Wife divorces mate she said 'socked it to me'

On Jan. 21 in Circuit Court, a divorce was granted a public school teacher who testified her husband "socked me all around."

On the date of their final separation, according to the wife, "He threatened to sock it to me again when he came home from work."

At that point, according to the testimony of the teacher's father, "She grabbed the child and ran for her life."

"I couldn't continue to live with him and maintain my health, dignity and self respect," the wife asserted.

Judge William J. O'Donnel signed the decree in favor of Mrs. Jeanne Coleman Nixon, 3700 block Parkview Ave.

The husband, Horace Nixon, 2800 block Edgecomb Circle North, is a bus driver; the wife's father, Clinton C. Coleman, 2800 block Chelsea Dr.

Records before the court state the Nixons were married Aug. 6, 1961 and separated March 3, 1967 while residing at the Edgecomb Circle home.

James Albert Press buried on Monday

Funeral services for James Albert Press were held Monday at the R. Law Funeral Home.

Mr. Press, who was 58, died at the Fort Howard Veterans Hospital after a week of sudden illness.

A native Baltimorean, he lived at 1731 North Payson St. He had worked before the second World War as a chef in the Merchant Marines, as a World War II veteran, and a former government employee.

Surviving are his mother, Mrs. Nellie L. Press; two sisters, Miss Thelma F. Press and Mrs. Iradelle Press Penn, and five brothers, Jerome Washington, Vernon Castle, Theodore Bouldin, Gilbert Dean and Joseph Luther II.

His father was the late Albert Dean Press.

Delaware, in 1787, became the first state to ratify the U. S. Constitution.

Joseph Clarke, GOP assistant

Tour by cut-rate 'Aretha Franklin' closes out with promoter in jail

OCALA, Fla. — Soul music lovers who hoped to see Aretha Franklin Thursday night at the Southeastern Fat Livestock show didn't see her for a good reason.

The famed Miss Franklin, Soul Sister No. 1, never was booked for the livestock show and the promoter who apparently had picked a Virginia singer to go on as the world-renowned star, was in jail.

The woman who was apparently forced to pose as Miss Franklin, probably "wouldn't know collard greens from boiled spinach," according to one deputy.

"I'm sure glad we found out about this thing," said State Atty. Gus Musleh last Wednesday.

"There are going to be thousands of people from all the Southeast for the sale.

"She couldn't have fooled all of those people. No telling what they would have done to the pavilion. And it could have been worse when she got to Tampa or Jacksonville."

Musleh referred to Miss Marie Jane James, 27, a nightclub singer from Petersburg, Va., who claimed that a New York man forced her to wear fancy clothing and a wig and pose as Miss Franklin for a planned tour of Florida.

The real singer had no knowledge of the hoax.

The promoter, Lavell Hardy, 24, of New York City, was jailed in lieu of $500 bond Wednesday night on a charge if "Misleading advertising."

Musleh says he will bring no charges against Miss James or against two local promoters who were "apparently duped by Hardy — also."

The tickets to Thursday night's show here sold at $4 in advance, were taken up and customers' money returned, the state attorney said.

This was the second show booked by Hardy in a series of nine planned in Florida, Musleh said.

Miss James, wearing a wig that dropped hair across her face as a partial disguise, sang to an audience of about 1,000 persons (at $3.50 each) in a predominantly colored nightclub in Fort Myers, Fla. last Sunday night.

Witnesses said she "wasn't too hot, compared to Aretha."

"Hardy told two local promoters, who also didn't realize it was a dupe until they went down to Fort Myers to hear her sing, that she would put on the show for $7,000," said Musleh. "The real Aretha Franklin gets $20,000 a show," he added.

"She (Miss James) told me that she went along with this scheme because Hardy had threatened her and she feared for her life," said the state attorney. "And I believe her."

Musleh said that Hardy probably would go on trial the first week in March and that the soul singer's attorneys in New York had agreed to have Miss Franklin here for the trial.

Publishers hear business views, honor AFRO head

NEW ORLEANS — While big businessmen are sympathetic to the struggle of blacks to secure equality, they nevertheless demand a "dollar-for-dollar" return on their investment.

This view was stressed recently by panelists representing five of the nation's largest business concerns during a meeting here of the Mid-Winter Workshop of the National Newspaper Publishers Association.

Participants in the session, devoted to "Cooperative Advertising," agreed that the business community seeks the minority press.

They said their firms regard the colored press as a prime medium of communication, but, like the white press, it must provide a "good return on each dollar spent" on advertising.

