Bike owners to register

City police officials this week reminded bicycle owners to register their serial numbers to facilitate recovery of the bicycle if stolen.

Departmental records indicate that during the first six months of the present registration period fewer than 10,000 bicycles have been registered.

Past experience indicated that 20,000 or more bicycle registrations should have been made by this time, according to police.

The current registration period runs Sept. 1968 through September 1970.

Baltimore City Ordinance Number 1352 requires that new bicycle tags be obtained for each two year registration period. Cost per tag is $ 50.

According to detectives in the Bicyle Squad, Criminal Investigation Division, registration tags can be purchased at any of the departments' nine district station houses from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., Monday through Friday.

The Department is now holding about 150 bicycles that been recovered by Baltimore Police Officers.

"Because they were not registered, we are unable to locate and return them to their owners," a member of the Criminal Investigation Division said. Detective James Slocum of the Bicycle Squad said that recovered bicycles are turned over to charity organizations if their owners cannot be located after 90 days of discovery.

Self-Help staff pickets after loss of autonomy

Self-Help Housing employees and staff picketed the Community Action Agency office Thursday afternoon and held a brief protest rally against CAA's taking direct "temporary" control over Self-Help operations.

The Community Action Commission voted 6-2 Wednesday night to turn Self-Help over to CAA management for 30 to 90 days. Five CAC members abstained.

"As soon as we can give this program the help it needs, then the program will resume its normal course," Clarence Blount CAC chairman told the AFRO.

The motion was introduced by Frank Ellis, director of CAA, and called for the Commission to assume the policy making control of Self-Help and reconstitute the board.

There were indications that unless Self-Help met CAC standards within 60 days they would look for other community groups to contract with.

During the three-hour meeting, Ellis said there were insufficient City Council votes now in favor of extending Self-Help past June 30.

And another speaker said Self-Help would not be refunded by the Council with its present leadership.

Self-Help drew special CAA attention recently when the city auditor reported 20,000 of "misappropriated" funds for the fiscal year ending June, 1968.

"We do not want to deny that there were not fiscal difficulties but they are being used as a subterfuge to have City Council interference," Self-Help director, Eugene Chase, told the AFRO.

Mr. Chase said Self-Help wants fiscal help "to get money matters straight" but wants to keep its autonomy.

The director "said they needed more help from CAA and the Commission. Now we're coming in to give them the help they say they need," said Blount.

"We're not trying to absolve the board, all we want to do is raise it to 21—poor people, but a broader representation."

Blount said the Self-Help board is supposed to be made up of one representative from each of the 21 Neighborhood Councils in the Baltimore poverty areas.

He opined that the board has 21 members but many of the representatives do not come to meetings.

Under the CAA management plan "no one loses his job, no one is running the people's program. We just want to insure financial responsibility."

Until the CAA move for "temporary" control, Self-Help was the only Baltimore poverty program agency run solely by the poor.

The group is funded as a third party contractor doing neighborhood clean-up jobs, lending tools, and helping tenants with landlord relations. The money comes from the Office of Economic Opportunity through the Community Action Agency and finally the Commission.

"The money comes through us from OEO and with the new administration coming in Washington we at least want to be in a position to ask for funds," Blount said.

A Self-Help worker said the 63 workers feel the CAA intervention "is tantamount to a take-over."

The Commission move "was inappropriate to the kind of problem the program really had. Most of the problems of the program are being taken care of," the spokesman added.

"All the poor people on the Commission voted to keep the program as it is. The rest of them are not representative of poor people at all. Most of the CAC are political appointees.

"I think there's going to be a real fight."

he may attempt to call a Self-Help board meeting

Mr. Chase told the AFRO this week-end.

He speculated that one reason Self-Help is being governed by CAA is "we are embarrassing the Bureau of Sanitation" and "we have actually stopped several evictions."

Fellowship House opens fund drive

A Drive for memberships and contributions has been launched by the Board of Directors of The Baltimore Fellowship, Inc.

