Mrs. King, clergy protest Viet war

WASHINGTON — A group of antiwar protesters which included Mrs. Martin Luther King Jr. met with President Nixon's top security adviser last week to ask for a clarification of United States goals in Vietnam.

The group declined to disclose any specific results of the meeting but the Rev. William Sloane Coffin of Yale University, who acted as spokesman for the group, said they received a "very respectful hearing" from Dr. Hesry A. Kissinger, the President aide.

Originally the dissenters had requested an audience with President Nixon but agreed to meet instead with kissinger at the president's request.

Coffin said the group asked why the fighting was continuing even during the peace talks in Paris, asked what America's aims were in Vietnam, requested amnesty for draft dogrers and military deserters and asked whether the U.S. plans to proceed with its antiballistic missile system.

Earlier in the day, the group had gone to the Justice Department to plead for amnesty for deserters in foriegn countries. Apparently no progress was made with Justice Department officials.

Also in the group were the Rev. Richard Fernandez, director of Clergy and Laymen Concerned about Vietnam, and Rabbi Abraham Heschel, professor at the Jewish Tteological Seminary in New York.

Tuskegee grads assist Apollo moon project

TUSKEGEE INSTITUTE, Ala. — Development of the powerful Satarn/Apollo rocket, now being used to launch American astronauts to the moon, involves at least three graduates of Tuskegee Institute.

The three Tuskegeeans which are among the scientific and professional employees of the NASA Marshall Space Flight Center include: Lou Ethel Hall, a 23-year-old native of Savannah, Ga.; George C. Davis, 24, of Hillsboro, Ala., and David J. Pickelner, 31, of Williamsport, Pa.

The Apollo 8 program, which sent three astronauts into orbit around the moon last December, is the most complex scientific and technological effort this nation has ever undertaken.

The program is to culminate in a manned lunar landing before the end of this year.

• • •

Miss Hall is a data systems aerospace technologist in the nuclear and plasma physics division of the space sciences laboratory at the Marshall Center.

A mathematician primarily concerned with computer programs and data analyses related to radiation problems in space, she has been employed at the space center for more than a year.

Davis, an engineering major at Tuskegee, is an aerospace engineer in the fluid thermal systems branch of the propulsion and vehicle engineering laboratory.

His work is related to thermal analysis on a large Apollo telescope mount that is to be launched into earth orbit in the mid-1970's as part of a space exploration effort following the early manned lunar landings.

Pickelner, an electrical engineer in the aerophysics division, fluid mechanics research office, aero-astrodynamics laboratory at the center, is working on the development of a statistical program in conjunction with remote sensing which requires specialized scientific knowledge in various fields.

Peaches for Tropical Ham

One of the very best pick-me-ups for the winter doldrums is a hearty winter dinner made sparkling with the addition of hot cling peach halves or a colorful fruit cocktail sauce.

Here are ways to use these original convenience foods to revive winter appetites.

• • •

For Tropical Ham use one can (one lb. one oz.) fruit cocktail, one banana, one and one-half lb. slice ham, one-fourth cup honey, one-fourth cup flaked or shredded coconut, two tablespoons vinegar, Ground nutmeg, and one tablespoon butter or margarine.

Drain fruit cocktail. Peel and quarter banana. Trim a little fat from edge of ham; heat in skillet with ovenproof handle to grease lightly. Add ham and brown on both sides. Arrange fruit cocktail and banana on top of ham.

Mix honey, coconut, vinegar and nutmeg to taste; drizzle over fruit. Dot with butter. Bake in 375-degree (moderately hot) oven 15 to 20 minutes.

Makes 4 to 6 servings.

• • •

Heat canned cling peach halves slightly. Fill center with a spoonful of apple butter and sprinkle of cinnamon. Serve as an accompaniment for pork chops, roast loin of pork or baked ham. Hot canned clings and meats make a perfect pair.

Sprinkle drained canned cling peach halves with cinnamon and brown sugar. Dot with butter and broil until tinged with brown. Serve with corned beef and cheese sandwiches for a quick lunch or supper.

• • •

Easy upside-down muffins double as dessert for a family meal. Place a teaspoonful of brown sugar, a dot of butter over 3 canned cling peach slices in each greased muffin tin. Prepare your favorite packaged muffin mix. Drop batter over fruit and bake in hot oven 15 minutes. Turn upside down to serve.

Bake rice pudding in individual cups. Heat canned fruit cocktail with dash of cinnamon and nutmeg and thicken slightly with cornstarch. Unmold rice pudding and top with hot spicy fruit sauce.
