Local Minister's Son Found Slain

In good mood just before suicide

"I pray for God to give me the strength and courage to be able to stand it . . .

"I pray for the day we can be back together and enjoy our marriage . . ."

In the last letter written to her husband, Roy Washington, 74, of the 600 block of George St., Mrs. Jimmie G. Washington, 41, talked about the day of her release from jail.

Shortly past 10 p.m. Monday night Mrs. Washington was found dead in her cell in the Baltimore City Jail. A matron discovered her hanging with a piece of sheet, a victim of suicide,

Body discovered on lonely road

By ELIZABETH OLIVER

"The police are still looking into it. They say they haven't found out anything yet. If I just knew how or why it came about, I'd feel better. But maybe we'll never know."

The words were spoken Thursday by Mrs. Arlie B. Hoggs, the grieved wife of the Rev. Oscar C. Hoggs, pastor of Salem Baptist Church, 2021 Pennsylvania Ave.

The couple's only son, Percy Lee Hoggs, age 21 and an Edmondson High School 1966 graduate, was slain in the early morning hours of Feb. 12.

His body was found by a passing motorist as it lay in the gravel on State Route No. 99, a lonely two-lane Howard County road, at 5:30 a.m. Feb. 12.

Autopsy reports show the young man, who was unmarried, was shot in the head four times at close range.

Other evidence shows he may have fallen or was thrown from a car at the location which is 7 tenths of a mile West of Bethany Lane, just East of Woodstock and about 20 miles from Baltimore.

Howard County police told the AFRO they are continuing the investigation of the murder. They also said certain evidence has been sent to the FBI laboratory in Washington for processing.

Continuing her comment on her son's brutal murder, Mrs. Hoggs told the AFRO, "I last saw him Tuesday night (Feb. 11) about 11 or 11:30. Then he didn't come home again and we wondered why.

"We didn't know anything until Thursday (Feb. 13) when the officers came and got us to go to the morgue to identify him."

Young Hoggs resided at the home of his parents in the 1400 block Rosedale St. The father has pastored the Salem church seven years and has been employed at Sparrows Point Shipyard for 25 years.

At the time of death, the young man was unemployed but had worked pre-

SERIES of articles starting in the AFRO next Tuesday deals with Baltimore's "Roving Band of Children," who roam the streets at night making an existance for themselves until dawn. They get along on the bare necessities of life and what they can pilfer, these youngsters, mostly 10, 11 and 12 years old, live by their wits.

'Far out' cats displayed here

Jamming an entire floor of the Civic Center last weekend were more than 8,000 cat lovers and curious spectators who had come to admire 500 of the most beautiful cats in the world.

On display at the seventh annual Chesapeake Cat Club show were fuzzy Persians, mink-brown Burmese, regal Himalayans, blue-eyed Siamese, rare Rexes and even household pets.

But the most crowd-pleasing of all were the two hairless cats from Canada.

"Ugly," "beautiful," "weird" and "far out, man" were some of the comments overheard as the line moved past the hairless females.

The cats were indeed "far out." According to their owner, Mrs. Rita Penoble of Hamilton, Ontorio, only 19 are known to exist.

Mostly grey with white patches, their nearly hairless heads are furrowed with wrinkles. Mrs. Penoble explained that they are the second generation offsprings of a "mutant" hairless and a short-hair cat.

Billed as the second largest ever held, the show

ANNAPOLIS — Gov. Marvin Mandel said Thursday he is holding up the filling of three expired terms on the Human Relations Commission pending General Assembly action on legislation to increase the nine-member commission by three new seats.

The governor said he hopes to fill all vacancies at the same time.

In other matters at his short press conference, the governor indicated he is still firm on a special election in November on proposed amendments to the State Constitution.

He said his state of the state message Tuesday will include some of his supplementary budget and some tax proposals.

He would not give hint of the new tax, but it is expected to be an added two per cent hike to the three

HOLDING TO SELF-RULE

Self-help staff protests, faces CAA showdown soon

What happens to Self-Help Housing, a neighborhood-run poverty group, will be decided Feb. 26 at the Community Action Agency meeting, where the issue of Self-Help's leadership will probably come up.

Faced with a recommendation from city auditor, Daniel Paul, that Self-Help be suspended "until adequate qualified personnel are assigned by the Community Action Agency," 58 Self-Help employees marched on City Hall from the War Memorial, Wednesday noon.

Self-Help works through CAA and the Community Action Commission but is governed by its own board as third party contractors.

Paul recommended suspension because an audit turned up $20,000 of mismanaged money out of a $311,139 budget for the fiscal year ending June, 1969.

"We came down here to see (Comptroller Hyman) Pressman to explain to him that we don't like the bad publicity on something that happened June 30, Jehonadab Whittle, a Self-Help spokesman and sanitation worker told the AFRO.

"We see no need for interference in the program from anybody. We want to keep the program intact without a lot of outside influence, including CAA."

The group took a silent walk from the Memorial across the Mall.

Inside City Hall City Comptroller Hyman Pressman met them and asked the spokesmen to state their complaints.

Three speakers, Whittle, Marvy A. Smothers and Dean Pappas, said Self-Help is suffering from bad publicity and should continue under the control of a local board made up of poor people. This would mean retention of their staff, including the Director.