The panelists were: Richard A. Meadows, J. C. Penney Co., Dewey Zufelt, Maison Blanche Tire Co.; Richard A. Meadows, Sears Roebuck and Co.; Orville Reish, 7-Up Bottling Co., and Maury Midlow, WDSU-TV, New Orleans.

Kenneth Wilson, vice president for advertising of the Afro-American Newspapers, served as moderator.

Opening the program, Dr. Norman Wilson, chairman of the department of commerce of Southern University, said:

"The colored press serves many important functions in the community. It is one of the few sources from which information may be obtained pertaining to black people which never appears in the white press."

In a pre-luncheon ceremony, Phillip B. Baptiste, an aide to Mayor Victor H. Schiro, presented a plaque and a gold "key to the city," to John H. Murphy III, NNPA president and head of the AFRO-AMERICAN Newspapers in Baltimore.

The plaque bore the inscription "Honorary Citizen of the City of New Orleans."

President G. Leon Netterville of Southern University at Baton Rouge introduced the luncheon speaker, Dr. John G. Lewis Jr., grand master, Prince Hall Masons.

Dr. Lewis paid tribute to the late Carl Murphy, Publisher of the AFRO-AMERICAN, as "a source of perpetual inspiration".

He also praised "the integrity of civic contributions" of C. C. Dejoie Jr., the workshop's host and editor of the LOUISIANA WEEKLY.

Two panel sessions were devoted to "Improving News Content" and "Sales Dimensions Through Black Awareness."

Moderator of the news panel, was Charles Loeb, managing editor of the Baltimore Afro-Post.

Participants in the two sessions included: Ben Thomas, Associated Press; Jim Madden, New Orleans States Item; Dave Chandler, Time and Life; Jack Wardlaw, New Orleans States Item; William H. Grayson, Johnson Publishing Co.; and Kenneth Wilson Afro-American.

Principal speaker at the evening banquet was Louis E. Martin, executive editor, Chicago Daily Defender.

He was introduced by John H. Sengstacke, publisher, Sengstacke Publications. The invocation was given by Dr. A. L. Davis Jr.

Attempt to organize black student unions

A number of students representing several junior high and high schools in Baltimore have been meeting in the SOUL School, 622 N. Fremont Ave., on Saturdays in an effort to organize a city-wide Black Student Union.

Official response to the students' plans have been mixed.

At Northwestern High School, principal Mrs. Gladys Mitchell was approached by student George Harris and informed of the group's desires to organize within the school.

"I didn't think that the suggestion, as it was put," Mrs. Mitchell told the AFRO, "was in the best interest of the school.

"I am, however, in favor of such an organization which would embrace the entire student body," she concluded.

In an effort to satisfy both the desire of the students and the needs of the school Mrs. Mitchell called in her student council, the president of the senior class and those students interested in organizing a student union, she said.

Together, the students decided to form an 11-man Steering Committee to explore the avenues open to them for the formation of the union.

"We'll work together and try to come up with a democratic solution that would be to the best advantage of all," Mrs. Mitchell told the AFRO before meeting with the black and white steering committee to discuss the matter.

At Nortswestern High School students interested in forming a Black union met with a different reaction on the part of the school's administration.

Dr. Edward Goldsmith, principal of Northwestern told the AFRO, "At this point there has been no official presentation of the matter and I will make no effort to find out what it's all about."

Asked if he would favor an organization of this type at the school he said:

"An organization exclusively for blacks will not be permitted.

"I don't know what this group's policies are, and I have been unable to find out what the administration's position is. Therefore, at this point there is nothing official about the case.

"There has been unofficial discussion among students," he added.

At Forest Park High an unidentified parent told the AFRO that her daughter had been advised that she shouldn't belong to such an organization as the Black Student Union.

Instead, the parent said, officials advised her daughter to choose CORE or the NAACP.

Charles F. Michael, assistant principal of Forest Park says he has no knowledge of the organization.

"The whole thing is unknown to us," he said, "I am sure that there is no such activity within the school and no agitation for such an organization to be formed."

Sidney N. Chernak, superintendent, of Secondary Schools said that no one had approached him concerning "this kind of program."

"However," he declared, "if it's in line with our policies there should be no objections."

Mr. Chernak explained the main policy of the Department of Education in matters of clubs as follows:

"We don't allow exclusive organizations. If they mean that a student cannot belong to it because of race or religion or anything like that the group can't be sanctioned by the department and therefore it won't be allowed.

"If people want to organize a Black Student Union has no racial restrictions with the school system that then their sponsors would have to meet with officials and discuss.

"We have several Afro-American Clubs in operation right now. Any club which satisfies the policy of the administration is permissable," he concluded.