The drive will continue until March 15, headed by William Mumby and Charles Culbertson, with Parren J. Mitchell and Clarence W. Blount serving as honorary chairman.

The Rev. Wendell H. Phillips is chairman of the Board of Directors and Miss Ruth Fegley is the Executive Director of the agency, also known as Fellowship House, the name of its headquarters at 3200 North Hilton Street.

The Program at Fellowship House is supported by voluntary contributions and memberships and focuses on training in human relations. It also initiates projects geared toward its immediate neighborhood, including non-members.

30 years ago, Baltimore Fellowship was organized to stimulate citizen concern to combat personal bigotry and social discrimination.

"In this day and age of separatism, militancy, and confusion, the need for dialogue between ethnic, religious and racial groups is needed more than ever.

"The efforts of Fellowship House are devoted to building bridges of understanding between groups by giving children and adults an opportunity to know each other as individuals, to acquaint them with the real issues of our time, and to encourage them to speak out against injustice wherever it is encountered in daily life," according to a Fellowship House spokesman.

Specific programs include a tutorial project; the Anne Beadenkopf Human Relations Information Center; the Baltimore Bulletin, a Human Rights Timetable; an art class for teenagers; a training course which teaches women to present human relations' programs to children's groups; "Families for Fellowship" which provides monthly meetings for the entire family, religious holiday observances such as the Passover Seder and the Christmas-Hanukkah party; Book Discussion Group; Art Exhibits and Summer Day Camp.

Among those working with the drive are the following persons:

Dr. Harriet P. Trader, Mr. and Mrs. Leon P. Bass, Mrs. Nona Everett, Mrs. Loretta Watty, Mrs. Joan Cooper, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Campbell, Mrs. June Gwynn Ross, Mrs. Betty Seidel, Miss Bertha Breadman and Gene Noble.

Donald Brandon, Mrs. Rosalie W. Kelly, Mr. and Mrs. Lester Bland, Jack Barth, and Mrs. Hattie Turner.

Mrs. Ruth B. Redwine, Mrs. Kitty Broady, Herman Bainder, Mrs. Mildred Forehand, Clarence Gregory, Leonard Crosby, Mrs. Charlotte Mebane and James M. Chavis.

Mrs. Eva Creigler, Mr. and Mrs. Edward J. Van de Castle, Mr. and Mrs. Simon Nitzberg, Miss Barbara Cox, Mrs. Hildred Jones, and Mrs. Emile Gibson.

Funeral set at Shiloh for Miss 'Penny' Boyde

Funeral services for Miss Lucille Maria Boyde, 36, well-known beautician and hair stylist, will be held tomorrow, Saturday, noon, at Shiloh Baptist Church, Lanvale and Fremont Ave.

The Rev. Harold A. Carter will officiate.

Miss Boyde, known to her friends as "Penny" died suddenly Feb. 24 at Union Memorial Hospital. She lived at 1901 E. 31st St.

Born in Littleton, N.C., Miss Boyde came to Baltimore with her parents, the late John and Martha Boyde. She was graduated from Douglass High School and attended the Apex Beauty and Barber College.

She was a pledgee of Alpha Alpha Theta Nu Sigma Sorority of the National Beauty Culturist League, Inc.

As a teenager, she sang in the Shiloh Baptist Church choir and was always known as a "very generous person with a dynamic personality" according to her sister, Mrs. Carolyn Murray.

Miss Boyde was active in community groups in East Baltimore and did volunteer work with retarded children. She was the mother of one son, now deceased.

She is survived by her sister, Mrs. Murray, also a licensed beautician; four brothers, John H., Sandy G., Joseph R. and Edward L. Boyde.

Funeral arrangements are being handled by Kelson Funeral Home, where the family will receive friends tonight (Friday).

MISS LUCILLE BOYDE

Miss Queen, Cpl. Nutter wed in military rites

ELOISE RICHARDSON

A colorful military wedding united Miss Carolee Queen, the second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter G. Queen on Parole St. and Cpl. Horace Monroe Nutter of Gambrills at the Mt. Olive AME Church in Annapolis recently.

