's expectations of the new governor are three-fold. He said "My hope is that Mr. Mandel will be able to:

"1. Reopen the lines of communication between the State House and the black community.

"2. Make appointments that will allow inclusion of representation of the black community at all levels of State government, and

"3. I expect his program to strengthen civil rights legislation and that re will be much better than any prior governor."

In addition, he stated, "I am optimistic enough to believe that the decided unity between the black and white legislators will work."

them worked together to put the program into action.

The project has had a "terrific response" from law and high school students alike, according to Lawrence D. Coppel, a third-year student who is the student chairman of the program.

The assignment at Edmondson is in conjunction with that school's course in "Modern Problems," a required course for all seniors and designed to prepare students for some of the economic, social, and political realities that soon will confront them as they enter the mainstream of American life.

About 300 students are now being taught under the program.

The sessions are held once a week during regular class periods, for a minimum of six weeks. They deal with some practical aspects of law, including legal hazards of credit buying; landlord-tenant relations and the rent escrow law; criminal law and procedure; laws related to marriage, parental responsibility and divorce; welfare law; civil liberties; and military law.

University of Maryland law students, under faculty guidance, have developed the entire curriculum for the course. First-year students do not participate in the teaching end of the project, but they do assist in drawing up the curriculum, which is followed in all of the classes.

The method of teaching, as described by Mr. Coppel, is much the same as that used in the School of Law.

That is, hypothetical situations are posed, and the students are asked to state what they think the law is or should be.

On a recent Tuesday morning, Robert L. Diaz, a third-year student who is in his second year of teaching in the program, talked to a class of 23 Edmondson seniors on the topic of employment discrimination.

The Equal Employment Opportunity Commission, established by the Civil Rights Act of 1964, was explained to the students, most of whom had just a foggy notion of the function of that commission, such as, "They help you get jobs."

As the discussion continued, one of the more vocal students said that if he went to apply for a job and was told, "We're not hiring n o w h i t e s today," he would "take some kind of action." When asked what kind of action this would be, he said, "Physical — you know?. I know it wouldn't be right and it would be illegal, but I'd do it anyway."

This student was particularly interested in learning the proper channels in which to file a complaint a b o u t employment discrimination.

One of the great cripplers of our time, arthritis, will be the subject of an open forum to be held in the Parish House of the Church of the Redeemer, Charles St. and Melrose Ave., 8 p.m.

The forum will seek to dispel some of the ignorance and misunderstanding of arthritis. It is sponsored by the Arthritis Foundation, a member of the Community Chest supported by the United Appeal.

Mrs. Whyte in seminar

Mrs. Violet Hill Whyte, retired lieutenant of the Baltimore Police Department, is among three prominent Baltimoreans who will present "Crisis In America" at a seminar to be held at Andrew Chapel Church, 4100 Frankford Ave., on block west of Belair Rd., on Jan. 12 at 7:30 p.m.

Mrs. Whyte will discuss "Family Breakdown and Moral Decay."

Father J. William Michelman, S.J., Rector of St. Ignatius R.C. Church, will discuss the "Crisis of the Failure of the Church and Moral Decay."

The Rev. Willis E. Dewberry, pastor of Hampden Baptist Church, will discuss the "Failure of the Teaching Mission of the Church."

WHEATLEY — A Birthday Tribute to the memory of our dear brother, JAMES A. WHEATLEY, on his birthday, January 9th and who passed away August 15, 1967:
Those whom we love go out of sight,
But never out of mind;

Of those they leave behind;
Loving and kind in all his ways,
Upright and just to the end of his days;
Sincere and true in heart and mind,
Beautiful memories he left behind.

In Memoriam

ALLEN — In loving memory of our dear mother, VIRGINIA W. ALLEN, who passed away January 11, 1967.
A wonderful mother, woman and friend,
One who was better God never made;
A wonderful worker, so loyal and true,
One in a million — that, mother, was you.
Just in your judgment, always right;
Honest and liberal, ever upright;
Loved by your friends and all you follow,
Wonderful mother — that, mother, was you.
Dissent sisters — DORA, EDNA, BIRDIE, ELIZABETH, NELLIE

Son — JAMES

CLARK — In loving memory of our dear mother, JULIA NORMAN, who passed away January 11, 1967.
No one knows how much we miss you,
No one knows the bitter pain
We have suffered since we lost you
Life has never been the same.
In our hearts your memory lingers,
Sweetly, tender, fond and true;
There is not a day, dear mother,
That we do not think of you.
YOUR DEVOTED CHILDREN

FRAZIER — In loving memory of my dear husband, DALLAS D. FRAZIER, who passed away January 13, 1961:
Today my heart is heavy,
My thoughts are all of thee.
Oh, how I miss you DALLAS dear,
None but God in Heaven can see.
Some say time heals an aching heart,
But, no, it isn't true.
For eight long years have passed, dear
And my heart still aches for you.
Your Wife — MARY

HARDY — In loving memory of our dear loved one, THOMAS ALBERT HARDY, who passed away January 13, 1968:
Do not ask us if we miss you
There's such a vacant place.
Oft we think we hear your footsteps,
And see your smiling face.
Days of sadness still come over us
Tears in silence often flow;
Memory keeps you ever near us,
Though you left us a year ago.
Beloved —
MOTHER, FATHER, BROTHERS, SISTER.

JACKSON — In loving memory of my dear husband, LEROY T. JACKSON, who passed away January 13, 1965:
Today my heart is heavy,

Some say time heals an aching heart,
But, no, it isn't true.
For four years have passed dear
And my heart still aches for you.
I have lost my companion
A life linked with my own.
And day by day I miss you more
As I walk through life alone.
Loving Wife — EVA