SCHOOL DESTROYED — Only the remains of Samuel Chase Elementary School 135, 1045 McDonough St., stood Tuesday after early morning fire gutted the building except for one classroom. Police said youths were seen fleeing from the building and that three separate fires had been set. At center is charred hallway that was left after flames quickly swept the building, built in 1882 and termed obsolete in several school facility surveys. School was recommended for early abandonment in a report as early as 1921. At right, the one classroom which escaped the fire. The school's 800 children will be divided among several other schools.

—Senate won't

that prompted hesitancy.

1. There is the probability that Sen. McCourt is sick. 2. He has not been convicted on any legal charges. 3. The question stands of whether he has removed himself permanently from the state.

"I found no enthusiasm in the rules committee about taking any action," Sen. James stated.

"The decision to delay attention to the McCourt seat until the last week of the Assembly session means that whatever is done will come to a conclusion after the session, and be recommended to the Senate when the Assembly convenes again next year.

Sen. McCourt, meanwhile, reportedly is out of the country and has been since the past May.

A warrant has been issued in New York, charging him with involvement in the smuggling of narcotics.

General feeling among his colleagues in the Senate is that sould he return he would be so entangled with legal matters he would be unable to serve.

Prior to the James announcement, it had been strongly anticipated that Robert L. Dalton, lone colored member of the 2nd District's three-man Democratic State Central Committee, would be selected by that group for the McCourt seat.

Approximately 54 per cent of that district's registered voters are black citizens.

—New school board

lades for Francis D. Murnaghan Jr., the board president, who was reappointed for a six-year term ending in 1974.

The Mayor told the 48-year-old lawyer and civic leader, "the city is blessed to have you, Francis, as president of tre board. I am extremely happy at the job you have done. Thank you, Francis, for your contribution to education in this city."

Mrs. Maree Farring, reappointed for a six-year term, was described as one who has "dedicated herself to civic affairs" and serving "wherever people are."

Mr. D'Alesandro expressed the hope that the School Board will involve more people in the schools so they are "part of the action." He saw this "as an important step in the sensitive area of education.

Other black members of the nine-member School Board are James M. Griffin and Mrs. Elizabeth Murphy Moss.

Other board members are: Philip Macht, Sidney H. Tinley Jr., and John J. Sweeney Jr.

Witnessing the historic ceremony were a number of friends of new members and interested citizens.

Among them was City Councilman Alexander Stark (D-5th), chairman of the council's education committee.

The Mayor had special praise for him and his fellow councilmen for their unanimous approval of his School Board appointees. He confessed, "this makes me very happy."

Both Mr. Gibson and Mr. Mr. Daniels attended their first School Board meeting Thursday evening at the War Memorial Building, was preceded by an hour and 30 minute executive meeting of the Board that was closed to the public.

The subject of anti-discrimination clauses in contracts arose during the presentation of the business report, when Mrs. Moss asked what progress had been made in assuring contractors were equal opportunity employers. Mr. Daniels raised the question of implementation of the clauses.

"We do not have the machinery to act on discrimination, however we are in contact with Mr. (David) Glenn (director of the Community Relations Commission) and that is his job," Dr. Saul M. Perdue, assistant superintendent for Business Management, stated.

Dr. Thomas D. Sheldon, school superintendent, stated that "those guidelines have to be established and respected," and he also added that he is not satisfied with the progress that has been made in the field of anti-discrimination in contracts.

"We want not only pious statements by contractors, but compliance as well," said School Board Chairman Francis D. Murnaghan.

In other business the School Board passed on waiver of tuition for 25 students and approved personnel changes.

Among these was appointment of Lester Wallace, supervisor of special projects and programs as supervisor of research and development.

Mrs. Phyllis A. Diggs, specialist of psychological services was promoted to supervisor in that department. Prentis Nolan, teacher, Booker T. Washington Junior High No. 130 was named acting specialist in instrumental music.

Named Community School field coordinators were Alexander Gates, Stephen Moore and Edward Watson.

Photographers gathered around the two new School Board members after the meeting was adjourned to catch Mr. Gibson and Mr. Daniels after their first meeting.

ert Huffmeyer and Charles Williams of Co. No. 13, and Bernard Shade of Co. No. 18. Chief Frazier told the AFRO.

The children were taken to Franklin Square Hospital for preliminary treatment, and then they were transferred to University Hospital where they were admitted in the early afternoon.

The children's mother had gone to the store before the fire started according to Chief Frazier, who heads Engine Co. 13 located at McCullogh and McMechen Sts.

tain board members, and the hospital administrator, Henry J. Whyte and Mr. Tildon, meet with representatives of the architectural contracting firms.