The double-ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. J. W. Duckett. Bridal airs were sung by Mrs. Betsy Bean, accompanied by Mrs. Victoria Parker, who also played Mendelssohn's Wedding March.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a long white nylon gown fashioned with a tight bodice, plunging neckline and an A line skirt. The detachable two-tiered train and the skirt were edged in deep lace.

Her Spanish lace mantel veil was designed in two tiers by her mother. One tier fell in gathered style around the forehead and the other fell to the hem of her gown. Her only jewelry was a pair of tiny earrings. She carried a bouquet of snapdragons and stephanotis.

Her sister, Miss Jacqueline Queen, was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Mary Queen, Mrs. Deforma Queen and Miss Linda Jordan and Mrs. Phillistine Booth.

They wore silk brocade gowns fashioned as long skimmers, designed with jewel necklines and belted in Empire style. The deep color variations of green, royal blue, yellow and watermelon worn by the bridesmaids gave accent to the formal Marine Corps groom, his best man and ushers.

The gown of the maid of honor was the only contrast in pale pink. Headpieces were made of doubled tulle in colors which blended and matched their gowns enhanced by velvet bows. Small earrings were their only jewelry.

The flower girls, Kim Brown and Annie Queen, wore long white cotton shifts made with bracelet length sleeves that were decorated cuffed in ruffled style. The ring bearer was Keith Queen, nephew of the bride.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Queen chose gold peau de soie fashioned along princess lines with long puffed sleeves. Her headpiece was made of silk flowers and velvet with a small veil in gold. She wore gold accessories.

Mrs. Nutter wore a two-piece suit of white brocade with red accessories. Her hat was in tam style. Both mothers wore corsages made up of white carnations.

The bridegroom, the son of Mrs. Madeline Nutter and the late Wayne Nutter of Gambrill's chose as his best man, Capt. D. Edward Carroll of N.Y.

Ushers were Sgt. Merle DiBene, Bronx, N.Y., Cpl. Gary J. Carreon of Laguna Beach, Calif., Cpl. H. L. Nobles, Ayden, N.C., Cpl. Albert Lawrence of Georgetown, Del., Cpl. Frederick W. Brown, Baltimore, Cpl. Odell Davis, N.Y. and Cpl. William Bowden, Washington.

A reception followed in the church dining area where the bridal group received more than 200 guests.

The bride, prior to her graduation in 1967 from Annapolis High School, was outstanding in athletics, was captain of her basketball team. She is employed at the N. Severn Naval Exchange.

The bridegroom, a 1964 Bates High School graduate, attended Maryland State College for two years before entering the U.S. Marine Service. He was an all-around athlete varsity team member during his high school days and he received a letter at Maryland State in his freshman year.

Among out-of-town relatives who attended the wedding were:

Messrs. and Mesdames Benjamin Queen, Yonkers, N.Y.; Nathaniel West, Fort Bragg, N.C.; Ernest Forbes, Camden, N.J., Henry McAllister, Ernest Queen and William Diggs, all of Baltimore; Joseph Williams, Arlington, Va.; Michael Branch, Philadelphia, Pa.;

Also Messrs. and Mesdames Jackson Nutter, Salisbury, Md.; Philander Wiggins and James McGee, all of Baltimore and Samuel Carrey, Salisbury, Md.; Mesdames Julia Jordan, Norfolk, Va.; Elaine Robinson, Philadelphia, Pa.; Irene Hall and Gladys Griffin, both of Baltimore; Messrs. Stanley Carroll, Bowie, Md.; Larry Jordan, Norfolk, Va.; James West, Philadelphia and Nathaniel Jordan, Fort Bragg, N.C.

MR. AND MRS. DWIGHT SPAULDING TAYLOR were married in Baltimore, Saturday. The bride is the former Miss Frances Aileen Hamlet.

Miss Hamlett bride of Dwight S. Taylor

Miss Frances Aileen Hamlett and Dwight Spaulding Taylor were married, Saturday, in a double-ring ceremony at the home of the bridegroom's parents, Dr. and Mrs. Julius H. Taylor.