"The city auditor did the job which he is paid to do. His report is public property and if the newspapers see fit to publish it, no one can stop them," Pressman told them.

He later added that he does not intend to suspend Self-Help. He said he wanted to give "the new director, new financial expert, and new commission" a chance to "correct the mistakes" pointed out by the auditor.

"We cannot and will not put up with the continuation of so many mis-

Special squad gets its man

The "special squad" of the Baltimore police department "got its man" this week in a dramatic raid on a house in the 2100 block of Callow Ave.

Willie Lee Johnson, 23, was picked up by 20 policeman armed with shotguns Monday. He was sought for escaping from the Maryland Correctional Camp, where he was serving out a was also charged with a January 25 shooting in the 900 block of Whitelock St.

Narcotics and burglary charges were pending crime lab investigation. Two loaded guns were also found in the apartment.

The "special squad" is made up of three homicide squad detectives who have been assigned to clear up serious cases where criminals are still at large.

Twenty policemen took part in the capture of the fugitive who was number 20 on the special squad's most wanted list.

A 16-year-old girl, was picked up in the same apartment, is being held as a state's witness, according to police.

CARRYING THE LOOT found during a police round-up of an escaped prisoner, Det. Harry MacDonald loads the suspected stolen saddle and television set into a police wagon. The "special squad" arrested Willie Lee Johnson for an additional charge of assault with intent to kill on Jan. 25. Suspected narcotics and a 16-year-old girl were also taken into custody. Johnson was one of the squad's 20 most wanted men.

Oil delivered to wrong house starts fire

"Somebody made a mistake. Some fuel oil company delivered oil to that house by mistake." Captain Carl H. McCommons told the AFRO.

Captain McCommons said the fire that heavily damaged the home of Dr. Herbert A. Hoover last week (Thursday) started after oil entered the basement.

Although there is an oil outlet at the side of he house, Dr. Hoover said the house at 3700 Dennlyn Ave. has been heated by gas for the past two-and-one-half years.

Dr. Hoover, chairman of the Education Department at Morgan State College, told the AFRO that one of the most prized losses in the fire was a set of breeding dogs.

Dr. Hoover who was renting the house, valued the loss of personal effects in the thousands of dollars.

At the present time Dr. Hoover, his wife Geraldine, and his two children, 14-year-old Conrad and 7-year-old Terry, are living in a Baltimore County motel.

At AFRO presstime the police were still looking for the mystery oil company.

Nixon to try new approach in war against U.S. poverty

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon pledged Wednesday to continue the war on poverty, but told Congress he intends to try to learn from the mistakes of the past to find better ways to help the poor.

In his first message to Congress, Nixon asked for lawmakers to extend the controversial Office of Economic Opportunity that he inherited from the Johnson Administration. But he proposed that OEO, in a series of operating changes, be made a research and experimental agency that proposes and tries out new approaches rather than administers the main assault on poverty.

"Poverty, Nixon said, "cannot and will not be treated lightly or indifferently or without the most searching examination of how best to marshal the resources available to the federal government for combatting it.

"We have learned some lessons about what works and what does not," the President said. "The changes I propose will be based on those lessons and those discoveries and

Slain nurse is buried in pale blue chiffon

Funeral services were held Thursday at the Rayner Sanders Funeral Home in East Baltimore for Miss Donna Rosemary Young, 2510 Barclay St., a student nurse at the North Charles General Hospital.

Miss Young, who was 21, died Sunday, her body riddled with six bullets.

Police are holding William M. Miles, 28, who resides at the 400 block Whitridge Ave. house where the body was found in a second floor bedroom.

Mr. Miles who is held without bail and awaiting Grand Jury action, is alleged in police reports to have been the deceased young woman's boyfriend.

For burial the attractive student who would have finished the Registered Nurse's Course this spring, wore a baby blue chiffon negligee. Pearl earrings were in her ears.

The pale gray casket was at the foot of the chapel altar which was banked with over 50 floral designs.

The Rev. L. A. Dyson, pastor of Turner Station St. Matthews Methodist Church and the Rev. R. A. Norman, pastor of the Baltimore St. Matthews Methodist Church, presided at the services and graveside rites at Mt. Auburn Cemetery.

An Indian strode into a court and pleaded to have his name shortened legally. "What's your name now?" asked the judge." "Chief Train — whistle," said the Indian. "And what do you want to shorten it to?" pursued the judge. The Indian folded his arms majestically and grunted, "Toots."

What's next on city give-away programs?

"Now that the city is ripe for plucking what will go next?" asked Dr. Emerson Julian, city councilman (D-4th) this week, lashing out at what he calls "another city give-away program."

"Recent discussions relative to the control of the water supply in Baltimore County border on being ridiculous," Dr. Julian said. Inasmuch as we, the people of Baltimore own the entire water system, we, these same citizens alone, should dictate how this system, or any part of this system should be controlled.

"This is not a decision for Dale Anderson of Baltimore County.

"The suggestion from some quarters that we engage in some form of metropolitan control does not at this time meet with my approval. All things being equal, and the climate being different, such a thought might have merit.

"However, under present conditions if we of Baltimore City were to agree to some type of arrangement we would certainly find ourselves ultimately in a position of only giving and