Mr. Whyte told the AFRO: "These Progress Meetings have helped keep our construction costs down, as they allow us to deal with problems before they arise."

The hospital will be a 272-bed acute, general hospital costing $15 million. Already $13.2 million dollars has been accounted for. Soon a completion effort for the final $1.8 million will begin.

in progress.

Brick has been chosen for the exterior, it is a split face concrete block with exposed aggregate, called "Grey Cameo."

The mortar color has not yet been chosen, but must be chosen soon, as the inner part of the demountable outer-wall will be begun in February and the outside brick will begin to be laid this spring, according to Charles G. Tildon, Associate Administrator.

dING a filibuster, now a two-thirds vote or 67 if all senators are present and voting.

Debate is continuing on a liberal move to change the rule to require only a three-fifths majority, or 60 votes of all senators.

The Senate last week overrode a ruling by former vice president Humphrey that only a simple majority is needed to end debate and permit a vote on changing the rules.

Liberals might soon force a vote on cloture, or a gag on debate, and seek a new ruling from Agnew.

by the Constitution, adequately and to the Senate's satisfaction.

Not since Henry A. Wallace in the wartime Roosevelt Administration had a vice president presided over the Senate who was not previously a senator.

Mr. Agnew left shortly before 1 p.m. to attend a National Security Council meeting at the White House.

He might soon have to rule from the chair on a proposed change in the Senate's requirement for en-

Senate group to try to kill filibuster

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Liberals plan to go through the motions of trying to eliminate Senate filibusters but most concede there, once again, is little likelihood of success this session.

Leaders of the antifilibuster forces have agreed to spare Vice President Spiro T. Agnew the necessity of taking sides in the dispute.

"All Agnew will have to do is recite the vote," said Sen. James B. Pearson, R-Kan., co-Captain of the filibuster forces.

Pearson said he met with Agnew Wednesday to discuss the plans, which call, for filing Friday a petition to stop debate, a vote next Tuesday which presumably will fail to muster the necessary two-thirds and then a graceful surrender until 1971.

If the scenario is followed, the filibuster will live on, sustained by Senate rule 22 which permits senators to talk on and on unless two-thirds of the members present vote to stop debate.

Grafton Moore rites Saturday

Funeral services will be held Saturday at 11 a.m. at Harp Street Memorial Church for Grafton L. Moore, 78, 1110 Myrtle Ave.

Mr. Moore, employed for 44 years in the chemistry laboratory at Goucher College, died at his home Tuesday after an extended illness. He will be buried in Mt. Auburn Cemetery.

Friends may call at the residence Friday. The body will lie in state at the church Sunday from 9:30 a.m. until the services.

Mr. Moore was born in Philadelphia. He was graduated from Morgan State College and studied at the Columbia University graduate school.

A longtime member of the Sharp Street Church, Mr. Moore was Sunday School superintendent, a member of the Metnodist Men and instructor of the Adult Bible Class.

Active in the Boy Scouts for many years, he served as a scoutmaster and was the recipient of the Silver Beaver award.

He was a member of the YMCA, The Twelve Club and the Omega Phi Psi Fraternity.

He and his wife, the former Miss Jeannette Johnson, were married 49 years.

Also surviving are two sisters, Mrs. Pauline Kelly and Mrs. Carrie Jones of Philadelphia.

Mrs. Blanche H. Taylor, Union Temple member

Mrs. Blanche H. Taylor, 1237 N. Bentalou St., died on Tuesday at U.S. Public Health Hospital.

Funeral services will be held Saturday noon at Emmanuel Christian Community Church, with the Rev. Sidney Daniels officiating.

Born 61 years ago in Amber, Pa., Mrs. Taylor is the daughter of Frank and Novella Burrell.

After graduation from Amber Senior High, she moved to Baltimore and enrolled in the Apex Beauty School, where she was graduated in 1944.

For a number of years she and her husband operated a restaurant in the 1500 block Pennsylvania Ave., called the Blanchette Grill.

She was for 20 years a member of the Druid Hill Branch YMCA Mothers' Club. When her children were young she served as den mother with the Boy Scouts.

She was the widow of John G. Taylor, who died two years ago.

Surviving are two sons, Randolph G. Taylor, a Washington chemist; and John L. Taylor, an Anne Arundel County teacher.

Also, two grandchildren, Jacqueline and Deborah Taylor; two sisters, Mrs. Henrietta Carter; and Mrs. Novella Bertrand, Philadelphia.
