Headed For Spring She's Once Again Feminine And Pretty

New seat belt system fast

A seat belt system that is fast, economical and convenient has been designed by postal engineers, Postmaster GeneralW. Marvin Watson said recently. The system is for use by postal drivers who are in and out of their vehicles up to 250 times a day.

Known as the twin-arm system, it features a one-handed buckling operation that can be accomplished in well under three seconds, about half the time now required.

The system should be adaptable for other delivery type vehicle drivers, as well as for some private autos, particularly those with bucket seats.

Existing commercial hardware is used in the system. Thus, the cost has been kept within $11 per unit, compared to $5 for conventional belts installed. The system is to be included on new vehicles, and existing vehicles will be retrofitted.

The system can be operated by the right hand. The two straps are encased in plastic boots, which are horizontal to the floor of the vehicle when not in use.

The right side connector is pulled up and over to engage with the buckle in the left hand boot.

When the connector is pulled up, the left hand boot and buckle also automatically rises to a 45 degree angle to the floor.

A bar behind the seat connects the two boots so that they rise in unison.

A tap on the buckle provides disengagement. The strap assembly includes an automatic locking type reracting reel.

When the belt is disengaged, the connector returns to the boot, and both boots return to the horizontal position.

In addition to the time savings, the system also eliminates expenses for cleaning the belts.

The conventional belts dangle loosely on the floors of vehicles, becoming quickly soiled. Thus, drivers' uniforms are easily dirtied.

Postal officials point out that the system should encourage use of seat belts by the thousands of postal drivers. The system has been tested by drivers for the Washington, D.C., and Pontiac, Michigan post offices.

It has been approved by representatives of the National Association of Letter Carriers (AFL-CIO), National Federation of Post Office Motor Vehicle Employees (AFL-CIO), and the National Association of Special Delivery Messengers (AFL-CIO).
