'Black treasures,' unique guid to study of history

BY ART CARTER

NEW YORK — General acclaim for "Black Treasures," a unique study kit designed to stimulate interest in black history, was given here this week by educators, historians and newsmen.

The wide approval came after a three-hour press party, highlighted by a 15-minute showing of a color slide film which stresses the need for all Americans, black and white, to know the history of the black man.

The educational kit has been produced as a cooperative venture by Coco-Cola, USA, sponsor of the kit and the press party, and the Association for the Study of Negro Life and History of Washington, D.C., consultant on the program.

Dr. J. Rupert Picott, president of ASNLH and assistant director, Division of Affiliates and Membership, National Education Association, praised the program as "one of the most important projects in the search of black Americans to learn their identity."

Dr. Picott was extremely joyous over Coca-Cola's efforts to "become involved" in this type of program and urged other industrial firms to follow suit.

Dr. C. Eric Lincoln, author, historian and college professor, also lauded the program as a significant in today's quest for historical knowledge.

Dr. James W. Davis, retired president of West Virginia State College and now associated with the educational department of the NAACP Legal Defense and Educational Fund, called the program "something that has long been needed." He added that it was good to see Coca-Cola in "sensitive to the needs and changes in the world today."

Picott and Lincoln were members of a four-man panel including Kelvin A. Wall, manager, Market Development Department for Coca-Cola, USA, and Bertrand Fitzgerald, publisher of Golden Legacy, an illustrated magazine on black Americans, who answered questions on the project for the film viewers.

Wall outlined Coca-Cola's goal in the project, emphasizing that the program was designed to aid "whites as well as blacks in learning about black Americans."

He added "We (Coca-Cola) are committed to the program as long as it is valid." The program will serve as a support for Negro History Week (Feb. 9-15) and will be a continuing project in the coming years.

Harold Hamilton, also of Coca-Cola, described the project as "a humble attempt to fill a gap in black history."

Already, Hamilton said, all eighth graders in Washington, D.C. and Cleveland, Ohio schools had received the kits and general response from educators in those areas had been overwhelmingly good.

"The press review of the film and distribution of kits was held at the Plaza Hotel. G. Parke Gibson presided at the affair.

* * *

In addition to persons at the press larty, Dr. Charles H. Wesley, executive director of ASNLH; Benjamin Quarels, professor of history at Morgan State College; Albert Brosnon, coordinator, Curriculum Materials and Research, Board of Education, New York City, and Whitney H. Young Jr., executive director, National Urban League, have been laudatory about the program.

Prof. Quarels said "Black Treasures" deepens our awareness of the historic role of the Americans whose ancestors came from Africa."

Dr. Wesley called it a "significant contribution to the enrichment of Negro History Week."

* * *

The "Black Treasures" study kit contains a 15-minute color slide film, record, teacher's guide and three copies of "Golden Legacy," produced by Coca-Cola USA. To date, four editions of Golden Legacy have been published.

Designed to take full advantage of the current surge of interest in history, "Black Treasures" is different in that it talks about historians, places where black history can be found, and the need for all Americans to know the history of the black man.

The unqualified response to the program from junior and senior high schools, libraries, educators, national organizations plus civic leaders throughout the nation lends emphasis to the value of presenting the material to small or large gatherings of students.

Although the national release of "Black Treasures" is planned to tie-in with History Week, the entire program was developed as an activity for year round use, Wall said.

In addition to participating Coca-Cola Bottlers, the kit is also distributed through the Association for the Study of Negro Life and History.

"BLACK TREASURERS" study and program kit, developed by Coca-Cola USA., in cooperation with the Association for the Study of Negro Life and History, as shown above, contains a phonograph record, a film strip, a teacher's guide and copies of Golden Legacy, an illustrated magazine on Negro History, produced by Coca-Cola USA., a division of the Coca-Cola Company.

Professor quits Afro study body

BERKELEY, Calif. — David Blackwell, a colored professor of statistics at the University of California, resigned last week as chairman of a committee created to design an Afro-American studies department for the school.

But L. day before his resignation, the dean of the college, Walter Knight, was criticized for his role in the project in a statement signed by several of the faculty.

The statement said Knight had given decision-making powers in the new department to white rather than colored people.