White and pink carnations and white calla lillies, flanked by four topiary trees, were used to decorate the fireplace and mantel in front of which the ceremony took place. Carnations and ferns were also entwined the length of the stairway from which the bride descended.

The Rev. O. St. Clair Franklin officiated. Walter Fisher was accompanist for the soloist, Joseph Eubanks. Both are on the faculty of Morgan State College as are the bridegroom's parents.

The bride is the daughter of Alfie Hamlett and is a graduate of Eastern High School and Morgan State College. She is a caseworker at the Department of Social Services.

Mr. Taylor, an alumnus of Baltimore Polytechnic Institute and Lincoln University (Pa.) is a management trainee at the Bethlehem Steel Company.

Miss Hamlett wore a gown of off-white satin trimmed with Alencon lace and seed pearls. The gown featured three-quarter length sleeves with a three-inch scalloped border of the lace. Panels on each side in the back ended in a train. Her net veil was attached to a flower of seed pearls, and she carried a cascade of hybrid orchids and white carnations accented by white ostrich plumes.

Miss Virginia Hamlett was her sister's maid of honor. Her gown was of rose raw silk, made with high neckline and trimmed in rose lace and net. Her headpiece was a veil attached to a large velvet rose.

Her flowers was a cascade of pink and white carnations with rose accents.

Jesse Ray of Ashton, N.C. was best man for Mr. Taylor.

A reception followed the ceremony.

Out-of-town guests included Mrs. Hattie L. Spaulding of Whitesboro, N.J., Miss Sandra McCullough and Fred Haih of Philadelphia, Pa., Mrs. Youngstown, Ohio, Elizabeth Penman of Roland Merritt, Mr. and Mrs. James Pritchett and Mr. and Mrs. Walter Powell of Washington; Miss Agnes Callum of Rochester, N.Y., Mrs. Estella Brandon of Hempstead, N.Y., Mrs. Mildred Lightfoot of New Haven, Conn.; Mrs. Serena Garland and Mrs. Sadie Carter of Alton, Va.

Mrs. Caroline Hamlett, Mrs. Nannie Brandon and James Brandon of Senora, N.C.; Leonald Holman and Miss Beverly White of Newark, N.J. and Miss Sheila Bolden of Memphis, Tenn.

Mr. and Mrs. Taylor are spending a honeymoon in New York City, and upon their return will reside at Sutton Place.

Fashion Frocks and Sarah Coventry Jewelry were featured in the recent fashion show, which was given for the senior tenants of the St. James Terrace Apartment.

Hats by Eddye Tranham were also shown. A facial was given to a lucky lady by the representative of Holiday Magic Cosmetics Co.

Many door prizes and best model prizes were given to the respective winners by Mrs. Serena G. Mann, who coordinated the show for the residents of the St. James Terrace Apartment.

Door prize winners included Mesdames Fannie Hundley, Mary Clarkson, Tilina Dadd, Gladys Patterson, Hilda Myers, Mary Hillary, Mable Burke, Missouri Diggs, Minnie Alston, Mr. Saunders and Miss Crawford.

Refreshments were served.

Clubs

For the third consecutive year, The Gems hosted a very successful benefit cabaret on February 8 at the Alcazar.

Baltimore's "junior jet set" really had a ball! With music provided by Tommy Vann and the Professionals, nothing short of a blast was in order.

This year's theme was "A Black Mod!" Not only were the business attired in Afro-American garb of varying degrees, but so were many of the guests including several stunning matching husband and wife outfits.

Table decorations of a proud black profile silhouetted against white, and a display of Afro-Asian wares, provided by the Sanamu Shop, also helped set the theme for the affair.

Again this year, the Provident Hospital Development Fund will be the beneficiary.

Members of The Gems include:

Blanche Booker, Davette Conner, Barbara Forrest, Myrna Jackson, Sondra Jackson, Paula Lawson, Sharon Phillips, June Powell, Patricia Roberts, Sandra Thomas, Anita Turks, Whitaker and Donna Williams.
