Hostess charged with homicide

Homicide charges—24 Pt.

Homicide charges were placed Sunday morning against Miss Linda Kennedy, 21, of the 2900 block Carver Rd., in the knife-slaying of Garland Jones, 20, of the 700 block Round Rd., according to police.

Investigators said the man's death occurred following a party at Miss Kennedy's apartment Saturday night.

At a preliminary hearing in Municipal Court Sunday, Judge Albert Blum set bail at $2,500 pending a trial date to be set by the State's Attorney's office.

Miss Kennedy was arrested shortly after 4:30 a.m. Sunday in the parking lot of South Baltimore General Hospital, where Mr. Jones was pronounced dead, police said.

African culture subject of talk

Mrs. Idunnis Shonkaunh formerly of Nigeria will speak on African culture sponsored by the AFRO-American Culture Committee Monday at 7:30 p.m. at 2013 Ashland Ave.

She will also display art objects.

The pubic is invited.

ALBERT J. DUNMORE WAYNE GRIMM

HOW TO HELP — In the accompanying story, Albert J. Dunmore, public relations man for Chrysler Corporation, and Wayne Grimm, director of the Chrysler Institute, discuss Chrysler's four year program for training the "hard-core unemployed."

Chrysler execs give tips on training unemployed

About 100 Baltimore businessmen heard what successful job training for "the hard-core unemployed" is all about this week from two representatives of the Chrysler Corporation who were guests of the Sales and Marketing Executives, Inc.

Wayne Grimm, director of the Chrysler Institute, and Albert J. Dunmore, public relations man for the corporation, told the AFRO that Chrysler has trained over 6,000 men since the program began in 1965, spending about $17 million a year. Some of the money has come from government contracts.

"We don't train anybody that we don't have a job for. We phase people in so that there's nobody who has to wait a long time for a job," Mr. Grim said.

• • •

Most of the trainees continue to work for Chrysler, Grimm added, "all our trainees don't have to go into the production lines.

"That's the job of the counselor, to discover people with talent who can work someplace else . . . on a salaried job instead of an hourly wage job."

AFRO how counselors follow the former trainee and help solve problems between ex-trainees and supervisors. The counselors also help men who have been arrested for petty crimes during the training program by asking the judges for leniency.

"Another problem is that after they receive their pay the first two or three weeks, they get a deluge of garnishments" from past debts.

"The counselor's role is to make sure the courts understand what the problem is so the trainee won't be discouraged from working," Ing.'

• • •

The counseling and instructor staffs are integrated. Mr. Grimm says, "If a trainee has a white instructor, we try and make sure he has a black counselor to keep a balance between black and white."

Mr. Dunmore added that the head counselor, Dr. Evangeline Norton, "is one of the six black clinical psychologists in the country."

As public relations man and urban specialist, Mr. Dunmore advises Mr. Grimm about the institute's other projects, such as scholarship aid to colleges.

"As a member of the black community, I try to give my advice about what the company should do to benefit the community," Mr. Dunmore explained.

• • •

The average man in the training program is 27, a high school dropout, married with two or three children. Grimm said the minimum age is 18 and "we have taken a man as old as 52."

Seventeen percent of the trainees are illiterate. Mr. Grimm told the AFRO the trainees are given remedial education in communications and math.

"We try to make the program realistic to a job situation. We start at 7 a.m.," Grimm said. The trainees are paid $80 a week. The minimum work wage is $3.25 an hour.

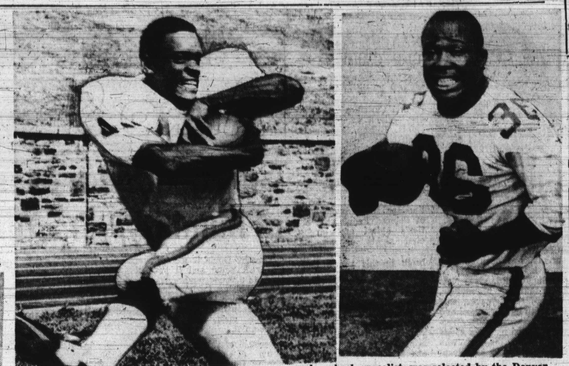
Chrysler's efforts have benefited the company as well as the men employed, because "where very conscious of the fact that we will never be any better than the community our plant is located in."

Affair marks end of DuBois 'year'

NEW YORK — Ceremonies marking the end of the International Centennial Year that honored Dr. W.E.B. Dr. Bois will be held at Town Hall here on Feb. 22.

The year began with an inauguration address by the late Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. last February.

Many internationally famous artists, writers, entertainers and scholars are sponsors of the event. The public is invited.



MORGAN STATE COLLEGE'S Ed Hayes (left) and John Fuqua were among eight players from CIAA schools plucked by the pros in the 1969 National-American League football draft in New York Tuesday and Wednesday. Hayes, a fine defensive back and runback specialist, was selected by the Denver Broncos on their fourth round. Fuqua, a hard-running offensive back, was taken by the New York Giants as their eleventh pick Both were members of the Morgan teams which suffered only one defeat in the last four seasons.

8 CIAA prospects among 127 swept up in draft by pros

Central Intercollegiate Athletic Association colleges were tapped for eight players in the 1969 draft meeting of the combined National and American football leagues in New York, Tuesdab and Wednesday.

Morgan State College, whose teams have suffered only one loss in the last four years, produced three of the eight. Two were chosen from North Carolina A and T College, and one each was picked from Maryland State, Norfolk State and Johnson C. Smith University.

• • •

The Morgan athletes are Ed Hayes, a defensive back and runback specialist; John Fuqua and George Nock, who teamed as the Bears' running back combination during much of Morgan's period of great success.

Hayes went to the Denver Broncos, Fuqua to the New York Giants, and Nock to the world champion New York Jets.