CICH opens its annual fund drive on

CICHA, the Commerce and Industry Combined Health Appeal, opens its 1969 fund drive on Feb. 15. The campaign, which runs till March 15, seeks to raise monies for fifteen national and local health agencies. It encompasses workers in Baltimore City and the five metropolitan counties.

George M. Leilich, general campaign chairman, has stressed the growing importance of CICHA. "Our goal will have to be increased considerably over last year's," he noted, "because we have three new member agencies this year."

The new members for 1969 are Maryland Tuberculosis Association, Heart Association of Maryland, and Maryland Diabetes Association.

Last year, the twelve agencies who participated in CICHA collected more than $3 million from residents of Baltimore City and Baltimore, Anne Arundel, Howard, Harford, and Carroll Counties. Of that 12-month total, the 1968 CICHA fund drive was responsible for 25 percent.

Shellfish enhanced by Neptune Sauce

Considering the wonderful things that can be done with gifts from the sea, it's sad that more homemakers don't take a nautical route to dinner more often.

Those who are a clam shell's throw from shore should take advantage of bayside-fresh sea bounty; inland dwellers can just as easily hie themselves to their supermarket's equally bounteous freezer.

* * *

The one seafood group that we consume more than any other is shellfish. Shrimp, and their crustacean kin, crab and lobster, have always been popular as elegant openings for meals, either with dips at predinner festivities, or as a first course at table.

They have a way, however, of appearing with the inevitable red cocktail sauce. It's time for a change. May we suggest Neptune Sauce?

Neptune Sauce is based on an envelope of whipped topping mix, which is the reason it's fluffy, smooth, and creamy. The only trick is that you use water instead of milk in the beating, and skip the vanilla.

The flavor additions are zesty but easy: some mayonnaise, chili sauce, parsley, and onion salt. Serve it as a dip or in small cuplets on a plate of prettily arranged seafood.

* * *

Neptune Sauce is made with 1 envelope whipped topping mix, ½ cup water, 1 cup mayonnaise, 5/4 cup chili sauce, ¼ cup chopped parsley, and 1 teaspoon onion salt.

Combine whipped topping mix and water in deep narrow-bottom bowl; blend thoroughly. Whip with rotary beater or at high speed of electric mixer until topping peaks.

Continue whipping until topping is light, fluffy, and fuly whipped—about 2 minutes longer. Blend in remaining ingredients. Serve with chiled prepared seafood. Makes about 4 cups sauce.

Remaining sauce may be stored covered in the refrigerator for several days.

'Tetanus-50-50' film is free

Just a little scratch on her finger brings a healthy, young mother close to death in "Tetanus, A 50-50 Chance," a 35-minute, color film available for loan from the State Health Department.

Although her family physician had urged her to have the simple injection which would immunize her against tetanus, often called, "lockjaw," she had delayed "until I have more time."

Now, her doctor reluctantly tells her husband that she has only a fifty per cent chance for recovery; of the hundreds of unvaccinated people who suffer each year from tetanus, at least half die as a result of the infection.

The physician points out that there never has been a documented fatality from tetanus in a vaccinated patient, that the vaccine causes no serious reaction, and that tetanus infection could be eradicated in this country if everyone were immunized.

Appropriate for general audiences from high school through adult level, the film is especially useful for showing in communities where tetanus immunization is being promoted.

It may be borrowed without charge from the Film Services, Maryland State Department of Health, 301 West Preston St., Baltimore. Phone: 383-3010, extension 8516.

Time should be allowed to preview and to arrange for an informed person to lead the discussion following the film.

What happens to the world's best margarine container after the margarine's gone?

Virginia Parker uses it to bake cupcakes for her son in the service. She knows if it's airtight enough for our margarine, it will keep her cupcakes fresh all the way to Viet Nam.
Sam Gorn arranges flowers in it. Elvira Palladino turns it into an Easter basket.
The world's best margarine container now has smooth sides.

Our old container. Our new container.
All this fuss over our container. And all we really wanted to do was keep our margarine's flavor fresh and sweet in the most airtight aluminum container we could make. We're still finding ways to improve our container. We've just given it new sides that are smooth. Still airtight, but the ridges are gone so you can get out every last smidgeon of that fresh, sweet Mrs. Filbert's taste.