All three figured in the Bears' three bowl victories — over West Chester State in the Tangerine Bowl in 1966, over Florida A and M in the Orange Blossom Classic, and over Grambling in Yankee Stadium last fall.

• • •

Willie Pearson, who was a factor in A and T College's 7-6 win that broke the Bears' victory string last season, and Henry Hipps, a linebacker, were the two Aggie products. The former was chosen by the Miami Dolphins, and the latter by the Los Angeles Rams.

Maryland State sent defensive back Bill Thompson to the Broncos, Norfolk State tackle Eugene Ferguson was taken by the San Diego Chargers, and J. C. Smith defensive back was plucked by the Oakland Raiders.

• • •

In all, 127 colored youngsters were grabbed in the two-day talent hunt, with the Houston Oilers the busiest among the 26 participating clubs. Here are the teams and their colored prospects.

NUMBER ONE COLT — Eddie Hinton, a sure fingered flanker and halfback from Oklahoma, was the No. 1 pick of the Baltimore Colts in the 1969 draft meeting at New York on Tuesday. Hinton was seen in several post-season games following completion of play with the Sooners. He stands 6 feet and weighs 200 pounds.

Hinton jubilant over Colt draft

NORMAN, Okla. (UPI) — "Wow!" That was the first word from an elated Eddie Hinton when he learned he had been picked by the Baltimore Colts Tuesday, in the first round of the professional football draft.

Hinton, a 6-1, 190-pound flanker and defensive back for the University of Oklahoma, said the news was about the best of his career.

"I didn't know what to expect," Hinton said. "I had talked with a few teams, but I never expected this."

• • •

Asked if the NFL champion Colts' loss to the New York Jets in the Super Bowl diminished the thrill of his selection, he said, "No, not a bit; it's just wonderful, beautiful."

Hinton caught 60 passes totaling 967 yards for the Sooners last season, which ranked him 12th in the nation. He also is regarded as an exceptional defensive back and punt-return artist.

• • •

Hinton said he would leave his home in Lawton, Okla., for four and half months of active duty in the Army National Guard. He will go to Ft. Polk, La., for his basic training and then military police training.

He chuckled about the coming military tour and said, "I'd rather play on the Ft. Polk football team."

If YOU Ask ME

BY BETTYE M. MOSS

People, places and things

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel T. Daniels (Gladys), are in their new rancher out Benhurst Ave. way.

For a while last week, it looked like they might not be able to keep their date with the moving man.

Reason: Mr. Daniels became suddenly ill, was rushed to the hospital. Doctors said they couldn't understand why he was in pain. He is all right now, thank goodness.

• • •

The Iota Chapter of Chi Delta Mu, the medical fraternity, initiated four new members last week. They are Dr. Fabian Desbordes, Dr. George Woodland, and Dr. Russell Hackley, all dentists; and Dr. Elroy Young, the orthopedic surgeon.

Dr. Samuel Owings was chairman of initiation. Dr. Eugene Byrd is president.

• • •

Promotion Note: E. Thomas Williams manager of Md. National Bank's Mondawmin branch, is corporate officer as of this week.

His new job title: branch officer and manager. He's been with Md. National 18 months. Good going.

Mrs. Joshua Maxwell (Olive), long a beloved Baltimore resident, died in West Babylon, N.Y. rest home on Tuesday. She was 91.

Remember Mrs. Maxwel and her husband, were pioneer residents of Morgan Park.

Remember Mr. Maxwell was for many years a teacher at Douglass High, where he headed the commercial department for a time.

Remember, their late daughter, Vashti was also a teacher here?

She later became Mrs. William H. Grayson Jr. He is Dr. Grayson, still a professor at New York University).

• • •

A tall, strong woman with a warmth in her eyes that told of her love for life and for people, Mrs. Maxwell will be remembered by many as a charter member of Baltimore's Philomathian Club.

It was she who suggested the club's name. It means, 'lovers of learning.'

Funeral services were held in New York today (Friday) Burial is Saturday 10 a.m. at Mt. Auburn Cemetery here in Baltimore beside her husband and daughter.

• • •

Saturday (Feb. 2) marks the opening of Boy Scout Week.

At the annual dinner meeting on Monday evening at Eastwind, Silver Beaver Awards for distinguished service to boyhood, went to the following men:—

Robert E. Chaney, deputy commissioner of the Trailblazers District; Kenneth H. Fauntleroy, Constellation District Commissioner;

• • •

And, Dr. Furman L. Templeton, member of executive board of the Baltimore Area Council; and Edwin C. Simmons, Trailblazer district commissioner.

The AFRO's Kenneth O. Wilson (vice president in charge of advertising), was reelected vice president of the Area Council.

Cuff note: Baltimore's Sam Cornish, is among black poets whose verse is included in the new book, "The New Black Poetry," edited by Clarence Major. (International Publishers, 381 Park Ave., South, N.Y., — $1.95 paper back; $5.95, cloth.)

• • •

Student note: Mergenthaler High's Calvin Pierce, a commercial art major, and Miss Brenda Abrams, a stenographer major, won the Optimist Club's coveted awards. They are given annually to outstanding students.

Travel note :Already, members of Travelers Unlimited of St. Matthews Episcopal Church are making plans for their August cruise to Bermuda.

Reginald Jackson is in charge of arrangements.

People remembering others: At recent funeral services for Mrs. Evelyn Bass, the beloved teacher and civic worker, her Delta sorors paid a beautiful tribute.

Soror T'Jon Hill, president of the Baltimore chapter, said in part:

"Her friends and acquaintances remember her as a warm, vibrant, thoughtful and spontaneous person.

"Whenever she appeared in the numerous groups with which she was associated, a spark of liveliness was felt."
